Everybody Back to Work

BARRETT . . . province comes first

By LINDA HUGHES and LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The provincial government today moved to end all B.C.'s major labor disputes with a back-to-work order and a 90-day cooling-off period.

Legislation introduced at an emergency sitting of the house this morning orders an end to the forestry, food, propane and B.C. Railway disputes within 48 hours.

The order is effective for 90 days and Premier Barrett said if collective agreements are not negotiated to settle the disputes by that time, "other moves will be made."

His government still believes in the collective bargaining process but the good of the province must come before the individual desires of management and labor, Barrett said.

"It's an unusual step and I know it was unexpected," he told a news conference shortly after the legislation was tabled in the house.

The decision was made during cabinet meetings Sunday and Monday, he said, and the government had no hesitation in making the step without consulting any other party.

MLAs were called Sunday to the special session and were expecting to face legislation dealing only with the 12-week-old propane distributors strike.

But the legislation also deals with the five-month-old pulp and paper dispute, the month-old food merchandising strike and the recent rotating strikes by B.C. Railway workers.

Asked if he would be willing to fight an election over the government's decision, Barrett said, "It's not a matter of fighting an election, either we govern or we don't."

There are clauses in the bill to force compliance but the only obvious section to enforce the law says that cabinet "may make regulations," he added.

Provisions of the bill will take effect 48 hours after it comes in force.

Labor Minister Bill King indicated that the "breathing spell" could give the International Woodworkers of America a chance to conclude a collective agreement without being subject to the act.

Employers covered by the act are Forest Industrial Relations, Interior Forest Labor Relations Association, Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, Interior Loggers' Association, British Columbia Railway, Transport Labor Relations Association, and the Food Industry Labor Relations Council.

All unions which bargain with those employers are covered by the act.

The bill sets out that all employers must reinstate their operation or business "to the extent and scope that it was on the date the strike or lock-out first occurred."

No employer is allowed to restrict, limit, reduce, diminish or slow down his operation and is required either lift a lock-out or to call back to work each employee who has been on strike or laid off because of the strike.

No strikes, lock-outs or picketing are allowed during the 90-day period.

The legislation also sets out that employers and unions enter "good-faith negotiations" immediately.

While these negotiations are going on, both management and unions will be covered by whatever collective agreement was in force on Jan. 1, 1975. That collective agreement is in force either until a new one is reached or until the act expires in 90 days.

Every collective agreement concluded during the 90-day period must contain, unless the agreement specifies otherwise, provisions for retroactive pay to the expiry date of the last collective agreement.

King stressed several times in the house the hardships facing the families of union members on strike for several months. He said there were some people "almost on the starvation border and that in my view is an indictment of the responsibilities of both management and labor. We

3 NDP MLAs Against

At least three NDP MLAs plan to vote against their own government's back-to-work legislation.

The three labor-oriented back-benchers all expressed disappointment and some surprise this morning when confronted with the government's legislation.

"It's very sudden and far-reaching and I'm trying to get my own thoughts together. It's a time for firm action but I don't think it needs to be this far-reaching," said Richmond MLA Harold Steeves.

Steeves said he had no idea the bill would be so sweeping and as far as he knew other NDP back-benchers were also not aware of the cabinet's decision.

"I'm very disappointed with the legislation and am seriously considering voting against it," said Steeves.

Colin Gabelmann (North Vancouver-Seymour), a former employee of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said the move violates a policy and principle the NDP campaigned for in the last election.

"For me it violates a principle I hold very strongly," he said, adding that while it is not compulsory arbitration it is intervention that constitutes a violation of collective bargaining.

Rosemary Brown (Vancouver-Burrard) said she will not speak in the debate but she is disappointed and will vote against the bill.

William McDonald, spokesman for the B.C. Food Council, said today the move by the government to set workers back on the job was welcome but added he would hold his applause until he has reviewed the bill in detail.

"This has taken me totally

48,000 OUT

There are about 48,000 people in B.C. on strike, locked out, or laid off.

This includes 29,000 IWA workers, 13,000 pulp and paper workers, 4,500 in the food industry, between 500 to 1,000 others laid off in other companies because of the loss of business in the food industry, about 300 Teamsters in the propane dispute, and 790 railway workers laid off because of the strikes in the woods industry.

Strikebreaking —Pulp Leader

B.C.'s three opposition parties today indicated they would vote for the government's back-to-work legislation. More varied reaction came from labor union and industry spokesmen.

"It's strikebreaking legislation," Stan Shewaga, bargaining committee chairman of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada said in Nanaimo.

He couldn't promise that PPWC members would comply with terms of the bill.

A caucus meeting had been called for Wednesday "and we'll make our decisions then," he said and added he has reason to believe the PPWC will get B.C. Federation of Labor support regardless of their decision.

"How anyone in his right mind would think the cooling-off period will make anything happen, I don't know," Shewaga said.

He predicted "so damned much disatisfaction" if workers are forced back to work, "that it won't be a very productive situation."

Social Credit leader, Bill Bennett, obviously taken aback by the government move, said he will support the legislation, but it is a measure.

He said the government is trying, through the back-to-work bill, to share its blame with the complete legislature because the government has had to do a complete turn-around in its position.

"I see a labor minister and a government that has used labor . . . come to the realization that there are no easy answers," Bennett said.

He said the government cannot be the captain of either labor or management, but must take a third-party role.

Speaking for the Liberal party, new leader Gordon Gibson said it is the duty of the provincial government to show leadership and direction in contract negotiations.

He blamed the government for feeding inflation and unrest within the labor movement through its own civil service wage settlements.

The cost of living adjustment is all a labor union should be granted to keep up with inflation, he said.

The province is now recog-

Artillery Troops Mutiny, Reds March on Lisbon

Times News Services

LISBON — Mutinous troops occupied a key artillery base in the northern city of Porto today as thousands of Communist-led workers flocked into Lisbon for an openly anti-government demonstration.

Brig. Pires Veloso, commander of the northern military district, called the commander of the artillery unit a "traitor" and ordered the arrest of all officers in the regiment.

The far-left newspaper Republica called the developments in Porto "an historic event.

"For the first time after centuries of rule by the dominant class, the vast exploited majority of soldiers have the power to decide how their arms should be used," the newspaper said.

In the capital, radical soldiers of another rebellious artillery unit rejected President Francisco da Costa Gomes's call for discipline and said they will use their guns to protect Portugal's "oppressed classes."

Soldiers of the 1st Light Artillery Regiment, stationed on the outskirts of the capital, were cheered by a Communist-led crowd of several thousand when one trooper climbed on a guardhouse rooftop Monday and shouted:

"We have voted to be always on the side of the people. We are ready to use our arms to protect the oppressed classes."

Two soldiers on the guardhouse rooftop, however, held a "large red banner saying: 'No to civil war.'"

Late Monday, the Socialist party issued a statement denouncing efforts by "certain sectors" to use the demonstration to "throw workers against workers and soldiers against soldiers."

DRIVING RAIN . . .

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japanese sporting goods maker today put on sale an umbrella with a golf club grip handle, so golf enthusiasts can practice swings with it while waiting for commuter trains.

A spokesman for Mizuno Inc. said the special umbrella will sell for $10.

RUNNING for mayor in Saanich Nov. 15 is Mel Couvelier who resigned as alderman to challenge incumbent Ed Lum. In a news conference this morning, he said the issue was "deliberate misrepresentation or incompetence" by Lum on a number of issues, mainly the police pay award. Couvelier's charges and Lum's reply are on page 9.

Manager Appointed

HALIFAX (CP) — Tom McKim, who has headed the Halifax Transit Corp. for six years, has accepted a position as general manager of B.C. Hydro's Pacific Stage Lines, responsible for inter city transit in Vancouver and Victoria.

Package Explodes

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — A small package was exploded shortly after being removed from a post office in this south Seattle suburb late Monday, police said. There was no damage and no injuries.

Policeman Charged

MOOSE JAW (CP) — An eight-year veteran of the Moose Jaw police force was charged Monday with criminal negligence in the shooting death of a young Saskatoon man. The charge arises out of an incident Sunday when Constable Ken Haggerty attempted to stop an out-of-town vehicle.

Ransom Hopes Fade

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Officials of a multimillion-dollar Dutch manufacturing company say hope is fading for a ransom deal to save the life of kidnapped executive, Tiede Herrema.

Firemen End Strike

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Striking firemen were back at their stations early today, ending a four-day walkout marked by city officials' accusations that some of the strikers resorted to arson.

Youth Curfew, Fingerprinting Urged

SURREY (CP) — Juvenile offenders over 14 should be fingerprinted and photographed by police and a system of damage restitution should be initiated, a task force on juvenile crime told council Monday.

The group's final report also recommended a juvenile curfew, more family therapy and counselling groups, and increased manpower for the RCMP. The 11-member group has been studying juvenile crime problems for nearly a year.

Mayor Bill Vander Zalm said council will meet with the task force as soon as possible after studying the report.

"Holding young offenders responsible and accountable for their acts is a key to reversing the present trend, but must go hand-in-hand with community action to meet their needs in preventive, rehabilitative and corrective measures," the report said.

"It is felt by many that the existing atmosphere in dealing with juveniles has a tendency toward forbearance and leniency and that such attitudes are detrimental instead of beneficial."

The report recommends a pilot project establishing small neighborhood councils to deal with local concerns, a family service centre to provide family therapy and group counselling, and increased use of foster parent programs.

Emphasized are vocational, recreational and therapeutic facilities. A day attendance centre for juveniles and a secure holding facility also should be developed on a local basis to deal with young people who run away.

The report said data such as fingerprints and photographs of young offenders would not be sent to any national, or provincial fingerprint repository and the prints would be destroyed after a probation period.

In a section dealing with law reform, the report recommends that a municipal bylaw counteract proposed provincial legislation which would allow drinking in public places.

Doctors Top Income Group

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Medical doctors had the highest average income of any occupational group in Canada in 1973, and the Toronto suburb of Oakville retained top place among major cities according to income.

The information is contained in the government's "green book" on tax statistics which was released Monday.

The document reported that in the 1973 taxation year, self-employed physicians and surgeons earned an average of $42,730 a year, followed by self-employed lawyers and notaries $36,598, and self-employed engineers and architects $33,751.

Average annual incomes of other groups during the year included: self-employed dentists, $31,160; self-employed accountants, $26,993; self-employed salesmen $10,872; investors, $10,199; farmers, $9,543; business proprietors, $9,333; fishermen, $8,783 and employees, $8,568.

Teachers and professors led in income among employee groups, with annual average earnings of $10,920. They were followed by members of the armed forces $10,390, federal employees $9,744, provincial employees $9,278, municipal employees $8,973, and business employees $8,501.

Nearly last on the list were pensioners, whose incomes were $5,813 on average.

This left them well below the average income for all taxpayers of $8,665 in 1973. This was up from the 1972 over-all average of $7,784.

Highest income cities in B.C., with their position in Canada in brackets, were: Prince Rupert, $9,706 (seventh — it placed 31st in 1972); Alberni, $9,455 (tenth); Prince George, $9,451 (11th); Vancouver, $9,195 (16th); Kamloops, $9,083 (22nd); New Westminster, $8,902 (26th); Trail-Rossland, $8,894 (27th); Victoria, $8,803 (30th); Nanaimo, $8,729 (34th); Vernon, $8,511 (45th); Kelowna, $8,474 (50th); Dawson Creek, $8,233 (63rd); Penticton, $7,711 (90th).

Back-on-Job Legislation

The NDP government still believes in the free collective bargaining system, King said but "no right is absolute — it must be tempered and weighed against the consequences . . . on innocent parties and the people involved."

The economic warfare is jeopardizing the basic safety, comfort and health of the people in BC., the minister said.

King outlined the efforts made by the department of labor in all the disputes involved to help the parties arrive at a voluntary collective agreement.

He said he would not make judgments on the conduct of the parties involved as it would create controversy and inflame the situation.

by surprise," he said from Vancouver.

"My initial reaction is it is a good thing, particularly in our dispute as the public is really suffering."

Although he felt the 90-day cooling-off period was desirable, he wondered what would happen when it ends.

"My concern is one side or the other in the dispute will be forced into a tactical position it would not want to make. It could result in a negotiated settlement being more difficult to achieve."

Scope of the bill took the Canadian Paperworkers union by surprise.

Union spokesman Reno Biasutti said there would be official comment later, but he said initial reaction of officials was surprise that the bill would encompass industries other than the propane distributors, where the shutdown is causing hardship to business, industry and individuals.

He said the bill will be discussed by the paperworkers' regional vice-president, elected officials and staff as soon as a meeting can be arranged.

In Nanaimo, Stan Shewaga, bargaining committee chairman for the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada said his committee will have to study any order the government issues and "we will have to make some decisions."

He said it was too soon to comment further but his initial reaction on hearing of the bill was that it showed the government and the forest industry were at a loss what to do at this point over negotiations with the IWA.

Hugh Armstrong, public affairs manager for B.C. Railway declined to comment on the bill until he has had a chance to study it.

He said 790 railway employees out of a total staff of 3,000 who have been laid off because of the labor strife in the province will be rehired as business increases.

nizing that the right to strike is not an unqualified one.

Tory leader Scott Wallace said the government's move shows that essential services bargaining can be dealt with by legislation and government should stop fooling itself that the right to strike is limitless.

"It's very much a phony right," he said.

The government can legislate people back to work because if people don't obey it means "we are in a state of anarchy."

Wallace said his party supports collective bargaining but unions are becoming too powerful and can cause great damage in the province.

Len Guy, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, which represents over 300,000 members of the province's organized work force, said:

"My first reaction is one of disbelief. This is serious interference with free collective bargaining."

Guy withheld any other comment saying he was heading into an immediate emergency meeting with the federation officials.

Teamsters president Sen. Ed Lawson termed the bill a bold step on the part of the government and said it "took a lot of courage."

He said the teamsters will obey the legislation and return to work. "If they make an order, our people will carry it out."

The teamsters' boss said the bill will have some impact on the re-election of the NDP, but he feels it will be re-elected, because it will win support from voters in the province who will consider it "a good and courageous" move.

IWA regional president Jack Munro said it was regrettable the government was forced into this kind of action and said he hadn't expected to be included in the legislation.

"I must say the labor minister is a brave man," he said.

He called it unfortunate that the pulp unions did not stay in Victoria to settle their dispute and emphasized that the IWA is not on strike, although many men are out of work because of the pulp dispute and the soft market.

Munro said he doesn't support the idea of forcing people back to work, but perhaps in the future people will become more realistic and accept responsibility for collective bargaining.

He hopes the IWA will be able to settle within the 48-hour deadline, he said.

Forest Industrial Relations president Don Lanskail said the forest industry will comply completely with the government order.

He said it was regrettable that the government had to move but that the industry had not sought government intervention.

He said the industry still believes in the principle of free collective bargaining without government interference. That system is not dead, he said, just "in serious trouble."

Lanskail said he expected to continue bargaining with the IWA in the 48-hour period before the legislation takes effect.

Satellite Launched

AFB VANDERBERG (AP) — An Explorer satellite to test the Earth's outer atmosphere was sent into a polar orbit Monday, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said. The manoeuvrable spacecraft is designed to explore in detail an area of the earth's outer atmosphere where important energy transfer occurs.

MIAMI (UPI) — A bomb exploded Monday night on the doorstep of the Dominican Republic consulate, severely damaging the building and shattering windows and shaking structures in the surrounding block. No injuries were reported.

Refused Service To Indian, Man Fined

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan human rights commission has ordered a garage operator in Plunkett, 55 miles southeast of Saskatoon, to pay $100 to an Indian whose eight-year-old son was refused use of a washroom.

A commission announcement Monday quoted the operator, Joseph Kostuk, as saying: "Sorry, I can't let you use it. I'm not in the habit of cleaning up after Indians."

The commission said the parent, Ralph Sinclair of Llydminster, stopped at the garage in December, 1974, with his family.

Sinclair was having carburetor trouble and was told by Kostuk that the carburetor part needed would be sold to him for $8, but only if he purchased at least $20 worth of other merchandise.

Sinclair refused and since then has twice bought the part, once for 79 cents and once for 42 cents, the commission said.

Little Progress In Forest Talks

B.C. forest industry negotiations, now in their fourth week, are continuing in Victoria with little signs of progress.

International Woodworkers of America negotiators now are considering a proposal from the forest companies presented Monday and believed to be related to the three-year dispute at the Huntting-Merritt shingle mill in Vancouver.

Terms of the proposal have not been disclosed. The Huntting-Merritt dispute last week help up negotiations while the two sides wrangled about whether it should be included as a contract discussion item.

IWA regional president Jack Munro met with Labor Minister Bill King on Monday and said King impressed on him the importance of settling the dispute to the provincial economy.

Earl Foxcroft, president of the IWA's Port Alberni local, said after Monday's negotiation sessions that if the mood of the discussions carries on, the two sides could be on their way to an agreement.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Paperworkers Union, one of two B.C. pulp unions on strike since July, set up a picket line in Richmond Monday outside Capital Paper Supply Ltd.

Gideon Diekman, president of the local, said the picketing was a delayed strategy in the dispute. The pulp unions earlier escalated their picketing activities to include related operations.

Diekman said the pickets would stay outside the paper supply plant until "the whole dispute is settled."

Adjournment Granted In Brewery Hearing

A two-day adjournment in an application for an injunction brought by three Victoria area hotel owners against striking beer distributor workers was granted in B.C. Supreme Court Monday.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton agreed to a motion by Vancouver lawyer Hugh Ladner, representing the Brewery Workers Union, to postpone the hearing until Wednesday.

Ladner, said union members, involving about 160 striking beer truck drivers will meet tonight to vote on a new offer made last Saturday by Pacific Brewers Distributors. The union executive has unanimously recommended acceptance.

Ladner said he was concerned court proceedings could frustrate attempts to settle the strike, now into its second month.

Ladner's motion was supported by Ken Murphy, acting for the Crown which is a codefendant in an action for damages sought by the three hotel owners.

Murphy said as sensitive negotiations between the union and employer are taking place an adjournment was necessary in the interest of labor peace.

However, Dr. J. J. Gow, representing the owners of the Sooke River Hotel, King's Hotel and Colwood Inn, whose businesses have been curtailed or stopped by the strike, objected to the adjournment.

He argued the application for an injunction should go on without delay as "my clients have suffered so much."

"How much longer must small people be compelled to bleed financially to death while some union settles its dispute with some remote employer?" he asked.

The three hotels have asked the court to order the Liquor Administration Branch or the breweries to supply them directly with beer and to prevent the union from stopping deliveries.

Gow said the union has "physically prevented" his clients from getting supplies of beer.

Ladner said the application brought by the hotels raises fundamental issues as to who has jurisdiction in such disputes — the B.C. Labor Code or the federal courts.

According to the Labor Code courts can enter a dispute only when life or health is at stake.

Skies were relatively cloudless over most of B.C. overnight and this morning with the exception of a few showers along the outer coast. This pattern will continue with showers on the coast but generally sunny elsewhere. The one problem spot is the extreme southeastern section which is suffering the effects of a frontal system in the neighboring states. The cloud and rain there will gradually dissipate today as the system moves on towards the Prairies.

Little change is expected for Wednesday with sunshine for most areas. A few showers on the coast and temperatures continuing at or a little below normal.

Saanich Seeks Highrise Ban

Saanich council voted Tuesday to ask its staff to prepare a report on how waterfront in the municipality can be protected for all time from highrise developments.

The report was requested by Ald. Mel Couvelier who said council should go on record that it or any future council will not permit highrise developments along the water anywhere in Saanich.

Couvelier said he was concerned about published reports that Gordon Head Developments Ltd. was waiting until after the municipal elections before submitting its plan for three high-rise buildings at 2282 Arbutus to Saanich council.

PROTEST LETTER

"I am disturbed by the idea that things might be different after the election. We should take action now," Couvelier said.

He noted that Mayor Ed Lum had already gone on record as personally opposing highrise development along the water in Saanich for all time.

The council should establish a policy against waterfront highrises before the November election but first should obtain advice from staff on how this could best be done, he said.

The issue was raised by a letter from Earl Byrnes, president of the Gordon Head and District Ratepayers Association, protesting the proposed highrise development.

In his letter, Byrnes said the ratepayers association objects to the project because it would create severe problems.

MORATORIUM ASKED

"The high population density, visual pollution, overtaxing of facilities and roads and the long-term commitment of potentially public waterfront are considered to be undesirable and unnecessary," the letter said.

The letter also called for a moratorium on major rezoning pending the completion of the Gordon Head Community and Land Use plan and its incorporation in the regional plan.

In other business, Saanich council voted to award a contract to Farmer Construction to build the Nellie McClung branch library at McKenzie and Cedar Hill Road. Farmer Construction was low bidder at $458,220. The other three bids were Hunter Construction $463,603, H. E. Fowler & Son $463,835 and Herb Bate $464,488.

LIBRARY COSTS

Total cost of the library project will be $600,000, according to council estimates.

In addition to construction costs, there will be about $33,500 for roads and drains, $15,000 for landscaping, $35,000 for architect and engineering fees, $45,000 for shelving and other furnishings and $6,780 for Hydro connection.

Council passed a bylaw to raise $340,000 in short-term borrowing. The provincial government will contribute $200,000 on a one-third cost-sharing formula, the library development commission will contribute $10,000 and $50,000 will come from a general revenue fund reserve.

HARTLAND WOES

Other matters dealt with Tuesday afternoon:

—Council voted to send a letter to the Oct. 15 meeting of the regional district parks committee supporting protests from residents of Hartland Road who object to a proposal to use part of the Hartland Road garbage dump as a trail for motorcycles and bicycles.

A petition signed by 33 residents said they were subjected to enough problems with garbage trucks going by leaving garbage as they pass without adding motorcycles and bicycles in the area.

NO RINK MODEL

—A letter from the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities asking for more Ottawa aid for public transport was endorsed but a letter from Port Hardy asking support for moving the terminal for the Prince Rupert ferry to Port Hardy from Kelsey Bay was tabled without any action being taken.

—Council defeated a proposal to spend up to $5,000 to prepare land site and a model of the proposed ice rink. Council decided no money should be spent until the plebiscite is passed or defeated at the time of the municipal election.

—Council voted to declare a nine-acre Gorge waterfront property containing the San Sebastian Motel and Victoria Auto Court a development area. The application was made on behalf of J. A. Traunweiser. Council was told by staff that there is a proposal to build 212 units of residential accommodation on the site and declaration of the area as a development area would give council more control over questions of public open space and access to the water. If the developer asks for a land-use contract, it would go to public hearing at that time.

REZONING HEARING

—Council called for a public hearing on a proposal to rezone 4.5 acres on McKenzie near Cedar Hill Road for multiple family use. About 2.4 acres would be in townhouses and 2.1 acres would be for an apartment.

—A request to rezone property at 4265 Quadra as P3 (church) was tabled to obtain further details from the Church of the Nazaréne.

—An application to rezone property at 3204-to-3210 Wicklow Street as apartment-medium density also was sent to a public hearing.

—An application to rezone 2.6 acres on Cumberland Road for 23 townhouse units was rejected on the advice of the Saanich advisory planning commission which said services were inadequate in the region and townhouse development was not compatible with rural atmosphere.

STRATA OKAYED

—Public hearings were called on an application by the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association to rezone 1551 Broadmead as office-commercial and from Rhynard Developments Ltd. for permission to rezone a piece of property on Taine Place for a two-family dwelling.

—A request by Viteway Bakery to rezone 1.7 acres owned by Viteway Bakery and Organic Foods Ltd. for single family homes was sent to public hearing.

—Council approved a request from Western Homes Ltd. for permission to turn its rental duplex at 620-622 Broadway into strata title homes, with the understanding that the present tenants would be given first opportunity to puruhase the units.

Train Kills Man

FISHILL, N.Y. (AP) — A man was killed Sunday by a Penn Central passenger train after he and six friends had placed pennies on the track to flatten them. Authorities said Dale Petrus, 20, of Fishill apparently did not notice the train coming.

Pruning Problems Poetry

The poetry of trees stirred Oak Bay's streets and traffic committee for close to two hours Monday night.

It began with a 40-minute inquest into pruning which left "a colossal V cut" through a Garry Oak in the 2300-block Cadboro Bay Road.

Ald. John Goult said Oak Bay spends "an awful lot of council time and money" on tree pruning and "some people joke about us going to inspect a tree before it's cut."

He wanted to be assured that a "sensitive position" is being taken rather than "expedient chopping" in a B.C. Hydro program to keep tree branches away from electricity wires.

A representative from Cedardale Tree Service, involved in the pruning, said B.C. Hydro called for a six-foot clearance from wires. While the pruning will look harsh for the first year, he said it will be quite different next year.

It was B.C. Hydro's position and his company's position that "we'll do what the municipality wants." He said he thought it would cost B.C. Hydro $100,000 to finish tree trimming in the area from Windsor Avenue to the Uplands.

Oak Bay's consultant on trees, Michael Gye, who is president of Greenleaves Tree Service, said he told the crews to take off the minimum required for the wires.

But, he added, there was "no way they could have taken the required amount of clearing without doing what they did."

It was "an appalling great gap through them" but they were very big trees.

Ald. Doug McLelland said the degree of shock is that a very mature tree, not recently trimmed, was tackled and produced the big cut.

"From what we've heard," he said, "there's no other way to do it."

A group of residents on Rosario Street then asked committee to cut down 11 London Plane trees which they said have roots growing into their sewers and breaking up driveways.

Ald. Doug Watts said the committee would want to know the alternatives "before taking drastic action" and Gye and engineer Geoff White were asked to submit reports.

Foster Isherwood said he is "a great lover of trees" but asked that attention be given to boulevard trees which block his view in the 3600-block Cadboro Bay Road.

Gye reported that the Plane trees would have to be trimmed by about half and would be "rather ugly" for 12 months but the most that could be taken off the elms would be half the crown.

Watts said one-third pruning would be more appropriate than one-half but McLelland said while he could support selective pruning he couldn't go for one-third.

But that, Gye said, would not improve the view at all.

It was agreed Gye would make a further report on specific pruning for each of 11 trees.

A request by Roy Denny, 3130 Midland, to have a large oak tree trimmed and at least two of five smaller trees removed was referred to Gye for a report.

A request by several residents in the 2000-block Chaucer Street to have 23 Lindens pruned will be recommended to council along lines suggested by Gye, which would take about three feet off them.

In addition, council will be asked to consider spraying of these trees next year to control aphids which produce a sticky honeydew.

Ed's Economic Whizbang

Now New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent is stumping the country brandishing cures for unemployment and inflation. He speaks of a massive housing program that would provide employment and a prices review board with teeth. No complaint there. We can even go along with his idea of amending the Bank Act to force the chartered bank cartel to reserve a certain percentage of their investment for six or seven per cent mortgages.

Certainly the banks could afford to do something for the good of the country as they rake in profits because of higher interest rates, all the while urging Canadians to buy more on credit.

Fine and dandy Ed. But you left one thing out: wages. A day later in Calgary he dealt with that thorny problem. "What's wrong with labor increasing its share of the national wealth?" he asked. Nothing. But the way settlements are going organized labor will have all the national wealth.

Broadbent's cures might have had a measure of success two years ago when the price push got underway. Wages have been catching up until recently. But now it is wages more than prices which are pushing inflation along at 11 per cent. In 1973 the federal government did nothing to inhibit large price increases. Now it appears afraid to tackle organized labor too. As the leader of a small opposition party in the House of Commons, Broadbent can afford to be naive about partial controls. Such a fearless stand against "big business" ensures support from organized labor too. Yet even if the NDP leader was named prime minister tomorrow it is doubtful that he would ever legislate such partisan controls. It's just good talk on which the party will never have to make good.

His remarks are an inverted echo of what some Liberal cabinet ministers said a few months ago, namely that inflation was all the fault of avaricious unions. That talk dried up when saner government heads prevailed.

When are Canada's legislators going to come down off their partisan horses and deal with our grave problems in a realistic manner? The prime minister doesn't think controls are necessary. The NDP favor one-sided controls which would ruin the limping economy. And the man who originally suggested controls is packing his bags for retirement. It's a wonder we could even decide on a flag.

Is B.C. House Needed?

The appointment of Robert Strachan to the post of British Columbia agent-general in London is a fine little political irony, coming from a New Democratic Party government which in opposition attacked the practice of dispatching political war-horses to B.C.'s offices abroad, and which seriously considered closing B.C. House in the heart of empire soon after it took office in 1972.

No doubt it is a convenience for B.C. premiers (and two of them are past occupants of the agent-general's chair) to be able to offer the job as enticement or reward for services rendered, but considering the cost of the operation in London —an estimated $356,654 this fiscal year—and the fact that nowadays there are all kinds of cheaper patronage plums to hand, are B.C. House and the agent-general's office anachronisms which have long outlived their usefulness?

Once upon a time, B.C. House boasted that its prime business was "to aid the development of the huge natural resources of the province" but it was also "particularly active in promoting tourist traffic and the settlement of people with assured incomes . . ." And once upon a time, London was the financial capital of the world, but the days when British money played a major role in developing British Columbia are past. It would make more sense to have an office today on Wall Street — as Ontario and Quebec do — or in Tokyo. Or at the Persian Gulf.

Britain's current economic depression would seem to signal clearly that the lights are going out and the mother country won't have much cash to spare for investments in the colonies.

Beyond providing a convenient mail drop for B.C. tourists travelling in the U.K., a reading room (an upstairs corridor actually) with provincial newspapers and a bit of tourist promotion (B.C. is much too expensive for most British and European travellers), just what has the London office provided for the money?

It paid for itself in former years with the rents from businesses occupying offices in the five-storey stone building — which B.C. erected at a cost of $358,000 in 1916 — balancing expenses. But today, with the cost of operating it rising at 20 per cent a year and quickly approaching the half million mark, the usefulness of the operation should be carefully examined.

Sentimental ties and traditions (there's been an agent-general representing us in London ever since 1872) are wonderful, like a warm puppy, but the province shouldn't consider that just because it has owned an imposing stone pile and choice piece of real estate off Picadilly Circus for the past half century that it has to keep the place open for auld lang syne.

PET Style Ottawa Confidential

OTTAWA — The most interesting judgment the history books will make about the Trudeau government will be to decide whether it was captured by the bureaucracy after a brief, behind-the-scenes tussle or whether there never was any struggle at all but simply a marriage between two partners with identical mind-sets.

My own guess is that the bureaucratization of the Liberal cabinet is the product, not of a truce but of a marriage of convenience.

Personalities, of course, are the easiest way to make the point. An ex-deputy minister, Jack Austin, becomes Trudeau's chief political aide; the Canadian Radio-Television Commission chairman, Pierre Juneau, joins the cabinet; a gut politician, ex-finance minister John Turner, leaves the cabinet.

Scared of Press

The partners are alike in a more profound way. Normally there is little politicians enjoy more than talking to the public, and there is little bureaucrats enjoy less. that distinction no longer exists — Trudeau is operating the most tightly-closed government Canada has known — even more so than during his first majority term, 1968-72.

To convey the atmosphere of secrecy isn't easy. It's like trying to describe something that hasn't happened.

One incident may capture the mood in this town. Last summer, during a conversation with Jack Austin, then Trudeau's chief political aide, I remarked that almost no information was available on what was going on inside the East Block. "I wish you would report that," Austin immediately replied.

Austin, I realized, was scared to talk to reporters. Scared of what you might ask? The answer came when Austin, a good, faithful and silent servant, was appointed to the senate.

Fear is the method by which Trudeau enforces secrecy. Another of his senior aides, Michael Kirby, has told friends that for the sake of his career he has made it a rule never to talk to reporters. The reason for the policy itself, though, is conviction rather than just image-building or political convenience.

As do bureaucrats, Trudeau and those close to him are deeply convinced that closed government is essential to good government. The public should not be brought into the decision-making process, which produces inefficiency, misunderstandings and disorder, but rather be informed of decisions once these have bee taken. The need is for a "positive, constructive communications program" — all euphemisms for a one-way information outflow — such as recommended in one of cabinet's long-term priority papers drafted by Kirby. In a delicious mix-up, the government planned to leak some parts of these papers to demonstrate its capacity for creative thinking. Now that the entire priorities exercise has been aborted, the papers have been hastily reclassified "confidential."

The case for openness is that, despite the untidiness and the short-term political embarrassments, it saves the government from the blunders produced by decisions taken in a vacuum (Pickering airport is an example). Also, and almost as important, from the need to undertake expensive and time-consuming coverups to try to justify those blunders (the rationalizations for Mirabel airport, for example).

Openness — the issue is not "the public's right to know" which is a vague, abstract slogan, but "the public's right to good government" — is going to become a central political debate during the balance of Trudeau's term in power.

To argue the benefits of openness demands more space than is available here. My purpose instead is to capture the style of this government.

Unequal Contest

Just before he left the post, Trudeau's former press secretary, Pierre O'Neil, confided he considered himself a failure because in two years of arguing from the inside for a more open government he had won not a single point. O'Neil's self-criticism was quite unjustified! His only failure was to engage in a contest he hadn't the slightest chance of winning.

Bureaucrats don't need press secretaries. They need, and hire, information officers to tell the public what they think it should know.

Mind you, some pipelines do remain open. Two days before Trudeau announced his new cabinet, then-Energy Minister Donald Macdonald's 10-year-old daughter walked into her classroom and announced: "My daddy's been made minister of finance." The son of a reporter passed back the news. His daddy's deadline had already passed.

Fire Safety

I have just read that no charges will be laid in connection with the fire of Aug. 23 at the Royal Olympic Hotel. I am saddened and infuriated.

Has the enforcement of fire safety regulations become so "Mickey Mouse" that a fire in a public building has such a tragic end?

If the fire department and city officials do not enforce a law then there is no law.

Fire safety becomes a farce and people will continue to die in buildings without fire doors and other appropriate emergency protection.

I have recently moved from Ontario; and I know that a public building is closed if the building does not have fire doors.

What has become of the unnamed buildings in Victoria that were a hazard if fire did occur?

I shudder to think what has happened if this is the kind of mild tut-tut the fire department and the above-mentioned hotel receive, after three people perish in a building with no fire doors.

I fear there will be nothing more done by the public servants in this city to make Victoria safer.

Courageous Decision

So, three former Liberals who had become independent and earlier, an ex-Conservative, have joined the Social Credit Party. Their move, not unexpected, has been greeted by some people with the cry of "opportunism" and "defection."

This is, in my opinion, absolutely uncalled for and most unfair. Regardless of the fact that throughout our political history both at provincial and federal levels individuals have relinquished one party to join another or quit altogether, the truth is that no one has the right to point an accusing finger at political personalities who, at a certain moment in their career, have taken what may be called a courageous decision. Whether this decision was based on selfish motives or the conviction that they can serve the people of British Columbia better by becoming members of the official opposition, is not for us to tell.

The individual conscience is a secret, private tabernacle known by the individual alone. It is "out of bounds" to outsiders who have no right to pry.

We praise the philanthropist that presents a cheque to some popular charity (cameras and reporters on the spot), but was the generous act inspired by real concern or by considerations of side-benefits such as publicity "good for business?"

Are we, the voters, casting our ballots according to our principles and beliefs or just for "what we can get out of it?"

Come on, "let the ones without sin cast the first stone." — E. J. Lattes, 548 Dallas Road.

McGEER, GARDOM, BENNETT
. . . secret, private tabernacle

'Never Again'

Obviously there's an election blowing in the wind. We see it in the province-wide distribution of the magazine Land — a government publication that is minus a union bug! We see it in Premier Barrets's province-wide tour, in individual MLAs of the socialist government contacting their ridings with questionnaires.

Unlike the previous government, the NDP are not issuing a mini-budget but assure citizens that there will be a balanced budget. In view of last March's overruns and department deficits, one can see the reason for omitting this mini-budget. In fact there is absolutely no chance of the NDP balancing the $3.2 billion dollar budget brought down last March. Between the cruel ICBC strike and diminishing revenues from the mining industry and forest industry, our economic health is pretty sick. While Premier Barrett admits to being an "underdog party" citizens are getting a taste of lining up for their groceries.

One can only wonder out loud if citizens will demand more of the same or whether they will vote: "Never again!" — Bill Ellner, Vancouver.

Firearms Safety

A group of concerned private citizens from virtually every walk of life has banded together to form the National Firearms Safety Association, a non-profit organization operating under a federal charter.

The aim of the association is to launch a country-wide program of gun safety information and at the same time press the government to enact safer gun laws. As you may be aware, as things stand now, almost anyone can walk in off the street and buy all the long guns and ammunition they want — no questions asked — without even having to give their name. Children, by simply signing a form, can buy guns through the mails.

The National Firearms Safety Association has as its primary goal, the enactment of legislation requiring the licencing of all long gun and ammunition buyers. After examining the laws of such countries as Britain and Japan, they believe the simplest and most effective method of obtaining better control is to restrict gun purchases to those who have obtained a permit.

The Associaton is in no way anti-gun or anti-hunting. Some of our members are in fact hunters. Bill Jones, the executive director of FARO, the powerful Canadian gun lobby and a representative from the Canadian Wildlife Federation attending our founding meeting in Ottawa had no quarrel with our proposals regarding the licencing of the buyer or safe storage.

We are attempting to launch branches of our association in other communities and of course recruit new members. All our funds come from memberships, we have no large corporations or gun manufacturers to help us. Any assistance in publicizing our organization of its aims would be greatly appreciated.

The addresses of the National Firearms Safety Association are: 7 Galt Street, Ottawa, Ontario; or P.O. Box 460, Station O, Toronto, Ontario.

Merchants Arise

Alas, our lordship Puritan Peter is at it again! He, with his pussillanimous cronies on council who rubber-stamp his every whim are closing Victoria up on Sunday. Oh no, not for everything. Just for those things that his lordship with his such great wisdom decides us mere mortals shall not partake of or have, simply because Peter says so. What unmitigated gall some men have!

Really, does anyone recall electing these men to so direct our lives? What further restrictions have they in mind? Shades of France in the 1700s, arise merchants, you have nothing to lose but your shackles! — Brian Brown, 324-964 Heywood.

Letter Protested

The Community Planning Association of Canada belongs to no individual. It is the property of its members.

A number of them have called to protest Kay Lines' disgraceful and ignorant letter of Sept. 30 (Charles Barber). On their behalf I write to set the record straight.

In the last three years the number of active members in Victoria dwindled from 30 to four. Since the new board took over this year, the number has increased markedly. The increase is due to the number of new programs being offered.

In Victoria, a cable television program previously run by two people, Mr. and Mrs. Lines, is now run by a 15-person citizen broadcasting committee. It is now also run on a completely voluntary basis. The new regional bikeway committee has a membership of 25, and through its bikeway proposals and bicycle Sunday has attracted support and participation of thousands. The Inner Harbor design contest will attract further participation of several hundred citizens.

We will shortly announce a series of public Town Hall meetings, designed to involve the residents of unorganized neighborhoods in community planning issues.

Our constitution is entirely democratic, as Mrs. Lines would know if she had troubled to attend our annual meeting. Many members did, and elected Charles Barber and thirteen others to the board.

Mr. Barber is well known for his drive, initiative, and organizational abilities. As program chairman he has proven to be a most welcome addition to the board.

Kay Lines' attempt to portray us as Mr. Barber's puppets is absurd and insulting. Members of the board also include a senior planner for the city of Vancouver, the director of the school of community and regional planning at UBC, a high school teacher, a management consultant, a senior administrator for B.C. Tel, the director of planning and development for West Vancouver among others. I am director of social studies programs at the Centre for Continuing Education, UBC.

We are proud to admit that the association's personnel, financial and other resources have in fact increased this year.

At Mrs. Lines' request, a special meeting was held in Victoria three months ago. It was called to discuss the new programs then being planned. Mr. Barber and Mr. Welsh of the board attended, as did the executive director who came from Vancouver for the purpose. Mrs. Lines did not appear for the meeting and we have not heard from her since.

We are most eager to encourage maximum input from members, including Mrs. Lines. We would, in fact, appreciate constructive suggestions from any of your readers. — Henry M. Rosenthal, Chairman, CPAC B.C. Division, Vancouver.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of October 7, 1915

OTTAWA — One hundred school children are on strike at the Gueges boys' school on Murray Street here. They left the school in a body, refusing to receive instruction from two teachers employed by the Ontario government commission. This is the first outbreak resulting from the bilingual school trouble in Ottawa. It arises from the refusal of the boys' original teachers, the Misses Deslages, to cease teaching as ordered by the new government commission, which replaced the old separate school board.

Why Won't Pierre Take Beryl's Economic Advice?

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The question for today: Why is Pierre Trudeau unwilling to give the country strong leadership in economic affairs?

More and more of us — journalists, interest group leaders and ordinary citizens — are turning to invective to underline our disappointment with the prime minister.

Whatever Pierre Trudeau may be, he is intelligent. He is well-briefed. He is mentally quick. He is thoughtful about the objectives of the federal government. A recognition of this array of his qualities makes his behavior in the 14 months since he won a large and renewed mandate even more puzzling.

Why does he keep offering us nice homilies and pocket sermons on the role of man in organized communities?

Why have neither he nor any of his ministers given us an intelligent, intelligible running commentary on our economic situation? A commentary that deals with specifics, not with abstractions such as human nature and moral responsibility?

Why does he give us aphorisms such as: "In a mature society responsibility is not assigned. It is assumed."

Is this the time for logic such as:

"Why does community after community seem incapable of resolving differences, of solving problems, of satisfying its members? In essence, who is at fault?

"Could it be that fault lies nowhere in particular because there is no fault in particular? That our quest adds only frustration to the impatience already present?"

PLUMPTRE
. . . knows what's needed

Those are good questions for an undergraduate course in social ethics. Is it the stuff for a nation concerned? It's intelligent but is it wise? Can you expect most of us either to understand or participate in such philosophical disquisitions? Was this the basis on which the people chose Mr. Trudeau to lead the government, and in leading the government, to give them leadership?

While Mr. Trudeau gave us this kind of stuff the other day, and told us that Ron Basford as minister of justice would set out to make the streets, in Vancouver and elsewhere, safer for us, the head of the Bank of Canada was explaining why that institution moved sharply towards tighter money. No minister, including the prime minister, had anything apt to say about this major decision in monetary policy although Barney Danson, the minister for housing, managed (as usual) to sound confused about the decision's effects.

Meanwhile, another Trudeau appointee, Beryl Plumptre of the Food Prices Review Board, was continuing to provide what we might expect from Mr. Trudeau and colleagues — hard commentary on our economic situation: In analyzing the responsibility for our inflation she asked if unions should demand less, if business leaders should resist rises in wages and salaries and thus bear strikes.

She asked if businessmen should hold or reduce profit margins, put a lid on dividends, and curtail their capacity to expand? Or, she asked: "Is it the responsibility of governments with their own wage and hiring policies ever before the public eye, and with their immense and ultimate power over spending, taxing, money creation and demand management? Who takes the first step? Who should assert leadership?

TRUDEAU
. . . remembers fiasco

In 1969, Mr. Trudeau was badly burned when he took charge in the economic field and deflated the economy to lick inflation. By the time he declared victory, a recession and rising unemployment were proving the victory hollow. Did that failure, and the fiasco of the prices and incomes commission, leave the prime minister so scared that now he's too cautious or too frightened to move?

Or is his strategy to mark time and wait for the American recovery? Wait for the effects of the June budget to be seen? Wait until frustration is so widespread that the government can easily and cleanly introduce the contingency plans for wage and price freezes and controls which it asserts it has had ready for the last four years?

If it is reasonable for the prime minister to talk like a Socrates about where responsibility lies in economic affairs — for each of us, for our interest groups; such as unions and corporations — surely we also need a reasonable and more regular candid commentary on governmental choices from him, even those we shouldn't take.

If his caution, if his terribly difficult questions to us, really means that the responsibility lies outside Ottawa for leadership and solutions, then why doesn't he say so?

It is a legitimate position to take: That the federal government should be wary of changes in economic policy. Let the system work it all out — the universe unfolding.

This might be an unsatisfactory answer to many of us but it is an answer. We haven't had even this, unless it is indirectly and by implication.

Another possibility is that Mr. Trudeau and his colleagues simply have not known what to do for the past year. Again, if this is so, they haven't told us so, or confessed it.

Another possibility is that Mr. Trudeau doesn't believe that our situation is as serious and demanding as most of us have come to think it is. Again, if this is so, he should tell us. It seems to me that this is the real answer to the initial question of this column: That compared to other countries, Mr. Trudeau thinks we're blessed and we've little to panic over.

Who Will Do Boring Jobs?

By BERNARD KAPLAN

Textile mill . . . money the answer?

PARIS — France has banned the further immigration of African and southern Mediterranean workers on the theory that cheap foreign labor is taking jobs away from this country's one million or more unemployed

But the ban is based more on emotion than rational economic fact, as authorities here admit. The plain truth is that most French men and women will not accept the kind of jobs which Algerian, black African and Portuguese emigres have been handling here for at least the past 15 years of economic boom — the dirty, "degrading" and physically onerous tasks in industry and public services. What the government here — and, indeed, elsewhere in Western Europe — has discovered during the past year of recession is that, even when they have been without work for many months, most people will not take jobs as street cleaners, hod carriers or in the paint shops of auto and other manufacturing plants.

Because these jobs exist and need to be done, even in a relatively stagnant economy, black market in emigre labor has again sprung up here. African workers, especially, are known to be entering France in some numbers, in violation of the ban.

The phenomenon has destroyed the long-held premise that foreign workers were needed in countries like France simply because not enough indigenous labor was available to meet the requirments of an unprecedented industrial expansion during the 1960s and early 1970s. But, according to Professor Charles Wisner of the Conservatoire des Arts et Metiers, this may have been a half-truth, at best.

"French industry and society as a whole is only beginning to face up to the fact that a generation has grown up here which may prefer not to work at all rather than to work at jobs considered unpleasant, unsafe or beneath one's self-designated status," he said. "For a long time, the problem could be evaded because economic expansion made it possible to do so.

"But, if the period of accelerated expansion is really coming to an end for Western industrial society as many experts believe, what then? How are people to be made compatible with the work which exists and must be done? It is almost certainly not possible to return to the earlier work ethic. However, a people like the French will never accept the permanent presence of foreigners working here when there are no jobs for themselves — even though they refuse to take those done by the foreigners. The dilemma would seem complete. This may become one of the key economic and social problems of the next decade."

The Giscard d'Estaing government would seem to agree with Professor Wisner. It has set up a program in 15 "pilot" industrial firms designed to make unskilled and unattractive jobs provide greater satisfaction to the people doing them. The $10 millon program may not come up with all the answers, accordng to Labor Minister Michel Durafour but "it ought to give us better understanding than we have at present about where and how to find them."

Durafour, one of the more outspoken figures in the Giscard administration, believes that problem of the unskilled labor is now confronting society with questions similar to those "which must have been raised at the end of the Middle Ages concerning the serfs." Like Wisner, he views it as a "central problem of our time."

He himself is of the school that leans to the belief that the solution basically lies in better remuneration. "In Switzerland," he pointed out, "several cities have succeeded in making street cleaning a job in demand, if not precisely the sort of employ one hopes for for one's children. The way they did it was not complicated. They doubled the street cleaners' salaries, reduced their working hours, gave them the most modern equipment available with which to do their jobs and offered them certain extra benefits, such as free university courses."

Durafour, who has discussed this idea with the municipal authorities of Zurich and other towns where it has been carried out, said that all agree it is less costly than lodging and "inserting into the life of the city" the families of foreigners who would otherwise have to be recruited.

He regards this aspect of the problem as especially acute in France. "On an average, an unskilled manual laborer here is paid one-third less than someone in a comparable job in West Germany," he said. "The problem is aggravated by our overall higher production costs. But, we must find the means to pay more to our unskilled workers without pricing ourselves out of the market. It is obvious that the government must start in its own backyard. The French government is the direct employer of a million manual workers."

The government is often severely reproached for its treatment of its lower categories of workers, for example, people working in the post office. As in many industrial countries, the post office system here has grown into a centre of chronic worker discontent. As recently as 15 years ago, the French postal system was among the most effective in the world. Durafour hopes that a program which will invest approximately $50 million in improved equipment and better pay over the next few years will turn the postal situation around.

France wrestles with immigration

But not everyone agrees with the French minister of labor that money is the complete answer. Wisner pointed out, for instance, that manual work, even when relatively highly paid, has little allure for the better-educated younger generation of today. He parts company with those experts in the labor field who attribute this to youth's dislike of "boring" jobs.

"It is true that today's young people do not like monotonous work," he said. "Nobody ever did. It is simply a myth to believe that their parents and grandparents accepted boring jobs without resistance. That was never the case and the fact that today's young manual worker is going into the world after receiving the equivalent of a high school education, which his father did not have, has very little to do with it."

The real difference, he believes, is that contemporary youth possesses a greater awareness that manual labor means shorter lives and harder lives. "A youth looks at his 50-year-old manual worker father and sees a man who is already growing old and is close to the end of his productive life," said Wisner. "He knows that a schoolmate's father, who is in non-manual employment, is still a comparatively young man at the same age. He does not want to choose the same path for himself."

The statistics bear this out. At 35, a factory worker can figure statistically on another 33 years of life. At the same age, a teacher can look forward to another 41 years. The manual worker in France is also much more likely to have his productive life cut short or impeded by an industrial accident than someone in some other line. A recent goverment medical report stated that in this country "one worker out of two is handicapped in the course of his professional life by accident."

Wisner doubts that the implicit problems involved in persuading people to accept the less alluring manual jobs can be solved principally through government spending to make the work more comfortable and better-paid.

"It will require a wholly new mental attitude among those who have been taught to abhor hard and dirty work, and it will take a long time to achieve this," he said. "But I think it will eventually happen. First of all, because it must. Secondly, because some change of attitude is already detectable.

"Ironically, it is the intelligentsia which is again beginning to find it acceptable, even desirable, to do manual work — the university graduate who becomes a plumber etc. If the past is anything to go by, this attitude will sooner or later begin filtering downward."

This Is a Stick-up

russell baker

My old stick-up man, John, stepped out of the shadows and pointed his gun. "As usual, sir, I'll start with your wallet," he said. I gave it to him, commenting that I was delighted to see he had still not found honest labor.

"Two years now since I've had honest work, sir," he said. "Your watch, please."

"I'm proud of you, John. Your country is proud of you."

"I know, sir."

"It's you and people like you, John, who are helping to stabilize the economy. If everybody who had been out of work for two years suddenly got a job, the present rate of inflation would increase overnight. The American dollar would become worthless."

"Speaking of worthless," said John, "this wallet has only eight dollars in it. You wouldn't be trying to hide a 50-dollar bill in your hose by chance?"

"I want you to stick with it, John, because if you lose faith in being out of work and start demanding that the government do something to create jobs, you will damage America irreparably by increasing federal spending."

"Take off your shoes and socks, sir," said John. "If there's no money in them, at least I can peddle them to a fence."

"I like that, John. Initiative! Knowhow! You don't sit around waiting for a government handout. You get out and do something!"

"The missus says she can't stand having me sitting around the house day and night doing nothing, sir. You'll have to take off the suit. It might still be worth a few dollars."

"You haven't weakened and gone on welfare, have you, John?"

"Heaven forfend, sir," said John. "If I did that, it would drive up the cost of government. There'd be no point in my holding down federal spending by refusing to ask the government to create jobs if I turned around and started collecting welfare. Now, sir, if you'll just go along quietly to your house with me, I'll pick up the television set and silverware."

I was proud of him. He deserved a medal from the government. He would never have accepted it, of course. It would have increased the cost of government.

The whole family was pleased to see John again and hurried about at gunpoint to assemble the valuables. John was deeply touched, particularly by grandmother, who made no fuss at all about surrendering her wedding band.

"I hope you appreciate my position ma'am." he told her.

"Good heavens, John," said grandmother, "it's a privilege to do a little something for our boys who are stabilizing the economy by not pressing harebrained, inflationary schemes to create honest jobs."

"You're a real Republican and a lady, ma'am," said John. "In a few years I'll make it up to you. When President Ford's economic policy restores corporations so they can create honest jobs without wasteful government interference, I'll probably go to work again, and when I do I'll buy you a new ring."

"Don't worry if I'm not around when the president's policy finally begins to work, John," said grandmother. "You'll probably be an old man by that time and have grandchildren of your own to worry about. In the meantime, just keep up the good nonwork."

John said a colleague in economic stabilization would soon arrive in a rental truck, and they would both clear out all the furniture. This appeared to me to be overstepping the bounds of inflation.

"John," I said, speaking to him like a White House economist, "this level of booty-taking is unacceptable."

"The President is always saying the same thing, sir, about the present level of unemployment. It's unacceptable, he says. But he accepts it anyhow. Following his example, sir, I must ask the entire family to step into that closet and to be silent until my colleague and I have cleaned out the house."

He raised his gun persuasively. It was unacceptable, all right, but we accepted it. We are in the closet now waiting for John and his friend to finish. We hope they will work faster than President Ford's economic policy.

A. L. Green Back On TSE Board

Trading in shares of A. L. Green Ltd. resumed at the opening after being halted shortly after 1 p.m. Monday pending announcement that Metropolitan Stores of Canada Ltd. will offer to buy all outstanding common shares of A. L. Green for $1.75 a share. A. L. Green gained 70 cents to $1.60, its highest price this year, on volume of 300 shares. Metropolitan Stores A, which had not traded by 2 p.m., last closed at $13.

General Motors dropped ⅞ to $54⅛, Ashland Oil Canada ½ to $8¾, Union Oil of Canada ½ to $7¾, Moore Corp. ½ to $45⅞ and Standard Broadcasting ½ to $7¼.

Imperial Oil A rose ½ to $24½, Huron and Erie Mortgage Corp. ½ to $22½, Stelco A ⅜ to $30⅛ and Pacific Pete ¼ to $26.

Among mines. Place Development fell ½ to $20, Kerr Addison A ⅛ to $11 and Sherritt Gordon A⅛ to $6½. Teck Corp. A was up 20 cents to $3.70 and United Asbestos 10 cents to $4.80.

PanCanadian Pete gained ⅜ to $16⅛. Canadian Superior ⅜ to $38¾ and Western Decalta Pete ⅛ to $5⅜. American Eagle Pete fell five cents to 40 cents.

New York

New concerns about interest rates and New York City's fiscal future swept over Wall Street, driving prices lower after three straight advancing sessions.

Analysts said some profit-taking was to be expected after the recent rally, which in three days carried the Dow 35.50 points higher. But they said two factors added to the selling:

Indications that the federal reserve board has not eased off on its monetary policy as much as earlier anticipated and a New York court ruling which has temporarily restrained the state comptroller from helping out in the latest save-the-city plan.

Middle South Utilities, steady at $13⅝, and Boise Cascade, off ¾ to $21⅝, were the most-active NYSE stocks.

Other active movers included National Semiconductor, down 1¼ to $46, Xerox 1⅛ to $58⅜, IBM 1⅜ to $199⅝ and International Minerals and Chemicals 1 to $38⅝.

The most-active American Stock Exchange issue, Syntex, dropped ¾ to $32⅛.

Montreal

Prices were mixed in moderate trading at Montreal.

Weston Ltd. dropped ¼ to $17½, Canadian Pacific ⅛ to $13⅝, Alcan Aluminium ⅜ to $21⅛, Interprovincial Pipeline ¼ to $11⅝ and Dome Petroleum ⅛ to $31. IMASCO A rose ¼ to $30¼, Imperial Oil A ½ to $24½ and Pacific Petroleums ¾ to $26¼.

London

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials gained 8.2 to 329.8 at the close.

Canadian issues were fractionally higher in quiet trading.

Inflation Shredding Shopping Lists

MONTREAL (CP) — In the face of continuing inflation, consumers will be forced to eliminate some traditional items from their shopping lists, Lawrence Murphy, an Ottawa economist, predicted Monday.

When items are essential and cannot be eliminated, consumers will increasingly opt for lower-priced and lower-quality merchandise.

Revisions to shopping lists will occur largely because the prices of food and energy will continue to increase. These two items will also continue to gobble up a larger percentage of consumers' incomes, said Murphy, an economist with the Conference Board in Canada.

Prices can be expected to increase substantially with the predicted 11-per-cent inflation rate during most of 1976.

Murphy said expenditures for non-durable items will be sluggish next year.

In the realm of expenditures for durable items, automobile sales were about the only sector which should improve significantly.

Although over-all consumer expenditures are expected to rise, the increase will play a small role in general economic recovery, as has happened following similar economic downturns, he said.

Earlier Monday, two speakers told the 150 delegates that Canada must rely more heavily on sources of energy other than oil and gas, which are non-renewable and rapidly diminishing.

Walter Ward, outgoing president of the association, suggested coal, hydro-power and uranium must be utilized inceasingly as energy sources, especially for the generation of electricity.

A. J. O'Connor, general manager of New Brunswick Power, said solar energy should be further investigated for use in home heating.

The two-day annual meeting ends today.

Losses Blamed On Gov't, Union

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian electrical products are no longer competitive on world markets because of excessive wage demands and government hindrance, the new president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association says.

"It's a great tragedy that the federal government doesn't recognize this," C. G. Maiden said in a statement circulated to reporters attending the association's annual meeting.

"The profit margin for most of olr companies is now so slim that managements see some of their operations as a losing proposition," he said. "This is particularly true in appliance manufacturing."

In a criticism of organized labor, Maiden said "the union practices evolved 30 to 40 years ago don't make sense today.

"The unions are still a political structure and their inflexible attitudes seriously hamper management's ability to eliminate bad practices and raise productivity."

Maiden's criticism of government largely hinged on the Economic Council of Canada's recommendation that free trade policies be adopted.

Industry spokesmen have said free trade policies would open the door to unlimited imports of lower-priced electrical products manufactured in countries with wage rates only a fraction of those in Canada. Canada's domestic industry would be doomed.

Instead of free trade, the federal government should be encouraging expansion, research and development within the electrical manufacturing industry, Maiden said.

Imports of electrical goods in 1974 totalled $2.74 billion, compared with exports of $923 million, he said.

About 150 delegates attended the two-day conference which ends today.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading was active with the market closing strong today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures gained from one to six cents a bushel Tuesday on the Board of Trade under good, mixed support.

The demand was associated largely with reports that farmers are not ridding themselves of their newly harvested grain, preferring to hold the commodity on the farm in hopes of higher prices. Some trade letters noted that farm offerings had slowed down the last two to three days.

Prices were firm to strong on the opening and improved almost steadily through mid-session when some mild profit taking set in. Before th efinal bell there was another profit-taking set in. Before the final trimmed by one third.

Trade was mixed in the major pits and the pace fairly active. There was, however, a slowdown after mid-session.

Gold futures closed with a gain of about $2 an ounce after a very light traded session.

At the close, soybeans were 2½ to 6 cents a bushel higher, Nov. 5.48; wheat 3½ to 4 higher, Dec. 4.22; corn ½ to 3½ higher, Dec. 299¼ and oats ½ to 1¼ higher, Dec. 1.55½.

Inflation Stays In '76 Outlook

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Dominion Bank says Canadians can expect increasing real output throughout 1976 but little relief from inflation and unemployment.

The fall issue of the bank's quarterly publication, Canada's Business Climate, says the real gross national product is expected to rise 5.8 per cent next year after a slight decline in 1975.

The bank's economists say inflation will scarcely change in 1976, remaining close to 10 per cent and unemployment will remain at about 7.25 per cent of the labor force.

The publication says renewed growth will be closely linked to an expected near $1-billion reduction in Canada's current deficit, largely the result of the improvement in the United States economy.

Exports of goods and services will likely climb by four per cent in real terms, it says, and imports will advance two per cent.

As well there will be a six-per-cent real growth in housing outlays, renewed inventory accumulation and increased consumer spending.

It says government must continue to exercise greater fiscal restraint in order to fight inflation.

The bank warns that the continuing trend of sizable wage settlements, which it says have exceeded inflation and productivity gains combined, might prevent Canadian industry from participating fully in the world economy recovery as it gets underway next year.

AIDES CHOSEN FOR MINISTERS

Former Vancouver Sun legislative reporter Michael Graham has been appointed administrative assistant to Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson.

Graham, who resigned from the Sun last week, will start work with the government Oct. 20 and is expected to receive a yearly salary of $19,500.

Robinson will receive a monthly salary of $1,625.

The appointments were made public Monday in cabinet orders which also set a per diem payment of $300 for labor consultant Noel Hall who works occasionally for the government as mediator and industrial inquiry officer.

Cabinet also approved bank guarantees of $75,000 for Chef Ready Ltd. and of $315,000 for B.C. Blackberry Co-op.

Shadow Cabinet Named

Opposition leader Bill Bennett picked his shadow cabinet Monday and came up with a few surprises.

The three recent ex-Liberal converts to Social Credit were all given "portfolios" but not the assignments expected by most observers.

Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) will be the labor and housing critic while Garde Gardom (Vancouver-Point Grey) will keep an eye on recreation and conservation as well as intergovernmental affairs.

Both new Socreds are lawyers and were expected to be top choices as attorney-general critic since there are no other lawyers in the Socred caucus.

But Ed Smith (North Peace River), an insurance underwriter and nine-year Socred MLA, is keeping the spot.

The finance portfolio — a strong possibility for former Liberal Pat McGeer — is shifted from Bennett to Saanich MLA Hugh Curtis.

McGeer (Vancouver-Point Grey), instead, is assigned health and energy but the energy portfolio die not include B.C. Hydro, which falls under the Crown corporations assignment. McGeer has always been a strong Hydro critic, especially of the Columbia River Treaty under the former Socred administration.

Alex Fraser (Cariboo) will be the main Hydro critic as the member responsible for Crown corporations.

Curtis is the new caucus chairman replacing Newell Morrison (Victoria) and Smith remains caucus whip.

NATIONAL RESEARCH COUNCIL OF CANADA
DOMINION ASTROPHYSICAL OBSERVATORY
OBSERVING ASSISTANT

The National Research Council of Canada has a vacancy for an Observing Assistant to assist the Astronomers in obtaining observations, processing of photographic plates and the handling of the 72" and 48" telescops.

Regular Night and weekend work is a requirement of this position.

Preference will be given to those applicants who have had formal Electronic Technical training.

Starting salary of up to $9906 per annum, presently under review.

Speeders Beware

Police will be asked to step up surveillance of speeding motorists in the 1500 and 1600 blocks of Hampshire Road in Oak Bay.

A petition signed by 56 residents asked that the speed limit of 30 miles an hour be reduced or that it be enforced.

A group of residents told council's streets and traffic committee Monday night they were bothered by noise and speed and feared for accidents involving children going to school, especially in the Bowker Creek area where there is a bend in the road.

Ald. Doug McLelland said a 20-mile-an-hour restriction would bo "no help" because it would be ignored by the same motorists who ignore the 30-mile-an-hour restriction.

"I suspect the only way to solve it is by enforcement, by radar and tickets," he said.

TOWN TALK

A riot, according to the Criminal Code, is "an unlawful assembly that has begun to disturb the peace tumultuously."

Town Talk isn't sure whether the term could be applied to that pugilistic display which spoiled Saturday's hockey game at the Memorial Arena, but Mayor Peter Pollen did comment later that he thought the Riot Act could have been read — although he admitted he was unfamiliar with the procedure.

Well, for His Worship's enlightenment we looked up this ancient law and this is what it says:

"A justice, mayor or sheriff . . . who receives notice that, at any place within his jurisdiction, twelve or more persons are unlawfully and riotously assembled together, shall go to that place and, after approaching as near as safely he may do, if he is satisfied that a riot is in progress, shall command silence (wishful thinking in the Memorial Arena?) and thereupon make or cause to be made in a loud voice a proclamation in the following words or to the like effect:

" 'Her Majesty the Queen charges and commands all persons being assembled immediately to disperse and peaceably to depart to their habitations and to their lawful business upon the pain of being guilty to an offence for which, upon conviction, they may be sentenced to imprisonment for life. God Save The Queen'."

So next time, Mr. Mayor, you know what to do. And the best of British luck to you, sir.

Roll the drums, sound the fanfares as Town Talk presents its own nominee for inclusion in Tailor and Cutter magazine's list of the 10 worst-dressed men of 1975.

Always given to interpreting the phrase mix 'n' match in a singularly bizarre manner, Nicolson surpassed himself with the simply terrible outfit he wore at last Friday's swearing-in of new cabinet ministers at Government House.

Unfortunately (or perhaps fortunately) we can't give you a detailed description, for our observers say it wasn't a sight to linger on.

But they do recall with a shudder the sky-blue pants yanked a good six inches above the ankle, revealing creamy-colored socks and brown oxfords. And, oh yes — or oh no — a whitish jacket wih blue pinstripe.

Suffice to say that Nathan Detroit, Good-Time Charlie, Dave the Dude, Bookie Bob and other Damon Runyan characters would have felt not at all out of place if they, too, had been at Government House.

BEIRNES
. . . candidate?

As is their wont, those civic-minded senior citizens who call themselves the James Bay New Horizons have laid on an all-candidates meeting at James Bay United Church on Oct. 31.

Much as we hate to be negative, we in this corner have to ask: What candidates?

Apart from Ald. Mike Young who announced months ago he would seek the mayor's seat, and Ald. Bill Tindall who will offer himself for re-election, not a single candidate has declared any intention of trying for a city council seat in the Nov. 15 municipal election.

(The two other incumbents whose terms expire this year are Ald. Clyde Savage and Ald. Malcolm Anderson. Savage is stepping down after 10 years on council and Anderson says he'll know by Friday, after talking to his stockbroker bosses, what his plans are.)

However, the scuttlebutt at City Hall has it that there are some new faces waiting in the wings, including businesswoman Helen Beirnes, a former president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, and architect Bob Siddall.

No doubt, too, we'll be seeing some of those never-say-die losers from past elections.

Ho hum.

That was some guarantee offered to Victoria's would-be non-smokers by the Quit Centre for the Control of Smoking, which suddenly closed its doors under somewhat mysterious circumstances a few weeks ago.

The document said that if after attending five of the "aversion-conditioning" sessions at the centre, co-operating with the therapist and following all instructions, the smoker is still puffing away, he or she will be "entitled to request a refund in full" of the pre-paid fee.

Not "will receive" a refund, but be entitled to request one.

Big deal.

But that's not all.

To be "entitled," the hapless addict of the weed must certify in writing on that fifth day and not a day later that he is still smoking.

What's more, he has to demonstrate the fact "by smoking and inhaling an entire cigarette in front of a Quit Centre representative."

In other words, if they haven't cured you they went to make darned sure you're still a likely candidate for smoker's cough or worse before they hand you back your money.

The old kill-or-cure syndrome.

Peter Pollen's departure from the mayor's office next month adds punch to at least one local realtor's sales pitch, or so he would have one of his clients believe.

The client talked for months about selling his house, located on property zoned for a single family dwelling. At first, he considered asking $39,000 but with an eye on the market and his thoughts on easy money, his price was at $45,000 when he went to a realtor.

Too low, the realtor said, $52,000 with little trouble. The reason: as soon as Peter Pollen leaves office, the land will be rezoned for multiple-dwelling use.

Apparently, the realtor either doesn't know or isn't telling his client that when Pollen leaves, there'll still be a city council and council as a whole has set a policy against rezoning from single family dwelling use in the area.

Could his projection and inflated appraisal be a just way to get a listing?

Regardless, whatever the client gets for his house will be gravy — he bought it three years ago for $21,000.

Marshall Hall using his TV magnifier on fine print

New Scanner Will Help Near-Blind

An electronic scanner to help partially sighted people to read will be purchased for the Victoria centre of Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

It will be obtained through CNIB women's auxiliary as a memorial to former local director Gloria Sewell, who died shortly after publishing with her husband Ray the autobiographical, House Without Windows.

The auxiliary's main fund-raising effort will be a coffee party and raffle to be held in the centre from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Oct. 24, offering as major prizes a portable television set and paintings.

A closed-circuit TV camera is the heart of the scanner, which costs about $1,600 under the name Visualtek.

For persons with as little as 10 per cent vision it makes possible the recognition of words that would be impossible to read any other way.

The high cost restricts private use of the machines, but an exception is Marshall Hall, 3374 Shelbourne, who has installed a scanner for use in his business as a manufacturer's agent.

Couvelier Runs for Mayor; Attacks Lum on Police Pay

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Mel Couvelier announced today he has resigned as alderman to run against Saanich Mayor Ed Lum Nov. 15 on the issue of "deliberate misrepresentation or incompetence" by Lum in the police pay award.

The announcement split Saanich council, including a comment from Ald. John McDonald that it was unfair of Couvelier to launch his attack just after the mayor had left town on a two-week vacation and was not able to defend himself.

However, Mayor Ed Lum, who is on vacation in Florida, told the Times the police pay award was a non-issue because council had decided to pay the police about the same amount as had been awarded earlier to CUPE municipal workers.

"We passed a provisional budget of a 24 per cent pay increase for the police and the award (of 22.5 per cent) was within that budget," Lum said in a telephone interview.

"We had decided we would not pay them less than the CUPE workers got."

Couvelier launched his attack on Lum Monday afternoon at Saanich council meeting, saying the mayor either deliberately misled council or should have known that council had the power to veto the pay award of 22.5 per cent handed down by the Saanich police commission.

The police award received final ratification July 2 and then it was learned Sept. 23 that council has the power to overrule the police commission. On the latter date, Victoria council received a ruling from the provincial Labor Relations Board that the intent of amendments to the B.C. Police Act was that council would have the final say in wage agreements.

No Way of Knowing–Lum

Lum said Saanich council had no way of knowing before Sept. 23 that the amendments would produce that ruling by the Labor Relations Board. In previous years, any award made by the police board was binding on the council.

Regardless of this uncertainty about the effect of the amendments, however, Lum said, the key issue was whether police should have been granted a lower pay increase than that given to CUPE workers. He said aldermen agreed that the pay increase would be within the ballpark of the CUPE agreement.

The award to CUPE varied with the type of occupation but was around 24 per cent, with laborers getting a 26 per cent pay increase.

In a news conference this morning, Couvelier said his resignation as alderman was effective immediately.

The issue in the Nov. 15 mayoralty election would be incompetent leadership on a number of problems, mainly the Saanich police pay award, he said.

He said a decision by the Labor Relations Board that Victoria council had the power to veto the award by its police board also mentioned that Victoria council had been put on the spot because Saanich had already agreed to pay more than Victoria was offering. He said the LRB report says in effect the Saanich police got a 25 per cent pay increase, not 22.5 per cent, and this was above the provisional budget of 24 per cent.

(The additional pay was the result of promotions to higher pay levels.)

Couvelier said council had the power to veto the award of its police board and should have been told so.

Ald. Roy Wootte said he and Ald. Mary Casilio voted against the police award even though they were led to believe they did not have the power to veto it.

Ald. Joe Bourque said today he voted in favor only because he was told the council had no authority to reject it.

Ald. McDonald said he favored the pay award to the police on the grounds that the police should not be given a salary increase less than was given CUPE workers. He said he fully defended Mayor Lum's position.

Couvelier denied that his attack on Mayor Lum was a behind-the-back affair. He said he wrote a letter to council dated Sept. 23, when the mayor was still in town, saying he would raise the issue of the police pay award at the Oct. 6 council meeting.

Council voted to ask staff for a full report on the background of the pay award and to see if there is grounds for an appeal to the LRB.

Winery Pleads Not Guilty

St. Michelle Wines Ltd., 3948 Quadra, pleaded not guilty in Victoria provincial court today to causing or permitting a discharge of polluting materials into Blenkinsop Creek.

The charge was laid after pollution control officials found a substantial amount of organic material had been spilled into the creek on July 3.

Officials said the pollution could have spread to Swan Lake and caused health and odor problems.

A trial date has been set for Jan. 21 at 10:30 a.m. in Courtroom A, provincial court, 633 Fisgard.

Resthaven Head Off To Toronto

Lloyd Bell, administrator at Resthaven Hospital in Sidney for the past five years, has been named administrator of North York Branson Hospital in Toronto.

The 56-bed hospital in Sidney and the 520-bed Branson hospital, are the two acute care hospitals operated by the Seventh Day Adventists in Canada.

Bell will replace George Rogers, former Resthaven administrator, who is retiring. The new administrator at Resthaven will be Laurie Dunsfield, administrator of the hospital at McBride, east of Prince George.

The Bells will leave for Toronto in about a week.

Resthaven Hospital will eventually be replaced by an acute care wing being planned for the Saanich Peninsula Hospital on Mount Newton Crossroad.

Among proposals for Resthaven once it is no longer providing acute care is to maintain it for care of the elderly or for rehabilitation work.

Dental-Care Plan 'Waste of Money'

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

The British Columbia government's plan to create a dental-care insurance program was knocked Monday by one of the world's foremost experts on preventive dentistry.

"Rather than wasting time and public money on devising a dental-care plan, the B.C. government should direct its efforts on the prevention of dental disease," said Dr. Miles Markley, a noted American dentist who has lectured on preventive dentistry in the United States, Canada, Europe and Australia.

"Attempting to treat the symptoms instead of removing the causes of dental diseases won't cure anything," Markley told the Victoria District Dental Association at a one-day conference at the Empress on Monday.

"It's like giving someone who has a headache an aspirin," said the recipient of the 1975 Outstanding Achievement Award from the American Society of Preventive Dentistry.

Markley, a clinical professor of restorative dentistry at the University of Colorado, urged the B.C. government to fluoridate the province's water supply and teach hygiene and nutrition in the elementary schools.

"Even though fluoride has been known to reduce dental diseases by 65 per cent, there are very few B.C. communities which add it to their water."

"Fluoride is not a drug or a medicine but a food which keeps one from getting dental diseases," he told more than 100 dentists and dental assistants.

Markley said that because of the high consumption of processed foods today, bacterial plaque on teeth is prevalent and must be removed each day if cavities, gum diseases and the loosening of teeth is to be prevented.

Every household, he said, should have a bottle of disclosing tablets. When chewed and swished between the teeth for about 30 seconds, the dye is these tablets stains any plaque on the teeth.

High-sugar diets is another cause of dental decay and should be avoided, Markley continued.

He cited an example of an 18-month-old child — "the worst case of sugar overdose I have ever seen."

"The parents told me that whenever the child cried, they gave him a soother dipped in Coca-Cola syrup . . . the child's teeth had consequently decayed clear down to the gums."

Tuition Fee Increase?

Camosun College council next month will consider a tuition fee increase which would add about $130,000 revenue to the hard-pressed school.

Proposed is a doubling of the $150 a year paid by vocational students and a $50 a year increase in tuition for academic technical students now paying $250.

Dr. Hal Knight, chairman of the council, said today the college is faced with a decision to increase the fees paid by students or "sock it to the taxpayer again next year," by increasing the mill rate.

The fee increase "lightens the load" for taxpayers, he said.

The council will meet Nov. 3.

Knight said the general impression among college councillors is that there is some justification for the increase.

Fee hikes, have been widely discussed with students and "it doesn't seem to be a concern. There seems to be a lot more money around."

Proposal prepared by college principal Dr. Grant Fisher equalizes fees paid for both academic technical and voactional students and the $300 tuition is still far below tuition ($428) at University of Victoria, said Knight.

For students in need of help there is a variety of funds available, he added.

Flames Force Fire Drill Delay

A fire drill at Belmont Fisher Secondary School held in connection with Fire Prevention Week had to be postponed Monday . ... because of a fire in the school.

Langford fire chief Al Lequesne said today he was driving to the school at about 1 p.m. to conduct the drill when he spotted black smoke rising from behind the building.

He thought nothing of it. The smoke was coming from an area near the school's incinerators.

But, as he was trying to find a parking space in front of the school, a group of students called him to come to the rear of the building.

Lequesne discovered a wall of the school's spray paint shop in flames.

While another fireman who had accompanied him for the drill raced back to the fire hall to get the truck and turn in the alarm, Lequesne remained.

Twelve volunteers were at the scene within minutes but not before fire had engulfed the old army hut housing the spray shop and had spread through an open fire door into a storage area. There its progress was halted.

Lequesne estimated loss of equipment and building at between $8,000 to $9,000.

He believed the fire was caused by an electrical failure possibly in the spray shop's exhaust fan motor.

The chief said the school had tried to reach the fire department by phone but kept getting a busy signal. A teacher was apparently just leaving to try to find another telephone when Lequesne arrived.

"There must have been something wrong with their phone system," he said. "We have a multi-number line to accept emergency calls and as far as I know it was working."

CIA-RCMP Bomb Link?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Representative Ronald Dellums (Dem. — Calif.) says he is studying allegations, backed up by some supporting documents, that the CIA and perhaps the RCMP were linked to the April, 1972, bombing of the Cuban trade mission in Montreal.

In a statement issued through an aide, Dellums said he has been told by "Citizens of the United States and Canada" that the bombing may have been a diversion carried out by the two agencies as means of gaining access to the building unnoticed in order to seize documents they wanted.

The aide stressed, however, there is no assurance whatever that the charges can, in any way, be fully substantiated. Dellums has asked the House of Representatives intelligence committee to undertake a full study of the evidence in his posession, the aide added.

The intelligence committee, which is looking into the activities of the CIA and of which Dellums is a member, is expected to look at the charges later this week.

Meanwhile U.S. intellegence experts said today they were caught flat-footed by the military coup that overthrew the Portuguese government in April, 1974.

Keith Clark, national intelligence officer for western Europe, summed up the postmortum in testimony before the house select committee on intelligence.

"No one predicted a coup on 25 April, and no one provided in the period before 25 April a full picture of the plans, program, ideological orientation and different philosophies of the members of the armed forces movement."

Indian Children To Keep Status

OTTAWA (CP) — An Indian child does not lose his special status if adopted by non-Indian parents under British Columbia adoption laws, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled in a unanimous judgment today.

To say otherwise would exclude Indian children from the right to become adopted, the court said in dismissing an appeal by the natural parents of an Indian boy removed from his parents by B.C. authorities in 1970. The boy, now eight, was placed with non-Indian foster parents, who later decided to adopt him.

The adoption was opposed by the natural parents, who said the boy should be brought up by his aunt and uncle, both Indians. They argued that the Indian Act makes the original family tie the essence of Indian status and adoption by non-Indians would destroy the tie and the status.

The B.C. child welfare department and the foster parents argued that was not true. They were joined in the fight by the federal, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Ontario governments because the case had possibilities for national precedent.

A B.C. Supreme Court judge originally dismissed the petition for adoption, saying that the provincial adoption act was inconsistent with the Indian Act. However, the B.C. Court of Appeal later overruled this and granted the adoption order.

Yorke To Seek Seat

A Victoria businessman who is "willing to make unpleasant decisions" needed to improve the education system has announced he will seek a seat on the Greater Victoria school board.

Peter Yorke, 39, manager of the brokerage firm Bongard Leslie and Co. Ltd., said today that spiralling education spending must be halted and the permissive education system, tightened up.

"You just cannot keep on increasing teacher salaries — the major portion of education budgets — by 15 per cent every year," said Yorke.

The candidate feels that either the education offerings should be pared or there should be fewer better-paid teachers.

"There are some of the decisions that have to made, no matter how unpleasant and I'm a businessman that's willing to make them."

Schools, he also said, should be exercizing more authority and offering children models for behavior.

Also in the running for four two-year terms are John Young and trustees Peter Bunn and Daphne Temple who have said they will fight to keep their seats. Former trustee Lavinia Greenwood is also expected to announce her candidacy soon.

Trustee Phil Perry has said he will not seek re-election and trustee Dr. Hal Knight will announce next week whether he will run again.

Esquimalt Approves $500,000 NIP Plan

Esquimalt council has approved a committee recommendation that the municipality take part in the federal-provincial $500,000 Neighborhood Improvement Program.

Ald. Conrad Lundgren, chairman of the planning, zoning and housing committee, meeting Monday, explained that the $500,000 would be financed on a cost-sharing basis. The federal government would provide $250,000, the provincial government $125,000 and the municipality $125,000.

"That means that we would receive a 75 cent grant on every dollar we spent," Lundgren said.

But council turned down all other major committee recommendations: to establish a heritage advisory committee; to support a petition that the entrance and exit to a proposed apartment building at the north end of Fleming Street to be restricted to Craigflower Road, and to prepare a bylaw to enable council to grant exemptions to the existing Gasoline Service Station Hours bylaw so that Gulf Oil may be granted a permit to operate its service station at 944 Craigflower Road on a 24-hour basis.

Mayor Art Young led the fight against the establishment of a bylaw to create a heritage advisory committee to catalogue the municipality's historic buildings.

"We don't need a para-advisory committee," Young said. "I feel we can make our own decisions."

The mayor added that if council designated heritage buildings, it was obligated to offer owners their market value rather than lock them into the designation that usually freezes major exterior renovations.

Young also led the opposition against the petition objecting to the use of Fleming Street for access to a proposed 50-unit apartment building.

"The decision to use Fleming Street was made for the good of Esquimalt as a whole," Young said.

"The city should follow the recommendation of the city engineer and police department who know what is safe for the city," he said.

Most outspoken against the new gas station hours bylaw was Ald. Lundren.

"There will be some point in time when we are going to have a quota of 24-hour stations, then we'll have to stop granting 24-hour permits ... I'm opposing the recommendation for the sake of equal competition," Lundgren said.

"Small gas owners already have a bad enough time against the large gas chains as things are."

Ald. Robert Peden's point was that there are already several 24-hour gas stations in Victoria and Esquimalt does not need one.

COMMUNITY PLAN

A community plan for Colwood, Langford and Metchosin is creeping closer, with the next public meeting on the subject likely mid-November, regional planner Peter Hammer said today.

The planning department is drafting discussion papers on such aspects as open space and conservation, employment areas, transportation, sewer services, residential neighborhoods and housing types, he said.

These will be taken to the Capital Regional Board meeting Oct. 15.

With the board's blessing, the idea is to then take these papers to the public and hold "workshops" on each subject, giving residents of the so-called western community a chance to zero in on specifics.

Hammer said he hopes the public meetings related to drafting the community plan can be completed before the year end and the planning department can take a completed plan to the board in January or February.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

The Empress Lost Her Coat...

NEW YORK (UPI) — The mystery of the missing imperial coat has ended happily, much to the relief of embarrassed secret service agents and New York police.

Security was tight when Japanese Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako drove to Gracie Mansion, residence of New York Mayor Abraham Beame, for lunch Monday.

Police "wonder dogs" trained to detect explosives sniffed bushes all along the royal couple's route through Manhattan's streets.

Secret service agents and uniformed police, concerned over Saturday's arrest of a New York couple suspected of plotting to assassinate Hirohito, were out in force.

But when the Imperial couple got up to leave the mansion at the end of the lunch, Empress Nagako's elegant beige silk coat appeared to have disappeared.

"It must be upstairs ... no downstairs," a dozen confused city officials shouted, racing up and down the mansion staircase. "Where is the coat? Where is the coat?"

The Empress remained inscrutable throughout the affair and calmly left without the coat.

But it wasn't necessary. The coat finally turned up — in the hands of the Empress' lady-in-waiting.

Japanese sources said the lady-in-waiting had been carrying the coat all the time. She didn't understand English and had no idea what all the hullabaloo was about, the sources said.

Ship for Charles

LONDON — The Royal Navy today announced the appointment of Prince Charles to the command of his first ship.

The heir to the British throne will take command of H.M.S. Bronington, a 300-ton minesweeper based on Scotland's east coast, early next year.

He will be in charge of four officers and 33 seamen, a navy spokesman said, but will retain his present rank of lieutenant.

The prince, who has served four years in the navy, is currently attending a lieutenant's course at the Royal Naval college at Greenwich.

SAN FRANCISCO — Attorney F. Lee Bailey doesn't believe criminal law is a team sport. Today, he is Patricia Hearst's top defence counsel.

Terence "Kayo" Hallinan, 38, a supporter of radical causes since his student days and the original leader of her lawyers, withdrew Monday from Hearst's defence, saying he was no longer needed.

LONDON — Air Vice-Marshal David George Evans, a Canadian from Windsor, Ont., is to become Vice-Chief of the air staff in the Royal Air Force.

LONDON — Margot Fonteyn, 56, after a three-year absence, will return to the Royal Ballet in January to dance a full length Romeo and Juliet with Rudolf Nureyev.

The Royal Ballet said Monday they will give three performances of Kenneth MacMillan's production of the classic on Jan. 5, 6 and 7.

LONDON — Gen. Sir Barry Tuzo, a former commander of British troops in Northern Ireland's guerrilla war, was named Monday as new deputy supreme allied commander in Europe.

He takes up the appointment in March next year.

WASHINGTON — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will make his eighth visit to China Oct. 19 to arrange details for President Ford's first trip to Peking later this year.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, 26, the Manson cult member accused of attempting to murder President Ford, has asked the Supreme Court to reduce her $350,000 bail.

EDMONTON — Norman Gladstone Forester, 77, of Edmonton, a member of Canada's aviation hall of fame, died Saturday.

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen and Irish Foreign Minister Garret FitzGerald discussed a variety of subjects Monday during a one-day visit by the latter.

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Rock 'n' roll singer Fabian, teenage heart-throb of the 1950s, was booked on felony wife beating charges Monday night and held on $500 bail.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Boris Amarantov, one of the Soviet Union's best known pantomime actors, says he has renounced his citizenship and wants to emigrate to the west.

LOS ANGELES — Pop singer John Denver is returning to television with a holiday special for ABC entitled Rocky Mountain Christmas.

The show will be filmed in Denver's home territory of Aspen, Colo., with Goldie Hawn and Olivia Newton-John as guests.

LOS ANGELES — The real Mike Connors will stand up in a two-hour television movie aimed at a future series.

Ben Roberts and Ivan Goff, producers of the long-running Mannix, have recast the star in a film to be called Ohannion. It will concern an Armenian-American adventurer named Ohannion, which is Connors' real name.

Mannix, cancelled last season although still high in the ratings, will reappear on CBS opposite the Johnny Carson Show.

Negligence Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and criminal negligence were laid Monday against George Jacklin, 56, in the traffic death Sunday of a 76-year-old woman. Jacklin is to appear in court Oct. 15.

JUST FOR THE RECORD

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Retired St. Louis steel company owner Nat Wolkind wants to be remembered when he's gone.

"In those newspaper death columns all you see is that a man died," he said. "There's nothing said about him, in most cases."

Wolkind is 83, healthy and lives with his wife of 50 years. But he regrets having no children, brothers or sisters to remember him when he dies. He said he doesn't want to become just another name in the newspaper obituary columns.

So Wolkind, who retired in 1951, has been doing something about it. For the past two years he's been keeping the funeral home where he made arrangements for his services and burial updated on his life.

"About once a week, I get an envelope of stuff," said an employee of the funeral chapel. "He sends a basic biography and other material about his life and philosophy and then he adds to it occasionally when he gets involved in a new activity."

Wolkind said he also has sent the biographical material to about 20 friends and the newspapers.

"I've got enough stuff on Mr. Wolkind now to fill a steamer trunk," said the chapel employee.

"A lot of people make pre-arrangements, but no one I ever heard of does it to the extent Mr. Wolkind does."

New Twist For Turkey

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — John Lamb hopes to use artificial insemination to come up with a new Thanksgiving delicacy.

He's trying to crossbreed turkeys with peacocks. The latter won residence rights in Lamb's backyard in a city court suit against zoning officials.

"I've raised birds all my life," said Lamb, 48. "I've crossed all kinds of crazy things so I know it can be done."

LION'S SHARE TO END

BROOKFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Lord Sparks, a lion who has sired 19 cubs, is going to have a vasectomy because the Brookfield Zoo can't affort to feed his growing family, zoo officials said Monday.

Dr. Golbert Boese said Lord Sparks will be sterilized this week after which "he will be able to do his thing but will be unable to fertilize."

"Doing this to Lord Sparks is an economic move as well as helping in a space problem at the zoo. It costs $900 a year just to feed one lion," Boese said.

Chynoweth Would Meet With Pollen

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Western Canada Hockey League president Ed Chynoweth says that "if there is a problem with hockey in Victoria," he would be happy to sit down with Mayor Peter Pollen in an effort "to seek out a solution."

But Chynoweth declared there "are proper channels" and he said it was "unfortunate" that the mayor of Victoria had to become personally involved in Saturday's league game at Memorial Arena.

A 20-minute brawl in the second period of the game between the Cougars and Calgary Centennials incensed the mayor. At the game to drop the puck for the traditional opening faceoff, Pollen left his seat during the fighting and went to the Victoria players' bench to engage Cougar coach Pat Ginnell in a heated argument.

The mayor later branded the players "a pack of animals" and said he intends to bring up the matter of hockey brawls at today's council meeting.

Chynoweth, speaking from his office in Saskatoon, said Monday: "I can sympathize with the man and I respect his position and office. However, there are proper channels, the first being the rink and Ginnell, and then this (WCHL) office.

"If our hockey is as barbaric as he thinks it is, then we have a problem. I don't think it is and I can't judge it from here. But if the mayor thinks we have a problem, I'd be happy to sit down and discuss it with him."

Chynoweth also said "the media is giving us a lot of advertising about the high penalty counts" in early-season games.

"It's high because of instruction from me. I've given orders to all our referees that if players don't stop fighting, they are to be thrown out of the game. It only takes a few misconducts to run the penalty total up."

Chynoweth said he didn't know what action, if any, will be taken "until I've studied the referee's report and have had a talk with both coaches."

Pollen reaffirmed Monday he still is determined to stop "the mindless animal behaviour" in Memorial Arena.

He planned to suggest a meeting with Ginnell and arena manager John Bate to discuss possible moves to counter the violence.

He said there are other measures which could be taken, including increased police patrols at games with charges of assault being brought against on-ice offenders.

Ginnell, in Calgary for the start of a two-week road trip, couldn't be reached for comment.

Cairns Sent Down

Times News Services

One former Victoria Cougar was among the victims of last-minute moves Monday as coaches prepared for the start of the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association regular seasons.

Don Cairns, who scored 33 goals for Victoria in the Western Canada Hockey League last year, was sent down by Kansas City Scouts of the NHL to Springfield Indians of the American League.

Mel Bridgman, the No. 1 draft in the NHL last spring, is still with Philadelphia Flyers while defenceman Rick Lapointe remains with Detroit Red Wings.

Defenceman Kim Clackson and winger Peter Morris are with Indianapolis Racers and Edmonton Oilers, respectively, of the WHA.

One of the WCHL's top goalies last year, former Regina Pat Ed Stapiowski, was sent down by the NHL St. Louis Blues to Providence of the AHL.

Blues learned they will be without the services of winger Jerry Butler. Butler broke a bone in his foot and will be out of action about a month.

Former NHL great Frank Mahovlich, now with the WHA Toronto Toros, cracked a bone in an ankle in practice and will miss two weeks.

New England Whalers, who open their WHA season Saturday against Houston Aeros, cut three players Monday. Centres Bob Charlebois, John Danby and defenceman Marty Gatemen were sent to Cape Cod of the North American League.

Pittsburgh Club Farms Out Four

PITTSBURGH (AP) Pittsburgh Penguins have cut four players from their National Hockey League roster and assigned them to their Hershey farm team in the American League.

Reassigned were defenceman Denis Owchar and Mario Faubert, who has been sidelined since the first week of training camp with an appendectomy, and forwards Jacques Cossette and Wayne Bianchin.

League Keeps Seals Alive

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Hockey League has provided $600,000 in working capital to help Mel Swig take the debt-ridden California Seals off its hands.

The league's owners provided the cash to help Swig purchase the franchise, which league president Clarence Campbell claims has been costing the NHL $10,000 a day to keep in business.

The governors received a report on the arrangements a 10-member group headed by Swig had made to purchase the Oakland-based franchise, and Campbell said "all stations are go."

The Seals open the season in Atlanta against the Flames on Wednesday night.

"We have no problems that I am aware of," Campbell said in an interview.

The sale to Swig's group was announced last July 28. But the group subsequently had difficulty assembling the $1.5-million guarantee required by the league for the franchise.

At an NHL meeting last Thursday in Montreal, Swig's group posted a $100,000 bond promising to fulfil the agreement.

"Up until the meeting on Thursday, they had the shorts for $600,000," Campbell explained. "If they hadn't come up with it, if there hadn't been a method procured to come up with it, they wouldn't have operated.

"We would just have wound up the operation and that would have been it."

Campbell said NHL secretary James D. Cullen is going to Oakland at once to conclude the documentation with Swig's bank. When that has been done, Swig will take over the Seals.

The Seals have been money-losers since they joined the NHL in its first round of expansion in 1968. The league bought the club for $6.5-million in 1974 from its last owner, baseball owner Charles O. Finley.

As part of the latest transaction, Swig must assume the rest of the league's debt to Finley, about $4.5-million to be paid off during a five-year period.

Swig already has received approval from San Francisco officials to build an 18,000-seat arena in that city in two years as a new home for the Seals.

Campbell said both the governors and Swig believe the $600,000 working capital is needed to operate the franchise.

Anderson, Shaw Win

Dale Shaw of Glen Meadows and Eileen Anderson of Royal Colwood retained their over-all titles as the Victoria and District women's Harris-Erickson competition ended Monday at Victoria Golf Club.

Miss Shaw kept the low gross title in a competition which tabulated the best six out of 12 rounds. Mrs. Anderson repeated as the low net winner. Flo McIntyre of Gorge Vale and Miss Shaw were second and third, respectively, in the net competition.

In the final 18-hole round, Miss Shaw took low gross honors by carding a 79 while Pat Derry of Royal Colwood collected net laurels with a 74.

Boxla Playoff Dates Announced

EDMONTON (CP) — Dates and locations for the 1976 national lacrosse championships have been announced following a meeting between the Canadian Lacrosse Association and the Commonwealth Games Foundation. Sept. 10, 1976, is to be the starting date for the Mann Cup and Minto Cup finals, while the President's Cup, the Founder's Cup and the midget championship will be contested during the Labor Day weekend. The peewees will play in August.

Landmark in NHL

NEW YORK (CP) — President Clarence Campbell says a new five-year collective agreement is a "real landmark for the National Hockey League."

The owners of the 18 NHL teams and the NHL Players Association (NHLPA) announced jointly at a Monday luncheon at Madison Square Garden that all players now have the option of signing contracts with or without option clauses.

The players accepted the owners' rights to equalization or compensation from an NHL team that acquires the service of a player who has played out his option.

The joint announcement described the pact as "sweeping" and the first time in professional sports history that equalization has been recognized by the players and achieved through collective bargaining.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the players' association, explained it took more than 12 months of hard bargaining before the agreement came into being .The owners let him do most of the talking.

The agreement is retroactive to Sept. 15 and ends Sept. 14, 1980.

The players also accepted the principle of compulsory arbitration by Judge Ed Houston of Ottawa to settle disputes.

At a news conference, Eagleson said the compensation and option clause have been accepted for five years on the understanding the agreement ends in the event of a merger between the NHL and World Hockey Association.

The player has the right after his option expires to go to any NHL club and obtain employment. He also has the right to jump to the WHA.

Earlier this spring, there was a chance the NHLPA would sue the NHL under United States anti-trust laws, based on the compensation clause adopted by such other sports as basketball and football. That clause is being challenged in the courts by football and basketball players.

There are several differences between hockey contracts and those of other sports, Eagleson said.

Now, every player who signs a contract with an NHL club has a no-cut contract. If he signs for five years, he gets his five-year salary.

If he is injured during the term of his contract, his salary must be paid full even if he cannot play.

The agreement also gives players 50 per cent of the income from international games. Eagleson said there is a distinct possibility of a series between the Stanley Cup champions and the Soviet Union late next year.

The agreement increases pension benefits to $750 from $500 a year of service, with the payers using half of their share of international hockey revenue to beef up the pension fund. They would collect their regular salaries during international competition.

The agreement also gives the players two non-voting seats on the NHL rules committee and increased slightly the per-diem travel allowances and playoff, trophy and all-star game money in each year of the agreement.

Pit Martin of Chicago Black Hawks, president of the NHLPA, said the players made certain concessions, but "not without getting something in return."

Eagleson and Martin led an NHLPA negotiating team that included Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers, Syl Apps of Pittsburgh Penguins and Ed Johnston of St. Louis Blues.

The owners were represented by Charles Mulcahy of Boston Bruins, Bill Wirtz of Chicago, Ed Snider of Philadelphia, Bruce Norris of Detroit Red Wings, Walter Bush of Minnesota North Stars, John Wilcox of Atlanta Flames, James Cullen of St. Louis and Weston Adams, then with Boston but out of his post under the new ownership.

The option rule allows players to negotiate contracts without an option clause. It that event, the player would become a free agent at the end of his contract and be free to make his own deal without compensation from his original team.

Reds Close In on Title But Won't Look Ahead

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cincinnati Reds can clinch their third title of the decade in baseball's National League tonight and take another step toward the World Series triumph that has eluded them for 35 years.

"World Series? I'll think about that if we get there," Reds' manager Sparky Anderson said as he awaited the third and perhaps final game with Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Reds, who'll pitch Gary Nolan against Pirate rookie John Candelaria, dominated two games in Cincinnati, 8-3 and 6-1.

They pounded the ball at a .348 clip, allowed just 13 Pirate hits, and stole 10 bases in 10 tries. Joe Morgan's four steals and the Reds' team total are already records for a league playoff.

The Pirates, league leaders in home runs, have yet to hit one in the playoffs. They're batting .203 as a team, and none of their pitchers has lasted more than four innings.

"We expect that to change here," manager Danny Murtaugh said Monday from his rocking chair.

Cincinnati won its last World Series in 1940 under Bill McKechnie. That was seven years before Reds' catcher Johnny Bench was born.

"The series is the goal of every team, but there's no way we can look past the Pirates," said Bench, one of the few Reds without a hot bat. He has one hit so far in the playoffs.

The Reds lost to New York Yankees in the 1961 World Series, and they were disappointed by Baltimore Orioles in 1970 and Oakland A's in 1972.

"We've never gone into the playoffs with a team as good as this one," said Pete Rose of the Reds.

Murtaugh remained mum on whether he planned any lineup changes, including a shift from Manny Sanguillen to Duffy Dyer behind the plate in a bid to stop the Cincinnati running.

"Right now, I haven't made any decision on what I will do," said Murtaugh.

Morgan absolved Sanguillen and said it makes no difference to him who catches.

"We're stealing off their pitchers,'' Morgan said. "With me, once I get that lead and take off, no catcher is going to throw me out."

"Cincinnati has stolen bases all year," said Sanguillen. "I am not embarassed. I just wish I had a cannon."

A's Gamble On Holtzman

OAKLAND (AP)—For Oakland A's, whose three-year championship reign could end tonight, it's time to gamble.

"I might be really sharp, or I might not be able to throw the ball 60 feet," admitted Ken Holtzman, left-hander who lost the opener in baseball's American League playoffs in Boston and will be pitching against the Red Sox tonight with two days rest.

"The more I thought about it, the more I felt we just had to go with our best," said A's manager Alvin Dark, whose world champions are down 2-0 in the best-of-five series.

"If we lose now, there's no tomorrow," he added, pulling out baseball's most worn-out post-season saying.

He chose 18-game winner Holtzman, knocked out in the seventh inning of Saturday's 7-1 loss at Boston over right-hander Dick Bosman, 11-6, who was the tentative third-game starter as of late Sunday.

Bosman's last start was 10 days ago and he made a brief relief appearance in the playoff opener. Holtzman faces Rick Wise, 19-12.

Boston manager Darrell Johnson watched his team go through a relaxed and restricted workout Monday at Oakland Coliseum while Dark wrestled with the A's pitching dilemma.

The infield remained covered to protect it from a light, steady rain and the forecast called for the possibility of more today.

No team in either league has ever won a playoff after losing the opening two games.

"They're favorites now: there's no doubt about that," said A's captain Sal Bando. "But I honestly feel we can win three in a row."

Starting Assignment For Ex-Bruin Laxton

By The Canadian Press

The National Hockey League launches its 59th season tonight with a game between Pittsburgh Penguins, one of the 1974-75 playoff teams and Washington Capitals, the losingest team last year in league history.

The schedule gets under way in earnest Wednesday with Chicago Black Hawks at New York Rangers, New York Islanders at Kansas City Scouts, California Seals at Atlanta Flames, Los Angeles Kings at Montreal Canadiens, St. Louis Blues at Detroit Red Wings and Vancouver Canucks at Minnesota North Stars.

In Monday's NHL exhibition games, Boston Bruins tied Philadelphia Flyers 2-2 and California Seals topped Vancouver Canucks 6-3.

In a World Hockey Assocation exhibition game, Phoenix Roadrunners edged San Diego Mariners 4-3.

Pittsburgh coach Mark Boileau said Monday he will start rookie goaltender Gordon Laxton, a former New Westminster Bruin. The Penguins' first draft choice, the 25-year-old Laxton averaged 2.31 goals over the exhibition season. In Saturday's 3-3 tie with the Islanders, Laxton was credited with 35 saves.

Boileau's decision to start Laxton means either Michel Plasse or Gary Innes, last year's goaltenders, will be out of uniform tonight.

Meanwhile, Washington coach Milt Schmidt expressed nothing but optimism over his team's chances this season.

"We had a very competitive camp," said Schmidt who was the third man to coach the Capitals last year. "The team has a very positive attitude."

Suhmidt said his team will have to improve tremendously in over-all defence. Washington allowed 446 goals last season on its way to an 8-67-5 mark, also a league record.

A power-play goal by rookie Barry Smith gave the Bruins their tie with the Flyers, playing their fourth game in as many nights. Don Marcotte had the other Boston goal while Andre Dupont and Mel Bridgman scored for Philadelphia.

Pro Soccer's Indoor Play Going Over

SEATTLE (AP) — North American Soccer League general managers have recommended the league continue indoor play next year on a tournament basis.

The recommendation was made Monday by representatives of the 20 clubs who attended the NASL annual general meeting. It will be considered by the owners who begin two days of meetings in Seattle on Wednesday.

Tampa Bay, Fla., was recommended as the host for the indoor championship final to be played next March. Tampa Bay Rowdies, a 1975 expansion franchise, reached the final of the NASL's first indoor tournament in San Francisco last March and won the outdoor championship in San Jose in August.

Esquimalt Runs To Third Win

Esquimalt again made off with the team victory while Debbie Scott of Claremont and Jon Smith of Oak Bay nailed down the individual wins in Greater Victoria high school cross-country races Monday at Willows Beach.

Esquimalt, which has won all three races this season, placed three harriers in the top six of the girls' 1.4-mile race on a course set up by host Oak Bay. Esquimalt also had two runners in the top six of the boys' 3.1-mile race.

Miss Scott won in eight minutes 52 seconds and Smith finished first in 16:18.

Finishing behind Miss Scott, Sharon Doherty of Esquimalt (9:04), Julie Rainey of Belmont (9:08), Cheryl Matthews of Esquimalt (9:16), Peggy Nelson of Dunsmuir (9:48) and Carole Pickard of Esquimalt (9:54).

Behind Smith were Bob Noble of Esquimalt (16:27), Dave Whitehead of Claremont (16:56), Robert Poole of Mt. Douglas (16:58), Chris Finding of Oak Bay (17:21) and Sean Cochlan of Esquimalt (17:26).

Victoria will host the next meet Tuesday at 4 p.m. at Heywood Avenue Prak.

U.S. Residence for Czech Netter

Times News Service

The U.S. immigration and naturalization service has granted Czechoslovakian tennis player Martina Navratilova permanent resident status.

She originally had requested polital asylum. However, INS commissioner Leonard Chapman said Monday in Washington her case was handled routinely as an application for permanent residence. This is usually done when the applicant is eligible under regular immigration procedures.

Elsewhere in tennis:

Ilie Nastase of Romania did not play in an International Grand Prix tennis tournament in Madrid Monday on the orders of his government, said Swedish star Bjorn Borg.

Borg said Nastase received a telegram from his government Saturday telling him not to go to Madrid "because of the political situation in Spain."

There have been widespread protests throughout Europe over the recent execution of five Spanish guerrillas.

Ivan Molina and Jairo Velasco have not been included on the Colombian team that will meet Canada in a Davis Cup elimination series Oct. 17-19 in Montreál.

A spokesman for the Colombian Tennis Federation said economic factors were behind the decision not to include the pair, who helped Colombia reach the North American zone final last year. He did not elaborate.

The team named Monday includes Alvaro Betancur, Orlando Agudelo, Javier Restrepo and Carlos Eduardo Gomez.

Briefly: Jimmy Connors downed Sandy Mayers 6-1, 6-0 to win the singles final of the $50,000 Island Holidays pro tournament in Kaanapali, Hawaii . . . Arthur Ashe and Roscoe Tanner of the U.S. beat England's Roger Taylor and Buster Mottram 6-1, 1-6, 6-4, to win the Association of Tennis Players Nations Cup in Kingston, Jamaica . . .

Chris Evert trimmed Cynthia Doerner 6-1, 6-3 to capture the singles crown at the $50,000 Mission Viejo Women's Pro Tournament in Mission Viejo, Calif . . . May Sutton, Bundy, the first American to win a Wimbledon championship, has died of cancer. She was 88 .

AND ALSO: Billy Sullivan former president of the New England Patriots, said he has purchased controlling interest of the National Football League team for $6.3 million . . . Casey Stengel, who died one week ago, was buried in Glendale, Calif . . . Two-time U.S. national champion Kenny Roberts drove his Yamaha to victory in a $60,000 motor cycle race at Ontario Motor Speedway in California.

Nanaimo Offers Test For All Club Finalists

Nanaimo Golf Club's second annual "Tournament of Champions" puts extra meaning into club championship performances on Vancouver Island.

Each club champion and runnerup, along with two top juniors, will be invited to Nanaimo on Oct. 25.

The emphasis is on team play. The best three of four scores will determine, unofficially, Vancouver Island's top club players.

Gorge Vale and Victoria are the first clubs in the district able to present their lineup of champions.

Cec Ferguson retained Gorge Vale's championship Sunday by defeating Jeff Jones 2 and 1 in an abbreviated finale. Sunday morning's rain, plus Ferguson's participation in the Winspear Trophy matches at Glen Meadows in the afternoon, reduced the final, normally 36 holes, to 18.

Carl Schwantje, George Bigelow, junior champion David Watt and Ken Tekano qualify as Victoria's representatives.

Schwantje, like Ferguson, made it two straight as a club champion by defeating Bigelow 8 and 7 in Saturday's 36-hole playoff. Schwantje came up with a two-over 72 in the morning round and was even for the 11 holes played in the afternoon to prevent Bigelow from winning the club title for a 13th time.

Bob Hunt defeated Al Senior in the Uplands finale the previous weekend while the junior championship still hasn't been settled.

The downpour forced Colwood finalists Laurie Kerr and Bruce Pelmore to reschedule their playoff to next week. Glen Meadows' final, between Reg Effa and Marty Richards, also had been set back because of the Winspear Trophy matches.

Lee Haskell, Brian Gandy and Fred Worthington reached the fours of Cedar Hill's club championship. Jim Cook and Cy Spaven will play off later this week to determine the remaining semi-finalist.

Barnes shot sub-par golf, but still bowed 4 and 3 to Haskell. Lee was five under for the 15 holes played while Barnes was one under.

As reported Monday, the Winspear Trophy wound up in the hands of the amateurs, and they'll do well if they continue to keep Grant Milliken of George Vale and Mike Gray of Uplands as a team.

Milliken and Gray have teamed up for three straight years, and are only four over par for their three rounds at Glen Meadows.

And, incidentally, there will be extra incentive for the point collectors next year. The top point scorer will be presented with a replica of the main trophy as his reward for performances in Island tournaments.

SHORT CHIPS: Victoria assistant Doug Mahovlic is planning to join Uplands' Brian Carbery on the Florida winter circuit . . . Dan Robb is filling in on a temporary basis, but Nanaimo still hasn't decided on a professional to replace Mike Rivers . . . Mike preferred to pass up the pro job and concentrate as greens superintendant . . . Oak Bay will honor Bigelow by declaring Saturday as "the George Bigelow Field Day" . . . Scoring a hole-in-one on Cedar Hill's 12 recently was Tom Phelan . . .

Dome Okay But Not Lions

ROGER STAUBACH
. . . finds the holes

PONTIAC, Mich (AP) — Pontiac Stadium's air-inflated dome didn't spring any leaks, but quarterback Roger Staubach's shotgun offence and slingshot arm found some holes in Detroit Lions' defence as Dallas Cowboys stopped the Lions 36-10 in Monday night's National Football League game.

A near-capacity crowd of 79,784 gave the Cowboys resounding boos when they were introduced before the game, but the boos reverberated off the newly-raised glass-fibre roof of the plush $55.7 million stadium at the end of the game.

Detroit seemed helpless as Staubach turned a 10-9 third-quarter deficit into a runaway for Dallas.

Meanwhile, his defensive mates, led by 250-pound tackle Jethro Pugh, sacked quarterback Greg Landry so many times he almost got artificial grass stains on his pants.

The youth-infused Cowboys ran their record to 3-0, giving them sole possession of first place in the Eastern Division of the National Conference.

Detroit now is 2-1 and second in the Central Division behind unbeaten Minnesota Vikings.

"I was impressed with the Lions," said Dallas coach Tom Landry, obviously trying to ease Detroit's pain. "They played us real close in the first half and, except for hitting a couple big plays, the game could have been much closer."

The big plays included:

—A bad Detroit snap on punt formation that set up the go-ahead touchdown in the third quarter.

—A 29-yard draw play by Charles Young of the Cowboys, followed by Young's circus catch for a 42-yard touchdown pass from Staubach on the first play of the fourth quarter.

—A 46-yard halfback pass from Robert Newhouse to Drew Pearson for another Dallas fourth-quarter touchdown.

—A 37-yard scoring pass from Staubach to Pearson after the Cowboys recovered a Landry fumble at the Lion 16 and lost 25 yards on penalties.

Landry was sacked 11 times for 84 yards in losses—just one less yard than what he gained through the air with seven completions in 18 tries. He was replaced by Bill Munson in the closing minutes just as Clint Longley replaced Staubach near the end.

Dallas got three first-half field goals from Toni Fritsch from 21, 29 and 39 yards out. The last came after Dallas recovered an Altie Taylor fumble at the Lion 40.

Errol Mann kicked a 21-yard field goal for Detroit in the first half-hour of play.

Panthers No Weaklings

Parkland Panthers have come a long way in their third season in the Greater Victoria High School Soccer League.

A league weakling its first two years, Parkland has emerged into a contending team and Monday it added to its record with a 3-2 triumph over Victoria High Tyees at Parkland.

The win was the fourth in six outings for the Panthers and left them two points behind leading Reynolds Roadrunners in Division I and one point behind Mt. Douglas Rams.

In other action Monday, Spectrum trimmed St. Michaels 5-0; Reynolds trounced Belmont Braves 7-0; Mt. Douglas nipped Claremont 2-1; and Esquimalt Dockers upset Oak Bays 2-1.

Panthers' win over Vic High was its first ever over one of the op five clubs — Mt. Douglas, Oak Bay, Spectrum and Reynolds are the others.

In its initial season in the league the Panthers were winless in 16 games and outscored 102-8. Last year their record was 3-13-1 and they were outscored 69-21.

Avie Stubbington was the scoring hero for the Panthers Monday with two goals. Daryl Stubbs had the other Parkland goal while Mark Paone and Ian Bridge scored for the Tyees.

At St. Michaels, Tarey Pollock had three goals and Dave Shephard and Wayne Reeves one apiece for Spectrum. The win gave Spectrum a four-point lead over Oak Bay in Division II.

Pettinger Leads Way

Bill Pettinger scored two goals and added an assist to spark Western Homes Buckaroos to a 3-1 win over James Bay Canadians in a Big Six Hockey League game Monday at Memorial Arena.

The victory lifted the Bucakaroos into a first-place tie with London Boxing Club and the Canadians. Each club has three points.

A Separate Vote On Death Penalty Urged by Simma

Liberal MP Simma Holt is concerned that the federal government may bring in a package bill on law reform that would prevent a full debate on capital punishment.

She told a luncheon meeting of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria Monday that the federal government should permit MPs to vote on each reform separately.

She drew a round of applause when she said she favored the restoration of the death penalty in Canada.

Holt said she is concerned that the Liberal government may bring in a single bill that will stiffen the penalties for a number of serious crimes like drug peddling while retaining the present practice of not executing murderers of police officers and prison guards.

She said she would be in a difficult position personally because she recognizes the urgency of some of the other proposed changes but felt it would be unfair to present MPs with a single bill to accept or reject.

She said she had no advance knowledge of what the government was planning but there were signs they may be thinking in terms of a single bill on law reforms.

Holt said a survey of her own riding of Vancouver Kingsway showed 79 per cent of the people who responded to her questionnaire were in favor of the death penalty for serious crimes of murder. She said she believes that 80 per cent of all Canadians would favor the return of capital punishment.

Holt said she would like to see it extended beyond killing of policemen and prison guards.

Any person who goes out deliberately to commit a murder or who slays someone while committing a robbery should face the death penalty, she said.

Holt, a former reporter with the Vancouver Sun, spent much of her speech criticizing the performance of the press gallery in Ottawa.

She said some of the Ottawa reporters were very good, while others were the laziest in Canada, reporting only the froth and not the substance of committee work done by Parliament.

She was introduced to the meeting by Richard Bower, publisher of the Daily Colonist, and vice president of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 52-year-old man pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court Monday to breaking into McGill and Orme, 1139 Yates, earlier in the day and stealing a large quantity of drugs.

Vernon George Reid of 545 Johnson admitted to, Judge Harold Alder he was a drug addict and was under the influence of drugs at the time of the break-in which occurred about 1 a.m.

Reid was picked up by city police in the 1200-block Quadra, admitted the robbery and returned to the store to show police a window on the ground level he had broken.

Alder remanded Reid in custody to Oct. 28 for a pre-sentence report.

Eric Grootveld, 20, of no fixed address, will be sentenced Oct. 27 for five counts of false pretence and one of uttering a forged cheque. He pleaded guilty.

Prosecutor Nick Lang said the offences took place between Sept. 5 and Sept. 25 and included cheques cashed at Ben Hill's Sport Shop, Woodward's, Murray Goldman Men's Wear, Birks, and Harris House of Hides.

Alder said it was "only fair" to the community" to hold the accused in custody until the sentencing date.

Nineteen-year-old Brian Keith Bob of Nanoose Bay was placed on six months probation and ordered to undertake eight hours community service work after pleading guilty to mischief.

Lang said Bob kicked in a window at the Old British Fish and Chips, 1316 Broad, early Sunday morning after being ejected from a nearby cabaret.

Damage was $70. Alder ordered the accused to make restitution.

In Judge William Ostler's traffic court, Paul Evans, 40, of 989 Londonderry, was sentenced to 24 days in jail for impaired driving.

The sentence will be served intermittently, on weekends, beginning Saturday.

Man Overboard, Channel Hunted

The man who search and rescue officials say was not wearing float equipment, fell into calm water between Yellow Point and Round Island in Stuart Channel, southeast of Nanaimo.

The vessel Kwatna, a wooden-hulled tug owned by Seaway Towing of Campbell River and operating from Chemtinus, had been northbound when the accident occurred between 7 and 8 p.m.

Now on full-scale search are a Comox Buffalo aircraft using magnesium flares to light the area, the ferry Kuleet, Coast Guard cutter Racer, the tug itself and another fishboat.

About 150 phone calls came to the rescue centre overnight from Nanaimo residents puzzled by the flares.

Another helicopter search began at midnight six miles north of Nanaimo after a report a pleasure craft containing five persons was sinking near Five Fingers Island.

No trace of the craft has been found and the search continued today.

Another search is underway for three persons aboard a light plane reported missing at 2 a.m. today in the Prince George area.

A search and rescue spokesman said the plane was on a flight from Summit Lake to Ingenika Lake northwest of the city.

ROOKIES ENTER DAVIS CABINET

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Bette Stephenson, former president of the Canadian Medical Association, joined the Ontario cabinet today as minister of labor.

Dr. Stephenson, elected to the legislature in the Sept. 18 provincial election, was one of seven new members appointed by Premier William Davis to his cabinet.

Lawyer Roy McMurtry, another rookie MPP, was given the attorney-general's portfolio in the cabinet changes that also saw eight veteran ministers switched to other posts.

Dr. Stephenson represents the Toronto riding of York Mills and McMurtry the Toronto riding of Eglinton West.

—John Smith, minister of correctional services;

—Margaret Schrivener, minister of government services;

—James Taylor, minister of community and social services;

—Lorne Henderson, minister without portfolio.

James Auld goes to management board from colleges and universities and will spearhead negotiations expected by the end of the year with the province's sometimes militant civil servants.

Meeting Before Death

Two Crown witnesses testified about the meeting at 1 a.m. March 1 in Bamfield Park, half a mile from the beach where Mrs. Nicholet was found dead later that morning by Gordon Taylor, who was walking his dog.

Nicholet and his wife were married in November, 1973, and separated the following February.

His girl friend last January and February, Willa London, told the jury and Mr. Justice Craig Munroe that Nicholet picked her up at a hospital where she worked at midnight Feb. 28. They went to a restaurant and then he drove her home before leaving.

The next day, March 1, they went to several shops together and to a car wash. The looked at engagement rings. He seemed quiet.

While driving, there was a radio news broadcast of a body being pulled from the water but there was no reaction from Nicholet and he said nothing.

Asked if they discussed his wife March 1, she said "once, he asked me if I thought we should invite her to the wedding" they had discussed for the coming Christmas.

After he was released on bail in April she said they went for a drive and he told her that he had gone to Bamfirld Park the night of Feb. 28-March 1 and waited for his wife.

They drove around for a while, then "she got mad, ran across a field." He followed her, got half way across, heard a scream, went to the top of some stairs and saw her lying on them. He got frightened, ran back to his car and drove away, she said.

In a second discussion July 24 after the preliminary hearing, London said she and Nicholet went to West Bay where he told her the same story except that he added that he tried to take her pulse.

Crown counsel Brian Smith told the jury he would attempt to show that Nicholet moved his wife while she was alive to the spot on the beach where she subsequently drowned.

London said Nicholet told her in the second discussion that "there was no way he could have pulled her" to the beach.

Rose Prokopovich, a friend of the dead woman, said Mrs. Nicholet told her she was going to meet her husband at 1 a.m. in Bamfield Park because he "apparently wanted to discuss something about his income tax with her . . . and a reconciliation"

She said she thought it "was kind of a ridiculous time for a meeting" but Mrs. Nicholet was determined to go.

Sgt. Patrick Braiden, Victoria police identification officer, said he went to the Barnard beach in the late morning of March 1 and found the dead woman lying face down on the rocks.

The clothing was saturated with water, but not in any state of disarray. There were 15 "very steep" steps to the beach with bloodstains near the top. The body was 130 feet from the bottom of the steps.

He observed some lacerations on the head and a red mark on one side of the neck and what appeared to be scratch marks on the other side.

Braiden said he examined Nicholet March 3 and found no marks or lacerations on him and found no bloodstains on any of his clothing.

Testimony by Dr. Garth Walther, pathologist at Victoria General Hospital who performed an autospy on Mrs. Nicholet, was read into the record from the preliminary hearing.

He said the neck marks and head lacerations occurred before death. The "principal" cause of death was salt-water drowning, he said.

The trial continued today. Nicholet is being represented by Edward Pollard.

Priest Released

MADRID (AFP) — A Catalan priest and writer nominated for this year's Nobel Peace Prize, was released Monday from prison, a spokesman for his lawyers said. Luis Maria Xirinachs was sentenced to three years in 1974 for his alleged support of Basque nationalists.

Political Prisoners Bought

BERLIN (AP) — West Germany, in an officially secret program that operated for more than 10 years, expects to ransom 1,200 prisoners from Communist East Germany this year at a reported cost of about $16,000 a person.

The number was estimated by Bonn's minister of all-German affairs, Egon Franke, who commented in a recent radio interview:

"I am of the opinion that every possible way must be taken to free someone from political arrest."

His estimate of 1,200 to be freed in 1975 is close to the annual average number of whom freedom has been bought since the program was started in 1964, Bonn sources say. The sources figure the East Germans release the prisoners for an average of $16,000 a person.

The controversial practice was begun, sources said, after the Communist wall dividing Berlin went up in 1961 and the East German government began jailing those caught trying to escape to the West.

Knowledgeable sources in West Berlin have stated that the money is included in the trade agreements with the East Germans with apparently no cash involved but with the amounts agreed on presented in the form of goods or credits.

Western bitterness over the continuation of political arrests and subsequent bargaining for the freedom of those in custody is increased by what is believed to be the scale by which the Communist side figures out how much a prisoner might be worth.

West German sources say this includes such things as a prisoner's job, seriousness of his offence and his professioal qualifications. Under this scheme, an engineer would bring a bigger fee than a laborer, with a doctor practically impossible to get out because of a continued shortage.

U.S. Funds Offered Bricklin

TORONTO (CP) —Malcolm Bricklin said today he can raise $10 million in private United States financing to rescue his troubled sports car firm if the Ottawa and New Brunswick governments are willing to provide $15 million in additional capital.

Bricklin, chairman of the board of Bricklin Canada Ltd., which has been placed in receivership, told a news conference the company requires $20 million to $25 million in new financing to get back into production. It has $20 million in debts.

He said he intends to approach the federal and N.B. governments to see if they would be willing to jointly invest $15 million.

Bricklin said private individuals in the U.S., whom he declined to identify, are prepared to loan him $10 million on condition the company is permitted to operate "without political interference."

Elevator Explosion Inquiry Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro will appoint a special commissioner to investigate Friday's explosion at the Burrard Terminals grain elevator in North Vancouver that killed one man and injured 16 others.

A spokesman for Munro said Monday an inquiry commissioner will be appointed this week.

The spokesman said the commissioner would be asked to investigate causes and circumstances of the explosion and recommend action.

Officials have been unable to make a thorough search for the body of the man killed in the fire.

A spokesman for the national Harbor Board police said there is still too much smouldering debris to make a proper search for the body of Edward Cooper.

"It's just a mess and will take some time," the spokesman said.

Sixteen other employees injured in the blast were mostly in stable or satisfactory condition Monday except for David Brown, 28, who was listed as critical condition.

Henry Kancs, business agent for the Grainworkers' Union, said that 20 employees of Burrard Terminals have no work because of the explosion but it was hoped other grain elevator companies will employ them.

U.S. Charges $250,000 For ERTS

LAWRENCETOWN, N.S. (CP) — The United States plans to charge Canada $250,000 annually for information received through the Earth Resources Technology Satellite (ERTS) receiving station at Prince Albert, Sask., an official of the Ottawa's Centre for Remote Sensing said Monday.

Tom Alfoldi, applications development officer for the centre, made the statement at a seminar on earth sciences and related issues here.

He said that until now Canada has received information free of charge from ERTS. The new expense will have to be paid entirely by the federal government or shared by those who make use of it — "probably a combination of both" — he said.

The $250,000 charge is based on the one receiver in use at present, Alfoldi said. Another is planned for Pouch Cove, about 30 miles from St. John's, Nfld. to cover the eastern part of Canada and this could push up the cost to $500,000 a year.

"But we're trying to talk them into charging the quarter-million dollar fee per country, not per receiver."

The information is used heavily by people involved in agriculture, forestry, hydrology, oceanography and other spheres, Alfoldi said.

It also could have substantial implications on the world's water shipping industries.

Airplane Mishaps Rising

OTTAWA (CP) — While the accident rate for commercial airlines has been dropping markedly in recent years, it has been rising steadily in general aviation.

Though most of air accidents are not fatal, William McArthur, president of the Society of Air Safety Investigators, said in an interview Monday that he is disturbed by the trend in general aviation.

General aviation includes flying clubs, air charter operators, businessmen piloting their own planes — everything except commercial airlines and military flying. In Canada and the United States, this accounts for about 98 per cent of the total aircraft fleet.

"One area that we have to be more cognizant of is the general aviation field," said Dr. McArthur, a Toronto physician.

He is in Ottawa for the week-long annual meeting of the society, which includes government and private air safety investigators from around the world.

He suggested that few people are aware of the gravity of the general aviation safety problem until they look at over-all statistics.

Transport department figures show that the accident rate for scheduled airlines in Canada declined to one for every 169,000 hours of flying time in 1974 from one for every 108,000 hours in 1970.

The rate for accidents involving commercial airlines in which one or more were killed was one for every 213,000 hours in 1970 and one for every 500,000 hours in 1974. There were no deaths in 1971, 1972 and 1973.

In general aviation the accident rate rose to one for every 4,080 hours of flying time in 1974 from one for every 4,330 hours in 1970. The gradual trend up was broken by one sharp jump to one accident for every 3,850 hours in 1973.

The rate of fatal accidents in general aviation swing wildly from year to year. It varied in the last five years between a low of one fatal accident for every 54,950 hours of flying time in 1974 and a high of one for every 29,940 hours in 1972.

Airlift Aids Alaskans

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States Air Force began Monday a big airlift of winter supplies to isolated military bases and villages in Alaska after ships failed to break through heavy ice in the Arctic Ocean during the summer.

A spokesman said C-130 cargo planes flew 20 missions Monday with supplies, mostly fuel, from Anchorage and Fairbanks to the naval Arctic research laboratory at Barrow in the far north of the state and Distant Early Warning Dew stations at Lonely, Oliktok and Barter Island.

Treasure Return Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — The Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam filed a petition in Federal Court Monday to retrieve what it believes to be priceless art treasures shipped out of the country prior to the Communist takeover last April.

The petition, presented on behalf of the PRG by Montreal lawyer Bernard Mergler, challenges the right of a Vietnamese immigrant living here to receive a shipment of about 50 crates now in the possession of customs officials, which the PRG says may contain priceless national art treasures and historical documents taken from museums.

The shipment, addressed to Dao Ngoc Khanh of the north-end Town of Mount Royal, may contain art treasures and historical documents which members and supporters of the former Thieu regime shipped out of the country before the government fell last spring, Mergler said.

Exiles Wounded

ROME (UPI) — Gunmen shot and wounded Bernardo Leighton, a self-exiled opponent of the Chilean military junta and his wife as they returned home from shopping Monday night.

Doctors at St. John's hospital said Leighton, 66, was in serious condition with head wounds.

Mrs. Leighton, suffered a spinal injury.

Grieving Dad Tries Hijack

MANILA (AP) — A young, heavily-armed Filipino grieving over the kidnapping of his four-year-old daughter, hijacked a Philippine jetliner today and demanded to be flown to Libya, but surrendered after nearly nine hours without firing a shot, authorities said.

Camilo Morales, about 25, surrendered at Manila airport after the government "guaranteed to help the hijacker in solving his problem," officials said.

Morales' daughter was kidnapped a few days ago in Davao.

It was not immediately clear why Morales, a Christian, wanted to go to Moslem Libya. There was also no immediate explanation of why he told police he was angry over the alleged arrest of a son.

Last-Minute Reprieve

NASSAU (UPI) — The Bahamian government has granted a last-minute stay in the execution of a young American who said God ordered him to kill three U.S. tourists for being "Angels of Lucifer."

The ministry of home affairs announced the indefinite stay Monday night, only hours before Michiah Shobek, a 22-year-old Milwaukee songwriter, was to have been hanged.

The order was granted in response to petitions by Shobek's lawyers, American ambassador Seymour Weiss and several U.S. Congressmen, a spokesman said.

Reid Panel Resumes Hearings

OTTAWA (FP) — The Commons committee checking allegations that Liberal MP John Reid leaked secret tax information resumes its hearings today after a two-month recess.

Two days of sittings are scheduled with former finance minister John Turner, and Justice Minister Ron Basford expected to testify on Wednesday.

The allegations against Mr. Reid were made last July by the Montreal Gazette.

It wrote that Mr. Reid leaked knowledge of a tax on boats and motors to businessmen in his riding.

Reid has denied the charges.

Goal: Die Young As Late as You Can

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

Death.

"It can't happen to me!," you say?

Well, there. You're suffering under the illusion of immortality. Like millions of North Americans you probably eat, drink, smoke to excess and wouldn't be caught dead with a seatbelt in place.

You may even be in that unusual group of survivors of heart attacks or strokes who, despite the warnings, return to the lifestyle that almost did them in.

How to get you and millions to practice control over how long you live was the topic tackled at Rockefeller University in New York a while back.

The "Illusion of Immortality" symposium was sponsored by the American Health Foundation. On the platform were eminent men — the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., Yale University chaplin; Dr. Michael De Bakey, heart surgeon; Dr. Rollo May, psychoanalyst; the Anthropologist Ashley Montagu; Dr. Robert Berg, community health expert from Rochester University.

All talked about how to get the likes of you over the notion you'll live for ever. They granted it's darned hard for you to envision death when you're feeling good.

But they cautioned that all that eating, drinking and abusing yourself to excess probably will get you to the undertaker ahead of your natural due date. Your alternative; get a grip on things threatening to shorten your lifespan.

Dr. Ernest Wynder, noted cancer researcher and president of the foundation, at the start passed out an adage. To wit:

"It should be the function of medicine to help people die young as late as possible."

The theme of the meeting went like this:

"It would appear that the greatest roadblock to the success of a disease prevention program is the individual potential victim."

Dr. May thought it probably would help to remind people that "it's your life." The idea: "Nobody can take care of you like you!"

May said such a statement had a terrific impact on him when a young intern told him he had to give up smoking, alcohol, coffee and tea. These things were having a deliterious effect on his health.

May was about to pooh-pooh the intern's words to his face. But he stopped and grew thoughtful when the intern shrugged and said:

"It's your life."

From then on, May said he started taking better care of himself.

The Rev. Coffin said the real victims of disease are the persons who are not in a position to make a choice about running the risk of dying ahead of time by overeating, smoking, drinking to excess. They are the poor.

"We know poverty intensifies vulnerability to disease," he said. "That is the real roadblock."

He told of 40,000 babies in the U.S. who die each year because their mothers didn't get proper prenatal care or else the babies were denied life support, including sufficient food, in the first year.

Around the world, he noted, some 400 million persons right now are on the brink of death because they are not able to get enough food.

Instead of worrying about Americans who can afford to eat, smoke or booze themselves into an early grave, the theologian said, the medical profession should "go down to Washington."

"The doctors should go down to Washington and testify for a better school lunch program and for a world food bank.

Montagu said, Congress is living proof of life after death."

The Rev. Coffin said as chaplain at Yale he listens to pre-medical students who wonder about how they can "resist the temptation of making money, going into that field for the glory of cash."

Dr. Berg, on the medical school scene as a day-to-day thing, declared that the need for "humane medicine" is real.

"Part of the problem is the type of student admitted to medical school," he said.

"One should have other than medical school people looking at the good science persons' on the admission list. We need people on the admissions' committees who will weigh other traits.".

Montagu said 80 per cent of the people go to the doctor to have someone talk to and are disappointed when they "only get three minutes and a prescription."

"That's not the practice of medicine," he said.

"That 80 per cent are going to become sick because the doctor does not take care of them."

Dr. de Bakey isn't sure having a loving doctor is the answer.

He is struck by the fact that better than 50 per cent of the smokers who come down with a stroke or heart attack and recover go back to smoking — even though they know it's bound to shorten their life.

"It seems," said Dr. Wynder, "that there resides within each of us, to a greater or lesser degree, an illusion of immortality — deep-rooted belief that death will not occur except in some distant future time.

"Armed with this illusion we are able to maintain a lifestyle which is, in effect, self-destructive.'

"It is a fact also that many people fail to follow through on doctor's prescriptions and do not take advantage of even free health check-up programs.

"And, in what can be interpreted as a clear example of an illusion of immorality, many smokers, though aware of the consequences of smoking, continue to smoke."

Dr. May said the dilemma associated with mortality adds up to "a problem of slow suicide."

"Why do human beings live in such a way that they court death? Invite death? Why do they court their own destruction?

"One immediate conclusion is that we cannot defend simply on the sheer will to live. There's also a will to die, which Freud called the death instinct."

Bumper Fruit Crops

OTTAWA (CP) — Bumper crops of the major fruits, especially apples, are expected to give consumers a break this year, but producers apparently are not happy with the prospect.

A Statistics Canada report indicates that the 1975 apple crop will be the largest of the last decade — 23 million bushels compared with 21.6 million in 1974.

Similarly, the grapes, peaches, cherries, pears, plums and prunes also are up over last year.

An agriculture department spokesman said that while there is no assurance retail prices will drop this year, he feels it is almost inevitable.

"I don't see how they can be anything but cheaper, especially apples, which show a huge crop in the United States this year," he said. "If our apple prices don't drop, there'll be a flood of American apples at lower prices.

A spokesman said the larger-than-expected 1975 fruit crops have resulted in "a fair amount of concern" in the industry.

Despite modern textile technology, some fabrics still cannot be wahsed but have to be drycleaned. Very likely, your most expensive garments belong to this category.

The 12-page illustrated booklet Drycleaning Do's and Don'ts urges you to read all "care" labels. Garments which are washable can usually also be drycleaned.

Suede garments should only be cleaned by experts. It is also worth knowing that polyester knits often shrink and that acrylic knits tend to stretch during drycleaning.

In addition to the fabric itself, pay attention to the trimming of your garments. Buttons can be troublesome if they are made of certain plastics. Belts with cardboard stiffening as well as beads and sequins also require special attention.

You can pick up this helpful booklet at your nearest Better Business Bureau. Or send your request, together with a long (No. 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Information Office, Better Business Bureau of Canada, 76 St. Clair Avenue W., Toronto, Ont. M4V 1N2. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

'MASSAGE' IS SPORT

NEW YORK (UPI) — The city is considering calling the oldest profession a sport to legally clean up the Times Square area before the Democratic convention next July.

An ordinance under consideration by the city planning commission would require massage parlors in the area to become, in effect, sports facilities, and be restricted to hotels with over 100 rooms and community centres.

The parlors have been criticized as being fronts for prostitution.

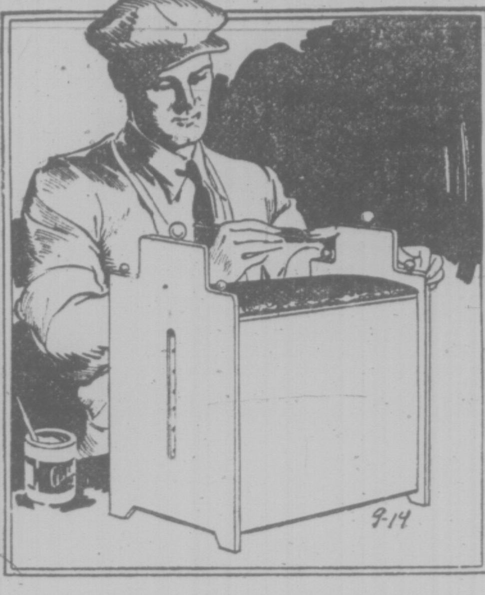
Ugly Paint May Hide Quality Furniture

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®



Heading for an auction or thrift shop? While you're there, take a second look at those old tables, chests, and whatever shoved back in odd corners — and don't be overly turned off by ugly paint or varnish.

What's under the surface may be a quality piece of furniture that will make a fine addition to your own home or which can be a welcome source of extra cash.

Often the difference between junk store dust catcher and collector's item is just one simple step: refinishing. If you take the time to learn this skill, it can be very useful and profitable.

Many refinishing guides contain instructions that make impossible demands on your time and money. A perfect high-gloss finish, for instance, is difficult to apply and waste of effort. The same goes for the majority of "grain fillers," sealers and oil finishes. Here's a quicker, less expensive method that lets beautiful old wood look like beautiful old wood.

What you want to look for in secondhand furniture is good wood hiding under layers of badly applied paint or varnish. The more thoroughly its quality is concealed, the more valuable the piece will be when you're done. Material, construction, and general appearance of old furniture are more important than detail or present state.

Look at undersides, chipped places, etc., to find out what the wood's like, and don't be fooled by veneers (they peel, split and bleed, and pieces so covered aren't worth much at best unless they're unusual for some reason).

Now for your shop and tools. First, you'll need a place to work that is decently lighted and ventilated, away from fire, kids and livestock. An old shed is fine as long as you don't care about the floor.

Paint stripper not only eats straight through any finish but also devours newspapers, cardboard and plastic.)

You'll be using a lot of semi-paste stripper and a little of the liquid type. Avoid "wash-off" products — they're messy and can ruin furniture. Keep in mind that any paint remover is mean stuff, and treat it accordingly.

The varnishes you buy should be high-gloss polyurethane or epoxy only, since they're the most durable and easiest to use. You'll certainly regret any flirtations with cheap dime-store finish or "varnish stain."

What about stain? Most old wood doesn't need it, but if you do buy such a product, be sure it's compatible with the varnish you use. Ask the man at the paint store (and be sure it is a paint — not a dime or hardware — store, if you have a choice of dealers).

(1) Goggles. ALWAYS wear them and long-sleeved work clothes.

(2) Cloth gloves, leather rubber, and plastic are useless against paint strippers.

(3) Hand cream, to be applied before you put your gloves on and after you wash up. If you skip this precaution, your skin will keep you awake at night.

(4) One large, flat, and dull metal scraper (like a pancake turner or spatula), and many smaller homemade wooden ones.

(5) A goo bucket to catch all the mess, even if you don't care about the floor of our work area.

(6) A small woooden brush with fine stiff bristles (for use with wet stripper).

(7) A toothbrush (to clean dry surfaces only).

(8) No. 2 and No. 0000 steel wool.

(9) Rags and string, for cleaning up and improvising clamps as needed on glued joints. Also a lintless cloth.

(10) Glue. White glue is easy to use, but almost any kind will work.

(11) Screws, etc, as needed.

(12) Other tools? There's just one rule: Don't buy anything expensive unless you're sure you want to go in that deep. The most important tool of all is the one you'll need the most of: patience.

Disassemble the table or whatever as much as you can by gentle means. If its joints and screws are solid, that's fine. Don't maul them trying to get them apart. Any fastenings that are at all loose should be undone. Old glue, etc., can then be cleaned out, and the parts left separated until the refinishing is complete.

Next comes stripping. First, wash an inconspicuous part of a piece with soapy water to see what comes off.' Some times "black paint" turns out to be only water stain, and you're home free. (Never wet bare wood, though, or you'll raise the grain.)

No luck with, the water treatment? Then flow on semi-paste stripper, heavily but gently, with a rag swab. Wait an hour, and when the chemical has raised the paint, push off the coating (large areas first and details alter). "Push", not "scrape". The object is to remove the paint without hurting the wood.

Stripper left on too long becomes gummy, and most of it should be removed between stints of paint scraping. When almost all the old finish is safely in the goo bucket, ease off the remainder with No. 2 steel wool and rub the piece dry with a rag.

Details can be cleaned with liquid stripper, but remember that such a preparation "cuts" differently from — and will not leave wood looking exactly the same as — a semi-paste. To avoid streaks, keep the liquid stripper off large, flat surfaces: Let it run only into other detailed areas.

Remove softened paint with wooden scrapers, string and a wooden-handled brush; let the surface dry, and brush any remaining gunk out of the crevices with the toothbrush. (Don't use the tool with liquid stripper, though, or the plastic will melt.)

Allow the article you're working on to dry for a day or more. Then rub it — with the grain only! — with No. 2 steel wool. (This isn't sanding! You only need to cut the glaze left by the stripper.) Finally, dust the piece well with a rag, giving special attention to details.

If the piece you're restoring isn't streaky at this point, good. If it is, either lighten the dark areas with liquid stripper on a rag or treat the light spots with a few drops of stain applied in the same way. Evenness, not perfection, is the goal.

Old wood is beautiful in itself. If you feel otherwise, use restraint in finishing so that the final effect will be natural. Apply coloring lightly, wait a few minutes and rub it down with a rag. Don't ever try to get a deep stain in one coat, or the result will look like bad paint. Let the finished job dry a day before you varnish it.

Pros go over furniture with a vacuum cleaner and "tack rag" immediately before varnishing, but you can get the same effect by rubbing and dusting a surface carefully with a cloth. Then swab on the finish with a lintless rag.

Work the coating in well (it's going to be its own sealer) and be sure that no excess is left on corners and edges. Let the piece dry thoroughly, dust it again and apply another layer (less varnish will be needed this time). Repeat the whole process as often as you want — but keep those coats light!

When you've applied enough thicknesses of varnish to suit you, rub the dried top layer lightly with No. 0000 steel wool to cut the gloss. The result will be a beautiful low-sheen protective coating, very hard and waterproof, which looks and feels like an expensive oil finish.

Reassemble the piece if necessary, with only enough glue to do the job (excess white glue can be wiped off with a damp rag). Then, if you want a high sheen like that of some old furniture in museums, apply a light coat of paste wax and rub it down.

Don't be in a hurry to sell an article, or you may get less than it's worth. Unless the item is small, advertise it by itself or only with similar pieces. Show it in your living room or other attractive setting.

The demand for any quality wooden item is currently good and constantly getting better. You should be able to do quite well for yourself by rescuing junk store Cinderellas and revealing their true beauty.

New Wife Irked At Hubby's Dreams

DEAR ABBY: Do you know anything about dreams? My husband calls out his ex-wife's name in his sleep, so he must be dreaming about her, right?

When I tell him that he was calling her name in his sleep, he says he must have been dreaming — but he never can remember what he has dreamed. (Is this possible?)

Abby, if a person dreams about someone, doesn't it mean that that someone must be on that person's subconscious mind?

My husband swears that he loves me and that he never even thinks about his ex-wife, but if that's true, why is he dreaming about her? And if he's not dreaming about her, why is he calling her name?

He says he can't help what he dreams or what he says in his sleep. I can't believe that, can you? — WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: Yes. And if you're wise, you'll lay off and quit reminding him of his ex-wife while he's awake.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to tell "Philadelphia," whose Jewish cousin passed away, not to worry about whether she goes to heaven or not. As a good person, her goodness will precede her no matter where she goes.

I came across an article by a reverend in which he said: "Adolph Eichmann had a better chance of going to heaven than his millions of victims because he believed in Jesus."

I cannot imagine myself being in heaven with Eichmann and his co-murderers.

If believing in Jesus is the only condition to getting into heaven, I refuse to go there! — CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: I wonder where that reverend thinks the millions of Buddhists and Islams go?

DEAR ABBY: I work in a bank where there are 21 employees.

One of the girls was getting married. The hat was passed and I was asked to give a certain amount. I felt I couldn't afford that much, so I gave what I could.

The next day I left on my break, and when I returned, the amount I had contributed was in an envelope on my desk. I had no idea who placed it there. Everyone I asked denied it.

Finally, one of the girls told me who had put it there. It was the office troublemaker.

I asked her what her idea was in returning my money, and she said she did it for "a purpose." What the purpose was she never did tell me.

Was she right in returning my money? Or did she just show her ignorance? And how should I treat her in the future? — HURT

DEAR HURT: She showed not only her ignorance but also her rudeness and meanness. Avoid her.

Welch Medical Report

Western laymen, and highly professional observers as well, have reported their amazement at the apparent effectiveness of acupuncture anesthesia for major surgery.

Still photographs and moving pictures of serenely relaxed, chattering young people, blithely drinking tea and orange juice as their chest walls are cut into or their abdomen laid open, seemed to attest to the miracles of acupuncture anesthesia.

But Dr. Arthur Taub, professor of anesthesiology and director of the section for study and treatment of pain at Yale University, who visited China as one of 10 members of an acupuncture anesthesia study group, says that as it is actually employed, acupuncture anesthesia is really more drug-than needle-induced.

Almost all patients who are operated on with acupuncture anaesthesia, according to Dr. Taub, who observed the techniques used from the point of view of a skilled anethesiologist, receive preoperative sedation with barbituates, as is customary in the Western world, phenobarbitol in full doses intravenously, narcotics such as demerol, also in full doses intravenously, and atropnine to reduce smooth muscle irritability and lower bodily secretions in the lngs and stomach.

Moreover, he found that no secret was being made of the liberal use of local anesthetic agents such as novocaine to block nerves that ordinarily transmit pain impulses from the operative area.

In addition, he observed that the electrical current passed between acupuncture-needle electrodes produces electrical anesthesia by a fatigue response of nerves and skin.

His Chinese colleagues, he said, freely agreed with him that this is in fact the familiar and widely accepted phenomenon of electrical anesthesia and is not properly to be considered acupuncture.

In his recent report to the American Adademy of Neurology, he put a good many of the popular myths about acupuncture anethesia into a more sober perspective.

As with so-called natural childbirth in the west, which requires careful selection and training for those who participate, he found that those who are chosen for acupuncture anesthesia (with the significant additional measures as noted above) must be carefully indoctrinated, highly motivated and determined to withstand pain and discomfort.

Furthermore, it must be proven in advance that they will be able to lie motionless and awake on an operating table for hours. Elderly patients and those who are poor risks are not considered candidates for acupuncture anesthesia.

Dr. Taub found that in general, Chinese anesthesiologists do not depend on acupuncture and 90 per cent of the time produce anesthesia with local or regional nerve blocks, which make the operative area insensitive to pain. This is achieved, as it is in this country, by the injection of drugs that paralyze the nerves temporarily and stop the transmission of pain impulses.

It was not, I think, Dr. Taub's intention in making his report so much to debunk acupuncture anesthesia as to make a coolheaded examination of a technique that falls within his area of special competence and which has been the subject of much misunderstanding. And he found his Chinese colleagues in agreement.

Warranty Extended

LONDON (AP) — British Leyland Ltd. said Monday it is introducing an unlimited mileage, one-year warranty on cars sold in Britain. The previous one-year warranty had been limited to 12,000 miles. British Leyland is the second major British automaker to improve its warranty and other services in an effort to boost sales. Last week, Chrysler U.K. Ltd. began a similar warranty.

Council Pushes On for Women's Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Although major progress has been made in the last year, Dr. Katie Cooke says that there still are a number of important areas of women's rights still unresolved.

In her annual report as chairman of the Advisory Council on the Status of Women, Dr. Cooke said the cabinet has been laggard in the area of human rights, including homemakers in the Canada Pension Plan and in resolving problems related to divorce and the division of matrimonial property.

One of the most positive steps in the last year, she said, was what she saw as the assured passage of omnibus legislation concerning women.

Among other things his legislation would allow women to qualify as a family head under the Immigration Act, remove the need for a woman to declare her marital status before being allowed to vote federally and would remove the rigid restrictions concerning the period maternity benefits would be paid under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Dr. Cooke pointed out that a council recommendation now being implemented will give widows and widowers equal survivors' rights under the Canada Pension Plan while mothers will have equal rights with fathers to confer citizenship to their children under the Citizenship Act.

She added that the council is following closely a recommendation that the prime minister urge federal departments and agencies by letter to improve the situation in respect of women in their organizations.

Also at council urging, she said the government had created national councils concerned with female offenders and concerned with the role of volunteers in society.

ROLLING STONE

The Rock Music Awards TV special on CBS this past summer got the top ratings in its time slot, but still did not sit well with concert promoter and producer Bill Graham. Graham sent a bristling six-page letter to executive producer Don Kirshner, decrying the show's "lack of professionalism."

He called the choice of co-host Diana Ross "ridiculous. You tell me what she's got to do with rock and roll." He also hit the lack of preparation of awards presenters and called the staging a "catastrophe ... People did not know which way to go, with whom to go, and when to go."

But Graham seemed most perturbed by the selection of Mike Douglas and Sonny Bono as presenters of the Public Service award, and Kirshner's own acceptance of the Rock Personality award on Bob Dylan's behalf. "To have chosen Mike Douglas and Sonny Bono ... was unforgivable ... I doubt very much if either of these gentlemen ... knew anything about any of the artists' names they used, nor, it's more than likely, did they know anything about why ... (they) were nominated in the first place."

On Kirshner's acceptance: "The wording you used ... was something like, 'I consider it a privilege to have been chosen by Bob to accept this award on his behalf.'

Kirshner, that is a pile of B.S., and nothing but an opportunistic moment stolen by you to put in a little plug for yourself at the expense of Dylan. To top that off, I've spoken with Bob since the awards. Not only did he never give you approval of anything at all, he never even spoke with you ..."

Graham concluded by saying, "This ... Special could have been a golden opportunity to prove to that vast primetime viewing audience that rock and roll can be home entertainment ... Your program took a negative situation and made it worse."

Kirshner, the man behind the Monkees, the Archies, and the original In Concert, now hosts and presides over the syndicated Don Kirshner's Rock Concert. He declined to deal specifically with Graham's complaints. "I will say this, Bill did come to the party afterwards, congratulated me on the show, took several pictures and seemed super pleased," he said. "Something happened, I think the letter is rather sad for Bill. But I don't want to psychoanalyze Bill's problems. I'd rather do it with him over a drink."

Tommy James, who sold more than 30 million records with the Shondells between 1964 and 1970, is recording again — in the Bay Area, of all places. James, who struck gold with the Shondells on such tunes as Hanky Panky and the slightly more sophisticated Crimson and Clover and Crystal Blue Persuasion before turning solo, has teamed with Berkeley's Fantasy Records. "I felt a subtle rejection here in the Bay Area and elsewhere in the late Sixties," the denim jacket-and-jean-clad James said over lunch recently.

"Here I was making dance records and nobody was dancing during the heavy war years. But I didn't want to become a part of more misery. My whole thing was and is happy music." After taking a year off "to plot my game plan," he feels positive about hitting the charts again, explaining: "It's hip to have fun now."

"I love San Francisco, I'm going to move here from New Jersey in the next year," he adds. "It's the best city to create in. We're gonna make hits here."

Lou Reed joined Flo and Eddie on stage in Sydney, Australia, for a rendition of Walk on the Wild Side, F&E playing the "colored girls" of the Reed composition. Lou also joined in on "Happy Together." It was the first recorded incident of Reed projecting a positive emotion ... Dr. Hook and the Medicine Show weren't projecting positive emotions after being arrested and charged with possession of marijuana at Atlant's Great Southeast Music Hall Sept. 13.

Vice squad officers allegedly found about an ounce of grass in their dressing room. The members were taken in and later released on $600 bond. Their lawyer, Cary Tye, hopes the case can be settled out of court.

Conviction, he added, would probably mean a "nominal fine."

FREE READING ON FRIDAY

A public reading, Friday, 8 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. at Open Space, 510 Fort, will be part of a Victoria convention of the League of Canadian Poets. About 80 publishing poets will be attending the convention. Admission to the reading will be free.

Gallery Meeting Vital

Questions of more than usual importance will be discussed at the annual meeting of Greater Victoria Art Gallery, to be held at the gallery, 1040 Moss, Oct. 29 at 7:30 p.m.

Several changes to the constitution will be introduced and an election will be held. Changes in nomination procedures will invalidate nominations from the floor. All nominations will have to be in writing bearing signatures of proposer and seconder and must be accompanied by a letter from the nominee showing willingness to stand.

All the persons must be members of the gallery in good standing.

The gallery has a current membership of about 2,100 and director Robert Boulet feels it is not unreasonable to expect a minimal 30-per-cent turnout for the annual meeting.

BUTCHART GARDENS. AUTUMN! Just about the most beautiful, most colourful time of the year in these famous gardens. Should it shower, don't worry, there's free use of umbrellas for everybody. Usually warmer out here, too! Open every day 9 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Plan now for one of your happiest outings!

BUTCHART GARDENS, KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FOR THEIR INCREDIBLE BEAUTY . . . EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY!. Skilful planning, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago, they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired attractions.

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers—Unusual!—Grand!—Indescribable! Featuring the sunken garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet To The Stars". This alone is worth coming to see.

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas and delightful Buffet suppers in the evening.

FRIENDS ARRIVING? Take them to see these lovely gardens. One of the nicest and most appreciated ways to entertain.

BUTCHART GARDENS SUGGESTS: Combine it all into one grand thrifty outing . . . the gardens by daylight . . . romantic night lighting . . . the Ross fountains in their majestic "Ballet To The Stars." Your regular admission covers it all. To add to your pleasure dine in the Butchart Gardens Floral Restaurant.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

With the birth and development of the various systemic, artificial, one-club opening bids (some showing 16 high-card points, some 17 points, some 19 points, etc.) numerous types of defensive artificial bids have come into being to allow the opponents to enter into the bidding more often.

It is the contention of Alvin Roth, one of the world's top players, that these defensive gadgets — especially those showing a specific two-suited type of hand — are of more assistance to the "one club" opener's side than they are to the defenders.

In substantiation of his contention, Roth submitted the following hand, which came up in the Life Masters Pairs Championship of 1975.

♠ 10
♥ J 8 3
♦ J 8 7 4
♣ A K Q 8 3

WEST	EAST
♠ 9 5	♠ Q J 4 3
♥ 10 6 5 4 2	♥ K 9 7
♦ 9 6	♦ K 10 5 2
♣ J 9 4 2	♣ 7 5

SOUTH
♥ A Q
♦ A Q 3
♣ 10 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Dbl.	Rdbl.	1 ♥
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♥.

Roth was sitting North; his partner, South, was Barbara Rappaport.

West's take-out double showed a hand containing at least five hearts and a minimum of four clubs (and a desire to live dangerously, one must presume). Knowing that his club suit wasn't going to be cashable, and thinking that there was a heart loser as well, Roth gave up on a slam although he knew that his partner's opening one-club bid guaranteed a minimum of 19 points.

A low heart was played from dummy at trick one, East put up the nine, and Mrs. Rappaport won the trick with her queen. She then led the club ten, intending to finesse against the jack. When West covered with the jack, dummy's queen won the trick. A successful diamond finesse was taken next, followed by the spade ace and then a low spade, west's nine winning.

West exited with a heart to South's ace (East playing the seven). The spade king was now cashed, dummy's jack of hearts being discarded. Her remaining club was then led, dummy's eight-spot being finessed. Next came three more club leads, and East found himself hopelessly squeezed.

On the lead of dummy's last club (trick 11), if East discarded the spade queen, he would make a winner out of South's eight. If he discarded the diamond ten, unguarding his king, the king would be decapitated by South's ace. He chose the latter discard, and South's ace of diamonds and dummy's jack took the last two tricks. Thus 12 tricks were made.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, Oct. 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on journeys, studies, long-distance communications. Be prepared for change, travel, variety. Gemini, Virgo persons could be very much in picture. Creative activity, including writing, is favored. Event occurs which leads to greater fulfillment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money you thought was "lost" finds its way to you. Emphasis is on investment, tax relief, financial status of partner, mate. Purchase of luxury or home item could be on your schedule. Art object, coin or precious stone might be featured.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on publicity, public relations, special arrangements, arrangements — and marital status. See in light of actuality. Don't imagine that others will automatically live up to expectations. Delegating too many duties could lead to embarrassing situation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Practical matters dominate. Don't attempt to skip basic issues. Remember work-health resolutions. Keep appointments, including medical-dental. Older individual is willing lend benefit of experience. Pride should not be permitted to block progress.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Youngster who is precocious wants to be guided but won't admit it. You are in position to get favorable attention, to also be recognized for past efforts. Aries, Libra could figure prominently. You get what you deserve — and it may be better than anticipated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Ideas can be solidified. You get chance to express yourself in independent, creative manner. Key is to let go, to be honest, to get to heart of matters. Now you can imprint your own style. Know it, do it and be sure about it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relatives may make claims all at once. Key is to maintain balance and humor. Short trips, messages, calls are on agenda. Hunch plays important role. Intuitive intellect cannot be ignored. Money and past commitments combine to play major role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on collection, payment, recovery of what was apparently lost. Money, dividends, interest rates command more attention than usual. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in picture. You learn about costs, potential and what can be expected in form of returns from investment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on independence, originality, new starts in new directions. Personality, personal appearance — these are spotlighted. You are now able to shake off restrictive influences. You will be free and creative!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What occurs is mostly subtle, clandestine, behind the scenes. Gemini, Virgo and Libra figure prominently. You gain access to "privileged information." You learn about hidden factors, what can be expected, what will continue to be "buried."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on friends, hopes, wishes, ability to recognize real allies. Separate fair-weather friends from those who actually care about your welfare. Taurus, Libra persons figure in important ways. You get accolade, gift — or kiss.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on career, dealings with one who is a perfectionist. Another Pisces — and a Virgo — figure prominently. Your standing is elevated, you handle additional duties but reward factor also is greater.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are capable of organizing, of getting priorities in order. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. In November, you might change residence, you make adjustments at home. You are capable of combining artistic and practical efforts — you help people understand their own creative powers. If single, next year could be your marriage year.

SANDS — COLWOOD

WRIGHT—Suddenly in Victoria on October 4, 1975, William Wright of 969 Esquimalt Rd., formerly of Ladysmith. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. C. M. Eaton of Victoria, Mrs. S. Stone of Ottawa, Ontario, and Mrs. M. Sommerville of Bamfield, B.C.; 2 brothers, John J. of 969 Esquimalt and David C. of 916 Old Esquimalt Rd; numerous nieces and nephews.

Funeral service in McCall Bros. Chapel, Johnson and Vancouver Streets, on Wed., Oct. 8, at 1:00 p.m., followed by cremation. (Flowers gratefully declined. Donations, if desired, may be made to the Heart Fund, 1008 Blanshard St.)

8 CARD OF THANKS

My wife and I wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to the nurses and staff of C.C.U. for their many kindnesses, and excellent care during my unexpected stay in Victoria General Hospital. A special thanks to Doctors Friesen and Morrison. We are deeply grateful. — Burnell Wood, Belleville, Ontario.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DEFTY — In loving memory of Ellen Defty, sadly missed by Bob and Nora, Albert, and many friends. Oct. 6, 1974.

HOULIHAN—In loving memory of my sweet sister,
Maimie Houlihan
who passed away Oct. 9, 1968.
No one knows how I miss you,
Life has never been the same.
In my heart your sweet memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true.
Resting peacefully with God in Heaven,
A beautiful angel, sweet Maimie,
I always think of you.
—Always remembered by her loving brother, Jimmie Houlihan.

WHITTAKER—In loving memory of Samuel Whittaker who passed away Oct. 7, 1972.
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said "Come"
And with farewells unspoken
He gently entered home.
—Always remembered by his living wife and family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Stones Are a Benefit in Disguise

Stones in the soil are looked upon as a curse by those who have experienced only deep garden loams. Their removal becomes an obsession accounting for hours of labor that could be better spent.

No matter how much raking and collecting is done it is not long before their presence is again evident on the surface and more raking and collecting is needed.

At one time it was common belief among gardeners and farmers that stones "grew" in the soil and eventually became masses of rock. This, they reasoned, accounted for their constant appearance on the surface.

What really happens is that every time we turn the soil or cultivate the surface, the finer grains sink and the chunky material is left on top. It is something akin to sifting; we actually separate the large from the small.

As long as there are stones in a soil that is being cultivated, and rain to separate and compact the smaller grains, the stones will eventually appear on the surface.

Most gardeners seem to use the word "rocks" which gives the impression of a gigantic and heavy mass. To me there is a great difference between a rock and a stone.

Examining a garden said to be "full of rocks" I have found nothing larger than gravel, and often only pea gravel. To classify these particles as rocks is akin to calling sow-bugs garden elephants.

Stones, as I prefer to call them, can be beneficial in any soil. The only ones requiring removal are those of two to three inch dimension which interfere with the operation of garden tools.

Stones are small pieces of disintegrated rock, each piece containing some of the minerals present in the parent mass.

Rain, snow, frost, and summer heat combine to cause a further breakdown and the released minerals are added to the soil for plants to use. Soils containing a percentage of stones are often richer in minerals than those which are stoneless.

Although roots are below soil level, a constant exchange of air is necessary for their well being.

That is one reason we till a soil and cultivate the surface to keep it loose. Stones naturally give a more open texture to the soil and thereby permit deeper air penetration.

Reasonable amounts of stones in a soil help to facilitate drainage and are especially helpful in low lying land where run-off is likely to accumulate. Their removal could result in flooding.

From this we can say that a stony soil is a warmer soil since water is the coldest component of any soil, and the most difficult to heat.

And a warm soil is one that can be worked earlier in the spring and later in the fall, and plants within it can better withstand winter conditions.

In summer, rock accumulates greater heat than fine soil and holds it longer, so that a stony soil does not lose its summer warmth as fast as ordinary loam without stones. Such a soil is invaluable for fall and early winter food crops.

Whether stones in the soil are a curse or a benefit depends to some degree on what the gardener has been used to working.

To those brought up on a stony soil there is nothing better, because they have learned its value and how it should be handled. To the deep-loam gardener a stone is unbearable, an annoyance that impedes progress.

To remove most of the stones is not only an ambitious project almost impossible to carry out, its achievement would result in a definite drop in soil level and could have a detrimental effect on drainage. So remove the larger ones and leave the rest to continue their good work.

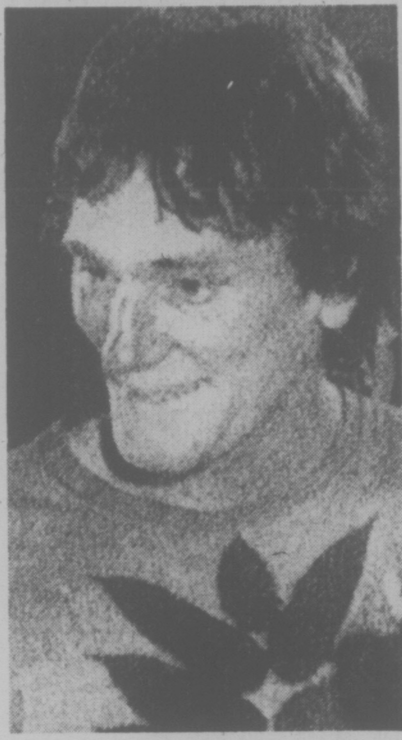
When I Get Broke I Do Crazy Things: Man Who Claimed Affiliation With SLA

Capture Ends Siege



OLSON . . . mugging for press

NEW YORK (AP) — An eight-hour siege of a Greenwich Village bank ended Monday night with the safe release of 10 hostages and the capture of a young gunman who said he was "sympathetic" to the Symbionese Liberation Army and a "fan" of Patricia Hearst.

Ray (Cat) Olson of Merrick, N.Y., fired one wild shot inside the bank where he held customers and employees hostage and alternately demanded $10 million in gold, a getaway airplane and the release of Hearst and three radical companions from California prisons.

Armed with a pistol and a shotgun, Olson at first claimed affiliation with the SLA. Later, he said the idea just "popped in my head."

In reference to Hearst, he said: "I don't know her personally. I'm just a fan."

He also told one radio reporter: "I was completely broke, man. I walked in here, with two cents in my pocket. When I get broke I do crazy things."

Among the thousands of persons who gathered in the street behind police barricades were two unidenified friends of Olson, a man in dungarees and a long-haired blonde girl nicknamed "Mouse."

Police Commissioner, Michael Codd said the pair were brought to the scene in the event "it became advantageous for us to use them at some point during the negotiations."

Ford Wants Taxes Cut

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Ford asked Congress Monday night to enact $27.7 billion in individual and corporate income tax cuts, but at the same time requested a promise to cut federal spending next fiscal year by about the same amount.

The tax and spending proposals to take effect in 1976 thus cancel one another from the standpoint of stimulating the economy; the federal deficit would be unaffected.

More than $20 billion of the proposed tax cuts would go to individuals, as White House aides outlined them Monday evening.

The President proposed:

—Raising the personal exemption that every taxpayer can take for himself and each dependent from the present $750 to $1,000.

—Lowering individual income tax rates across the board.

—Tinkering with the so-called low-income allowance or minimum standard deduction; thereby raising slightly the income level below which a family need not pay federal income taxes.

The White House estimated Monday night that the president's plan would cut the taxes of a typical family of four with a $14,000 annual income by $412, or 27 per cent.

On corporate taxes, the president is proposing:

— A reduction in the basic corporate tax rate, from the present 48 per cent to 46 per cent.

—A permanent 10 per cent investment tax credit, a provision that allows corporations to deduct from their taxes 10 per cent of the cost of new equipment. Last spring's tax cut bill raised the investment credit to 10 per cent, but for two years only.

—Lifting permanently to $50,000 the so-called corporate surtax exemption, the point beyond which corporations pay their full tax rate of 48 per cent. Below $50,000, they would pay a little over 20 per cent.

Democrats in Congress have argued for continuation of this year's tax cuts as a means to insure the economy comes out of the recession and the unemployment rate goes back toward normal levels (it is now 8,3 per cent).

They are likely to criticize the president's plan as too timid on these grounds.

Pay Freeze Proposed In NYC

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Abraham Beame, acting to close an estimated $800 million budget gap during the next three years, has proposed a freeze on wages for all city workers during the period and a halt to new construction contracts.

Beame must present a three-year financial outline today to the Emergency Financial Control Board, the state-dominated agency set up to review city finances under a $2.3 billion plan designed to save New York City from default by early December.

Beame made the wage freeze suggestions Monday to civic leaders, but a spokesman said the proposals were still being formulated and did not represent final positions.

The mayor must give the state control board a final plan by Oct. 15. It has until Oct. 22 to review the plan and make changes.

Mayoral spokesman Sidney Frigand said the freeze was proposed as an effort to lessen the number of city employees thtt would have to be laid off.

Post Gears For Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiators for the Washington Post and pressmen geared for renewed talks today to end a seven-day strike during which the paper's presses were vandalized and publication sliced.

Post officials said Monday they would hire non-union machinists to repair the presses which were damaged when pressmen struck the newspaper last Wednesday.

Mark Meagher, Post vice-president, told a news conference the paper was losing money because of the strike and the inability to publish a full paper, but would not attach a dollar figure.

The decision to hire non-union repairmen came after Post management waited five days for union machinists to repair the presses, he added.

The paper was able to print 100,000 of today's editions on one of its own presses which had been repaired using supervisory and non-union personnel.

Female Hormone Raising Hair

CHICAGO (AP) — A lotion made from the female hormone estrogen reduces baldness in men when it is rubbed into their scalps, says a New York City physician who says he has successfully experimented with the treatment for the last decade.

Estrogen cannot be taken by men internally without certain undesirable side effects, such as enlarged breasts. But Dr. Edward Settel says when estrogen is applied externally, it reduces hair fallout in men and stimulates hair growth in bald areas.

Dr. Settel reported the results of his experimentation in a scientific exhibit at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Family Physicians.

Second-Gun Theory Shot Down In New Tests on RFK Bullets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A committee of experts assigned to examine ballistics evidence in the 1968 slaying of Senator Robert Kennedy has reported there is no proof that more than one gun was used in the assassination.

But the seven-man committee said Monday there is no way to determine positively whether any of the seven bullets collected at the shooting scene came from convicted assassin Sirhan Sirhan's .22-calibre revolver.

All of the bullets were of the same general category and possibly came from the same gun, but only three were in good enough shape to be compared with test bullets fired last week from the Sirhan gun, the committe said in a report to Superior Court Judge Robert Wenke.

MAN WITH KNIVES THREAT TO FORD

NEWARK, N.J. — A man armed with two steak knives was arrested Saturday night in the Hotel Robert Treat after threatening to kill President Ford, who had left the hotel half an hour earlier, police said Monday.

James Speller, 33, of East Orange, N.J., was charged Monday with threatening to kill the president. He will be arraigned before a U.S. magistrate today.

Speller, armed with a razor, threatened to jump off the south tower of the World Trade Centre, New York's highest skyscraper, on Labor Day. He was talked down by a rabbi.

Newark Deputy Police Chief Joseph Manghisi said Speller was being sought on an assault and battery warrant at the time of his arrest. He was charged by Newark police Saturday with possession of dangerous weapons.

CROSSBOW KILLERS JAILED FOR LIFE

VANCOUVER (CTNS) — It took a jury only 45 minutes to find two men guilty of the "cold, vicious and deliberate" slaying of a 17-year-old youth with a crossbow last February.

Howard McInroy and Edward Rouse were each sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Garnet Cameron.

Mr. Justice Douglas Andrews, terming the act "an execution which should not be dignified by calling it professional" ruled the pair ineligible for parole for at least 20 years.

Testimony in the five-day trial indicated Cameron had been killed for providing information to the police.

Close Doors To Outside, B.C. Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Allan Kelly, Greater Vancouver Regional District chairman, said Monday that British Columbia should follow Oregon and discourage immigrants and tourists.

Kelly told a public meeting called to discuss Canada's participation in the United Nations habitat conference here next year that these were not his personal views but a reflection of a general attitude in Vancouver.

"The feeling most expressed is we want to retain the quality of life we have now and most people are reluctant to see developments where they reside," he said.

He told the six members of the National Committee of the Canadian participation Secretariat, who have been touring the Yukon and B.C. to hear from the public, that already the Greater Vancouver area is having to accommodate 30,000 to 35,000 immigrants a year.

This costs about a billion dollars annually "whether the immigrants have capital or not" through extra schools, welfare, and support services, he said.

Kelly added that immigration to Canada should be reduced until the country has had time to digest the number it has now.

Otherwise, he said, the influx will increase, municipalities will be unable to provide for the new residents, there will be overcrowding and the standard of living will decline.

Committee members Dr. Lloyd Axworthy of Winnipeg, Liberal member for Fort Rouge in the Manitoba legislature, and director of the institute of urban studies, Winnipeg University, debated with Kelly about what constituted high densities and overpopulation.

A woman in the audience rose and said that the panel was constituted to hear from the public and not to argue with those presenting briefs.

Axworthy said he wanted to "ascertain what the whole range of the argument is; I would like to know more about it if we are to make a responsible report."

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Little secondary industry will evolve in British Columbia out of present forest policies, Eleanor Norgaard said Monday at the Pearse Royal Commission on Forest Resources hearings. Norgaard, secretary-treasurer of the Andrew Wood Products Ltd. in Merritt, said all wood fibre is allotted to a few large corporations and that has created monopolies. In another brief the Paliser Wilderness Association called for protection of historical and recreational land in the East Kootenay and a freeze on resource exploitation above 5,000 feet in the southern Rockies until environmental controls are established.

CRANBROOK (CP) — A helicopter installing a communications tower on Mount Moyer in the East Kootenay crashed Monday sending pilot Ralph Gagnon to hospital with undetermined injuries. He was in fair condition.

Dairy Workers Reject Offer

VERNON (CP) — About 300 workers at four Interior British Columbia dairies have voted 68 per cent to reject the latest contract offer from the dairies.

Al Barnes, business agent for the Teamsters Union which represents the workers, said Monday he understood the dairies would hold a meeting to further discuss the situation and he expected they would return to the bargaining table next week.

The union does not plan any action until after meeting with the companies again, he added.

The rejected offer consisted of a 10 per cent increase over one year on a base rate of an average of $7.08 an hour.

Barnes said there was no cost - of - living adjustment clause and very little in the way of fringe benefit improvements.

About 200 workers are employed at NOCA dairies in this south-central B.C. community. The rest are employed by Roth dairy in Kelowna, Purity Dairy in Cranbrook and Palm Dairy in Nelson.

Key Issue Wages

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wages head the list of grievances being drawn up, as about 35 employees of radio station CHQM, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 264, prepare to being negotiations for a first contract.

Bud Morris, union spokesman, said Monday that the average net base rate paid by CHQM is about $500 a month — "at least 50 per cent less than the unionized section of the industry but about the industry rate for the non-union sector of the braodcasting industry."

Morris, said that although the union was preparing for negotiations and has been "in verbal contact with management," it does not anticipate its first contract with the station will be settled soon.

The Federal Court of Canada refused last Thursday a company request to have the IBEW's certification at CHQM set aside.

Punching Cop Costs $250

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Kennedy, of Oliver, was fined $250 Monday for assaulting a police officer. Kennedy was convicted of hitting Constable Ronald Jones twice with his first last November after they were both involved in a minor traffic accident and the officer asked Kennedy for his name and address.

90-Day Cooling Off In Basic Industries

Tourists Arrested

Times News Services

MADRID — Police arrested four Dutch tourists for beating up Generalissimo Francisco Franco's son-in-law in a restaurant brawl, reflecting rising tempers over an anti-Spanish campaign in western Europe, diplomatic sources said today.

The national news agency Cifra said Dr. Cristobal Martinez-Bordiu, 53 a surgeon married to Franco's only child, Carmen, was hospitalized after the tourists beat and pushed him into a door during a political argument in the seaside resort of Marbella.

The incident came as political tension between Spain and western Europe over last month's execution of five urban guerrillas still ran high. The European Common Market Monday suspended negotiations with Spain as part of wave of protests and boycotts against the Franco regime.

Switzerland and West Germany, meanwhile, became the first western European countries to send their ambassadors back to Madrid.

MUSIC HATH CHARMS THAT SOOTH . . .

LONDON (Reuter) — Late-night buses in London may soon have soothing background music in an attempt to stamp out violence.

A report by Mensa, the organization for people with high intelligence quotients, made the recommendation. It said vandalism on buses is usually caused by people coming out of bars at closing time. The report suggested that piped music would continue the convivial bar atmosphere and reduce tension and frustration.

A London Transport spokesman said the proposal will be given serious consideration.

BARRETT . . . province comes first

By LINDA HUGHES, Times Staff

The provincial government today moved to end all B.C.'s major labor disputes with a back-to-work order and a 90-day cooling-off period.

Legislation introduced at an emergency sitting of the house this morning orders an end to the forestry, food, propane and B.C. Railway disputes within 48 hours.

The order is effective for 90 days and Premier Barrett said if collective agreements are not negotiated to settle the disputes by that time, "other moves will be made."

His government still believes in the collective bargaining process but the good of the province must come before the individual desires of management and labor, Barrett said.

"It's an unusual step and I know it was unexpected," he told a news conference shortly after the legislation was tabled in the house.

The decision was made during cabinet meetings Sunday and Monday, he said, and the government had no hesitation in making the step without consultation with any other party.

MLAs were called Sunday to the special session and were expecting to face legislation dealing only with the 12-week-old propane distributors strike.

But the legislation also deals with the five-month-old pulp and paper dispute, the month-old food merchandising strike and the recent rotating strikes by B.C. Railway workers.

Asked if he would be willing to fight an election over the government's decision, Barrett said, "It's not a matter of fighting an election, either we govern or we don't."

There are clauses in the bill to force compliance but the only obvious section to enforce the law says that cabinet "may make regulations," he added.

Provisions of the bill will take effect 48 hours after it comes in force.

Labor Minister Bill King indicated that the "breathing spell" could give the International Woodworkers of America a chance to conclude a collective agreement without being subject to the act.

Employers covered by the act are Forest Industrial Relations, Interior Forest Labor Relations Association, Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, Interior Loggers's Association, British Columbia Railway, Transport Labor Relations Association, and the Food Industry Labor Relations Council.

All unions which bargain with those employers are covered by the act.

The bill sets out that all employers must reinstate their operation or business "to the extent and scope that it was on the date the strike or lock-out first occurred."

No employer is allowed to restrict, limit, reduce, diminish or slow down his operation and is required either lift a lock-out or to call back to work each employee who has been on strike or laid off because of the strike.

No strikes, lock-outs or picketing are allowed during the 90-day period.

The legislation also sets out that employers and unions enter "good-faith negotiations" immediately.

While these negotiations are going on, both management and unions will be covered by whatever collective agreement was in force on Jan. 1, 1975. That collective agreement is in force either until a new one is reached or until the act expires in 90 days.

Every collective agreement concluded during the 90-day period must contain, unless the agreement specifies otherwise, provisions for retroactive pay to the expiry date of the last collective agreement.

King stressed several times in the house the hardships facing the families of union members on strike for several months. He said there were some people "almost on the starvation border and that in my view is an indictment of the responsibilities of both management and labor. We

There are about 48,000 people in B.C. on strike, locked out, or laid off.

This includes 29,000 IWA workers, 13,000 pulp and paper workers, 4,500 in the food industry, between 500 to 1,000 others laid off in other companies because of the loss of business in the food industry, about 300 Teamsters in the propane dispute, and 790 railway workers laid off because of the strikes in the woods industry.

3 NDP MLAs To Fight Bill

At least three NDP MLAs plan to vote against their own government's back-to-work legislation.

The three laobr-oriented back-benchers all expressed disappointment and some surprise this morning when confronted with the government's legislation.

"It's very sudden and far-reaching and I'm trying to get my own thoughts together. It's a time for firm action but I don't think it needs to be this far-reaching," said Richmond MLA Harold Steeves.

Steeves said he had no idea the bill would be so sweeping and as far as he knew other NDP back-benchers were also not aware of the cabinet's decision.

"I'm very disappointed with the legislation and am seriously considering voting against it," said Steeves.

Colin Gabelmann (North Vancouver-Seymour), a former employee of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said the move violates a policy and principle the NDP campaigned for in the last election.

"For me it violates a principle I hold very strongly," he said, adding that while it is not compulsory arbitration it is intervention that constitutes a violation of collective bargaining.

Rosemary Brown (Vancouver-Burrard) said she will not speak in the debate but she is disappointed and will vote against the bill.

William McDonald, spokesman for the B.C. Food Council, said today the move by the government to set workers back on the job was welcome but added he would hold his applause until he has reviewed the bill in detail.

"This has taken me totally by surprise," he said from Vancouver.

"My initial reaction is it is a good thing, particularly in our dispute as the public is really suffering."

Although he felt the 90-day cooling-off period was desirable, he wondered what would happen when it ends.

"My concern is one side or the other in the dispute will be forced into a tactical position it would not want to make. It could result in a negotiated settlement being more difficult to achieve."

Doctors Top Income Group

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Medical doctors had the highest average income of any occupational group in Canada in 1973, and the Toronto suburb of Oakville retained top place among major cities according to income.

The information is contained in the government's "green book" on tax statistics which was released Monday.

The document reported that in the 1973 taxation year, self-employed physicians and surgeons earned an average of $42,730 a year, followed by self-employed lawyers and notaries $36,398, and self-employed engineers and architects $33,751.

Average annual incomes of other groups during the year included: self-employed dentists, $31,160; self-employed accountants, $26,993; self-employed salesmen, $10,872; investors, $10,199; farmers, $9,543; business proprietors, $9,333; fishermen, $8,783 and employees, $8,568.

Teachers and professors led in income among employee groups, with annual average earnings of $10,920. They were followed by members of the armed forces, $10,390, federal employees $9,744, provincial employees $9,278, municipal employees $8,973 and business employees $8,501.

Nearly last on the list were pensioners, whose incomes were $5,813 on average.

This left them well below the average income for all taxpayers of $8,665 in 1973. This was up from the 1972 over-all average of $7,784.

Highest income cities in B.C., with their position in Canada in brackets, were: Prince Rupert, $9,705 (seventh — it placed 31st in 1972); Alberni, $9,445 (tenth); Prince George, $9,451 (11th); Vancouver, $9,195 (16th); Kamloops, $9,083 (22nd); New Westminster, $8,902 (26th); Trail-Rossland, $8,894 (27th); Victoria, $8,803 (30th); Nanaimo, $8,729 (34th); Vernon, $8,511 (45th); Kelowna, $8,474 (50th); Dawson Creek, $8,233 (63rd); Penticton, $7,714 (90th).

NEWS BRIEFS

Manager Appointed

HALIFAX (CP) — Tom McKim, who has headed the Halifax Transit Corp. for six years, has accepted a position as general manager of B.C. Hydro's Pacific Stage Lines, responsible for inter city transit in Vancouver and Victoria.

Package Explodes

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — A small package was exploded shortly after being removed from a post office in this south Seattle suburb late Monday, police said. There was no damage and no injuries.

Policeman Charged

MOOSE JAW (CP) — An eight-year veteran of the Moose Jaw police force was charged Monday with criminal negligence in the shooting death of a young Saskatoon man. The charge arises out of an incident Sunday when Constable Ken Haggerty attempted to stop an out-of-town vehicle.

Ransom Hopes Fade

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Officials of a multimillion-dollar Dutch manufacturing company say hope is fading for a ransom deal to save the life of kidnapped executive, Tiede Herrema.

Firemen End Strike

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Striking firemen were back at their stations early today, ending a four-day walkout marked by city officials' accusations that some of the strikers resorted to arson.

Artillery Troops Mutiny, Reds March on Lisbon

Times News Services

LISBON — Mutinous troops occupied a key artillery base in the northern city of Porto today as thousands of Communist-led workers flocked into Lisbon for an openly anti-government demonstration.

Brig. Pires Velow, commander of the northern military district, called the commander of the artillery unit a "traitor" and ordered the arrest of all officers in the regiment.

The far-left newspaper Republica called the developments in Porto an historic event.

"For the first time after centuries of rule by the dominant class, the vast, exploited majority of soldiers have the power to decide how their arms should be used," the newspaper said.

In the capital, radical soldiers of another rebellious artillery unit rejects President Francisco da Costa Gomes's call for discipline and said they will use their guns to protect Portugal's "oppressed classes."

Soldiers of the 1st Light Artillery Regiment, stationed on the outskirts of the capital, were cheered by a Communist-led crowd of several thousand when one trooper climbed on a guardhouse rooftop Monday and shouted:

"We have voted to be always on the side of the people. We are ready to use our arms to protect the oppressed classes."

Two soldiers on the guardhouse rooftop, however, held a large red banner saying: "No to civil war."

Late Monday, the Socialist party issued a statement denouncing efforts by "certain sectors" to use the demonstration to "throw workers against workers and soldiers against soldiers."

DRIVING RAIN . . .

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japanese sporting goods maker today put on sale an umbrella with a golf club grip handle, so golf enthusiasts can practice swings with it while waiting for commuter trains.

A spokesman for Mizuno Inc. said the special umbrella will sell for $10.

RUNNING for mayor in Saanich Nov. 15 is Mel Couvelier who resigned as alderman to challenge incumbent Ed Lum. In a news conference this morning, he said the issue was "deliberate misrepresentation or incompetence" by Lum on a number of issues, mainly the police pay award. Couvelier's charges and Lum's reply are on page 9.

Youth Curfew, Fingerprinting Urged

SURREY (CP) — Juvenile offenders over 14 should be fingerprinted and photographed by police and a system of damage restitution should be initiated, a task force on juvenile crime told council Monday.

The group's final report also recommended a juvenile curfew, more family therapy and counselling groups, and increased manpower for the RCMP. The 11-member group has been studying juvenile crime problems for nearly a year.

Mayor Bill Vander Zalm said council will meet with the task force as soon as possible after studying the report.

"Holding young offenders responsible and accountable for their acts is a key to reversing the present trend, but must go hand-in-hand with community action to meet their needs in preventive, rehabilitative and corrective measures," the report said.

"It is felt by many that the existing atmosphere in dealing with juveniles has a tendency toward forbearance and leniency and that such attitudes are detrimental instead of beneficial."

The report recommends a pilot project establishing small neighborhood councils to deal with local concerns, a family service centre to provide family therapy and group counselling, and increased use of foster parent programs.

Emphasized are vocational, recreational and therapeutic facilities. A day attendance centre for juveniles and a secure holding facility also should be developed on a local basis to deal with young people who run away.

The report said data such as fingerprints and photographs of young offenders would not be sent to any national or provincial fingerprint repository and the prints would be destroyed after a probation period.

In a section dealing with law reform, the report recommends that a municipal bylaw counteract proposed provincial legislation which would allow drinking in public places.

SHOW ME . . . TOO SPICY!

TORONTO (CP) — Obscenity charges have been laid against Macmillan Co. of Canada Ltd. and its president for distributing an illustrated sex-education book for children called Show Me.

Company president George Gilmour said police told him they had received complaints about the sale of the book, which depicts naked children exploring each other's bodies and sexual acts between teen-agers.

Police asked Macmillan for 25 copies of the book, but Gilmour said there were only 17 copies in stock.

The book, priced at $14.95, has been selling "very, very well," one store operator said.

Refused Service To Indian, Man Fined

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan human rights commission has ordered a garage operator in Plunkett, 55 miles southeast of Saskatoon, to pay $100 to an Indian whose eight-year-old son was refused use of a washroom.

A commission announcement Monday quoted the operator, Joseph Kostuk, as saying: "Sorry, I can't let you use it. I'm not in the habit of cleaning up after Indians."

Sinclair was having carburetor trouble and was told by Kostuk that the carburetor part needed would be sold to him for $8, but only if he purchased at least $20 worth of other merchandise.

Sinclair refused and since then has twice bought the part, once for 79 cents and once for 42 cents, the commission said.

Adjournment Granted In Brewery Hearing

A two-day adjournment in an application for an injunction brought by three Victoria area hotel owners against striking beer distributor workers was granted in B.C. Supreme Court Monday.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton agreed to a motion by Vancouver lawyer Hugh Ladner, representing the Brewery Workers Union, to postpone the hearing until Wednesday.

Ladner said union members, involving about 160 striking beer truck drivers will meet tonight to vote on a new offer made last Saturday by Pacific Brewers Distributors. The union executive has unanimously recommended acceptance.

Ladner said he was concerned court proceedings could frustrate attempts to settle the strike, now into its second month.

Ladner's motion was supported by Ken Murphy, acting for the Crown which is a codefendant in an action for damages sought by the three hotel owners.

Murphy said as sensitive negotiations between the union and employer are taking place an adjournment was necessary in the interest of labor peace.

However, Dr. J. J. Gow, representing the owners of the Sooke River Hotel, King's Hotel and Colwood Inn, whose businesses have been curtailed or stopped by the strike, objected to the adjournment.

He argued the application for an injunction should go on without delay as "my clients have suffered so much."

"How much longer must small people be compelled to bleed financially to death while some union settles its dispute with some remote employer?" he asked.

The three hotels have asked the court to order the Liquor Administration Branch or the breweries to supply them directly with beer and to prevent the union from stopping deliveries.

Gow said the union has "physically prevented" his clients from getting supplies of beer.

Ladner said the application brought by the hotels raises fundamental issues as to who has jurisdiction in such disputes — the B.C. Labor Code or the federal courts.

According to the Labor Code courts can enter a dispute only when life or health is at stake.

The NDP government still believes in the free collective bargaining system, King said but "no right is absolute — it must be tempered and weighed against the consequences . . . on innocent parties and the people involved."

The economic warfare is jeopardizing the basic safety, comfort and health of the people in BC., the minister said.

King outlined the efforts made by the department of labor in all the disputes involved to help the parties arrive at a voluntary collective agreement.

He said he would not make judgments on the conduct of the parties involved as it would create controversy and inflame the situation.

Scope of the bill took the Canadian Paperworkers union by surprise.

Union spokesman Reno Biasutti said there would be official comment later, but he said initial reaction of officials was surprise that the bill would encompass industries other than the propane distributors, where the shutdown is causing hardship to business, industry and individuals.

He said the bill will be discussed by the paperworkers' regional vice-president, elected officials and staff as soon as a meeting can be arranged.

In Nanaimo, Stan Shewaga, bargaining committee chairman for the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada said his committee will have to study any order the government issues and "we will have to make some decisions."

He said it was too soon to comment further but his initial reaction on hearing of the bill was that it showed the government and the forest industry were at a loss what to do at this point over negotiations with the IWA.

Hugh Armstrong, public affairs manager for B.C. Railway declined to comment on the bill until he has had a chance to study it.

He said 790 railway employees out of a total staff of 3,000 who have been laid off because of the labor strife in the province will be rehired as business increases.

Consulate Bombed

Little Progress In Forest Talks

B.C. forest industry negotiations, now in their fourth week, are continuing in Victoria with little signs of progress.

International Woodworkers of America negotiators now are considering a proposal from the forest companies presented Monday and believed to be related to the three-year dispute at the Huntting-Merritt shingle mill in Vancouver.

Terms of the proposal have not been disclosed. The Huntting-Merritt dispute last week help up negotiations while the two sides wrangled about whether it should be included as a contract discussion item.

IWA regional president Jack Munro met with Labor Minister Bill King on Monday and said King impressed on him the importance of settling the dispute to the provincial economy.

Earl Foxcroft, president of the IWA's Port Alberni local, said after Monday's negotiation sessions that if the mood of the discussions carries on, the two sides could be on their way to an agreement.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Paperworkers Union, one of two B.C. pulp unions on strike since July, set up a picket line in Richmond Monday outside Capital Paper Supply Ltd.

Gideon Diekman, president of the local, said the picketing was a delayed strategy in the dispute. The pulp unions earlier escalated their picketing activities to include related operations.

Diekman said the pickets would stay outside the paper supply plant until "the whole dispute is settled."

Housing Starts Increase, Still Below '74 Figures

OTTAWA (CP) — Housing starts increased across the country in September, the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp said today.

In its monthly survey, CMHC said that while seasonally-adjusted figures for the month are up, the numbers of starts still lag behind last year.

Starts in urban areas last month were 18,693, up 37 per cent from 13,628 for September, 1974.

Seasonally-adjusted figures for September show starts at 234,400 for all areas compared with 226,200 for August. But the actual number of starts in all areas for the first nine months of 1975 is 119,801, lagging behind the 135,596 in the same period last year.

The seasonally-adjusted rate is based on factors such as actual starts in 10 major urban centres, availability of building materials and labor, past performance, weather and the supply of mortgage money.

The federal government has set a minimum target of 210,000 housing starts this year.

Single-family home starts in September were 9,192, an increase from 6,850 in September, 11974.

Soviets Walk Out

PEKING (Reuter) — Seven Communist envoys walked out of Peking's Great Hall of the People Monday night when Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping in a speech alluded to Moscow as "the most dangerous source of war."

It was the first walkout by Russian and East European diplomats from a Peking banquet in three years.

The banquet was in honor of visiting Yugoslav Prime Minister Dzemal Bijedic.

Soviet Ambassador B. C. Tolstikov, was followed from the hall by the envoys of Bulgaria, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and the Mongolian People's Republic.

the weather

Skies were relatively cloudless over most of B.C. overnight and this morning with the exception of a few showers along the outer coast. This pattern will continue with showers on the coast but generally sunny elsewhere. The one problem spot is the extreme southeastern section which is suffering the effects of a frontal system in the neighboring states. The cloud and rain there will gradually dissipate today as the system moves on towards the Prairies.

Little change is expected for Wednesday with sunshine for most areas. A few showers on the coast and temperatures continuing at or a little below normal.

A.L. Green Back On TSE Board

Trading in shares of A. L. Green Ltd. resumed at the opening after being halted shortly after 1 p.m. Monday pending announcement that Metropolitan Stores of Canada Ltd. will offer to buy all outstanding common shares of A. L. Green for $1.75 a share. A. L. Green gained 70 cents to $1.60, its highest price this year, on volume of 300 shares. Metropolitan Stores A, which had not traded by 2 p.m., last closed at $13.

General Motors dropped ⅞ to $54⅛, Ashland Oil Canada ½ to $8¾, Union Oil of Canada ½ to $7¾, Moore Corp. ½ to $45⅞ and Standard Broadcasting ½ to $7¼.

Imperial Oil A rose ½ to $24½, Huron and Erie Mortgage Corp; ½ to $22½, Stelco A ⅜ to $30⅛ and Pacific Pete ¼ to $26.

Among mines, Place Development fell ½ to $20, Kerr Addison A ⅛ to $11 and Sherritt Gordon A⅛ to $6½. Teck Corp. A was up 20 cents to $3.70 and United Asbestos 10 cents to $4.80.

PanCanadian Pete gained ⅜ to $16⅛. Canadian Superior ⅜ to $38¾ and Western Decalta Pete ⅛ to $5¾. American Eagle Pete fell five cents to 40 cents.

New York

Analysts said some profit-taking was to be expected after the recent rally, which in three days carried the Dow 35.50 points higher. But they said two factors added to the selling:

Indications that the federal reserve board has not eased off on its monetary policy as much as earlier anticipated and a New York court ruling which has temporarily restrained the state comptroller from helping out in the latest save-the-city plan.

Middle South Utilities, steady at $13⅝, and Boise Cascade, off ¾ to $21⅝, were the most-active NYSE stocks.

Other active movers included National Semiconductor, down 1¼ to $46, Xerox 1⅛ to $58⅜, IBM 1⅝ to $199⅝ and International Minerals and Chemicals 1 to $38⅜.

The most-active American Stock Exchange issue, Syntex, dropped ¾ to $32⅛.

London

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials gained 8.2 to 329.8 at the close.

Canadian issues were fractionally higher in quiet trading.

Inflation Shredding Shopping Lists

MONTREAL (CP) — In the face of continuing inflation, consumers will be forced to eliminate some traditional items from their shopping lists, Lawrence Murphy, an Ottawa economist, predicted Monday.

When items are essential and cannot be eliminated, consumers will increasingly opt for lower-priced and lower-quality merchandise, Murphy said during a seminar at the annual meeting of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association.

Revisions to shopping lists will occur largely because the prices of food and energy will continue to increase. These two items will also continue to gobble up a larger percentage of consumers' incomes, said Murphy, an economist with the Conference Board in Canada.

Prices can be expected to increase substantially with the predicted 11-per-cent inflation rate during most of 1976.

Murphy said expenditures for non-durable items will be sluggish next year.

In the realm of expenditures for durable items, automobile sales were about the only sector which should improve significantly.

Although over-all consumer expenditures are expected to rise, the increase will play a small role in general economic recovery, as has happened following similar economic downturns, he said.

Earlier Monday, two speakers told the 150 delegates that Canada must rely more heavily on sources of energy other than oil and gas, which are non-renewable and rapidly diminishing.

Walter Ward, outgoing president of the association, suggested coal, hydro-power and uranium must be utilized inceasingly as energy sources, especially for the generation of electricity.

A. J. O'Connor, general manager of New Brunswick Power, said solar energy should be further investigated for use in home heating.

The two-day annual meeting ends today.

Losses Blamed On Gov't, Union

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian electrical products are no longer competitive on world markets because of excessive wage demands and government hindrance, the new president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association says.

"It's a great tragedy that the federal government doesn't recognize this," C. G. Maiden said in a statement circulated to reporters attending the association's annual meeting.

"The profit margin for most of our companies is now so slim that managements see some of their operations as a losing proposition," he said. "This is particularly true in appliance manufacturing."

In a criticism of organized labor, Maiden said "the union practices evolved 30 to 40 years ago don't make sense today.

"The unions are still a political structure and their inflexible attitudes seriously hamper management's ability to eliminate bad practices and raise productivity."

Maiden's criticism of government largely hinged on he Economic Council of Canada's recommendation that free trade policies be adopted.

Industry spokesmen have said free trade policies would open the door to unlimited imports of lower-priced electrical products manufactured in countries with wage rates only a fraction of those in Canada. Canada's domestic industry would be doomed.

Instead of free trade, the federal government should be encouraging expansion, research and development within the electrical manufacturing industry, Maiden said.

Imports of electrical goods in 1974 totalled $2.74 billion, compared with exports of $923 million, he said.

About 150 delegates attended the two-day conference which ends today.

CHRYSLER RECORD

Retail delivery of cars totalled 13,396, up 24.8 per cent from the 10,652 sold in September of last year. The total was 15.2 per cent higher than the previous record for the month of 11,540 set in 1972.

Chrysler sold 3,669 trucks in September compared with 3,429 in the same month last year, a 13.9-per-cent increase.

In the first nine months of this year, Chrysler delivered 151,128 cars, down 1.4 per cent from the 1974 nine-month total of 153,223. Nine-month truck sales were 35,330, down 1.5 per cent from last year.

Spokane Firm To Develop Coal Stripper

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A Spokane firm with a reputation for inventing massive machines for gigantic tasks has been awarded nearly a $500,000 contract to find a better way to strip mine coal.

The United States Bureau of Mines awarded the contract to the R. A. Hanson Co. to develop new techniques to increase coal production while reducing costs.

The contract is for finding better ways to remove overburden over coal deposits and to reduce the amount of material rehandling that is necessary.

Peter Kerwien, company manager, said it is expected that the company will receive another contract for construction and testing of strip-mining machinery.

The company is the world's leading manufacturer of large canal-building equipment, Kerwien said. The company is trying to develop profitable ways to extract oil from Canadian tar sands, he added.

Named to IOS

HALIFA7 (CP) — Ralph L. Hennessy of Ottawa, executive-director of the Standards Council of Canada, has been elected vice-president of the International Organization for Standardization. Hennessy assumes office Jan. 1, 1976, for a three-year period, succeeding Nikolaus Ludwig, director of the West German standards organization DIN.

Bean Sales Up

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Vigorous overseas marketing has increased the value of white and yellow beans exported by Ontario farmers to more than $30 million annually, the chairman of the Ontario bean producers marketing board reports. Chairman Phil Durand of Zurich, Ont., said in a news release that bean exports have multiplied seven-fold since 1967 and now are a major factor in the Ontario economy.

IBM, Telex Settle

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — International Business Machines Corp. and the Telex Corp. have agreed to drop suits they filed against each other, the two companies announced.

The agreement was reached after IBM released Telex from an $18.5-million judgment, and Telex dropped an antitrust suit against IBM, said Telex president S. J. Jatras.

IBM originally won a $22-million judgment against Telex, but that was trimmed to $18.5 million in U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last Jan. 24.

The same court threw out a judgment of $259.5 million against IBM that Telex had won in district court.

TOWN TALK

A riot, according to the Criminal Code, is "an unlawful assembly that has begun to disturb the peace tumultuously."

Town Talk isn't sure whether the term could be applied to that pugilistic display which spoiled Saturday's hockey game at the Memorial Arena, but Mayor Peter Pollen did comment later that he thought the Riot Act could have been read — although he admitted he was unfamiliar with the procedure.

Well, for His Worship's enlightenment we looked up this ancient law and this is what it says:

"A justice, mayor or sheriff . . . who receives notice that, at any place within his jurisdiction, twelve or more persons are unlawfully and riotously assembled together, shall go to that place and, after approaching as near as safely he may do, if he is satisfied that a riot is in progress, shall command silence (wishful thinking in the Memorial Arena?) and thereupon make or cause to be made in a loud voice a proclamation in the following words or to the like effect:

" 'Her Majesty the Queen charges and commands all persons being assembled immediately to disperse and peaceably to depart to their habitations and to their lawful business upon the pain of being guilty to an offence for which, upon conviction, they may be sentenced to imprisonment for life. God Save The Queen'."

So next time, Mr. Mayor, you know what to do. And the best of British luck to you, sir.

And the winner is . . . Housing Minister Lorne Nicholson.

Always given to interpreting the phrase mix 'n' match in a singularly bizarre manner, Nicolson surpassed himself with the simply terrible outfit he wore at last Friday's swearing-in of new cabinet ministers at Government House.

But they do recall with a shudder the sky-blue pants yanked a good six inches above the ankle, revealing creamy-colored socks and brown oxfords. And, oh yes — or oh no — a whitish jacket wih blue pinstripe.

Suffice to say that Nathan Detroit, Good-Time Charlie, Dave the Dude, Bookie Bob and other Damon Runyan characters would have felt not at all out of place if they, too, had been at Government House.

. . . candidate?

As is their wont, those civic-minded senior citizens who call themselves the James Bay New Horizons have laid on an all-candidates meeting at James Bay United Church on Oct. 31.

Much as we hate to be negative, we in this corner have to ask: What candidates?

Apart from Ald. Mike Young who announced months ago he would seek the mayor's seat, and Ald. Bill Tindall who will offer himself for re-election, not a single candidate has declared any intention of trying for a city council seat in the Nov. 15 municipal election.

(The two other incumbents whose terms expire this year are Ald. Clyde Savage and Ald. Malcolm Anderson. Savage is stepping down after 10 years on council and Anderson says he'll know by Friday, after talking to his stockbroker bosses, what his plans are.)

However, the scuttlebutt at City Hall has it that there are some new faces waiting in the wings, including businesswoman Helen Beirnes, a former president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, and architect Bob Siddall.

No doubt, too, we'll be seeing some of those never-say-die losers from past elections.

Ho hum.

For people who have a hard time remembering telephone numbers the new listing for Oak Bay recreation is literally made to order, assuming the prefix is within their capacity.

So what's easy? The last four digits spell SWIM — check your dial.

That was some guarantee offered to Victoria's would-be non-smokers by the Quit Centre for the Control of Smoking, which suddenly closed its doors under somewhat mysterious circumstances a few weeks ago.

The document said that if after attending five of the "aversion-conditioning" sessions at the centre, co-operating with the therapist and following all instructions, the smoker is still puffing away, he or she will be "entitled to request a refund in full" of the pre-paid fee.

Not "will receive" a refund, but be entitled to request one.

Big deal.

But that's not all.

To be "entitled," the hapless addict of the weed must certify in writing on that fifth day and not a day later that he is still smoking.

What's more, he has to demonstrate the fact "by smoking and inhaling an entire cigarette in front of a Quit Centre representative."

In other words, if they haven't cured you they went to make darned sure you're still a likely candidate for smoker's cough or worse before they hand you back your money.

The old kill-or-cure syndrome.

Charles Hornsby, an elderly resident of James Bay Lodge, has been playing cribbage all his life but until this week he had never had a perfect hand of 29.

At the time he was playing with other blind cribbage fans at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind on Blanshard, and a friend reports he was tickled pink.

Players use cards marked in Braille at the corners which can also be used by sighted persons.

Peter Pollen's departure from the mayor's office next month adds punch to at least one local realtor's sales pitch, or so he would have one of his clients believe.

The client talked for months about selling his house, located on property zoned for a single family dwelling. At first, he considered asking $39,000 but with an eye on the market and his thoughts on easy money, his price was at $45,000 when he went to a realtor.

Too low, the realtor said, $52,000 with little trouble. The reason: as soon as Peter Pollen leaves office, the land will be rezoned for multiple-dwelling use.

Apparently, the realtor either doesn't know or isn't telling his client that when Pollen leaves, there'll still be a city council and council as a whole has set a policy against rezoning from single family dwelling use in the area.

Regardless, whatever the client gets for his house will be gravy — he bought it three years ago for $21,000.

A stripper for the stripper or . . . something for the gals as well as the guys.

At a local pub last week while the lady was doing her act on stage, six chaps carried in a nude male on their shoulders and deposited him . . . in front of the star.

New Scanner Will Help Near-Blind

An electronic scanner to help partially sighted people to read will be purchased for the Victoria centre of Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

It will be obtained through CNIB women's auxiliary as a memorial to former local director Gloria Sewell, who died shortly after publishing with her husband Ray the autobiographical, House Without Windows.

The auxiliary's main fund-raising effort will be a coffee party and raffle to be held in the centre from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Oct. 24, offering as major prizes a portable television set and paintings.

A closed-circuit TV camera is the heart of the scanner, which costs about $1,600 under the name Visualtek.

For persons with as little as 10 per cent vision it makes possible the recognition of words that would be impossible to read any other way.

The high cost restricts private use of the machines, but an exception is Marshall Hall, 3374 Shelbourne, who has installed a scanner for use in his business as a manufacturer's agent.

Winery Pleads Not Guilty

St. Michelle Wines Ltd., 3948 Quadra, pleaded not guilty in Victoria provincial court today to causing or permitting a discharge of polluting materials into Blenkinsop Creek.

The charge was laid after pollution control officials found a substantial amount of organic material had been spilled into the creek on July 3.

Officials said the pollution could have spread to Swan Lake and caused health and odor problems.

A trial date has been set for Jan. 21 at 10:30 a.m. in Courtroom A, provincial court, 633 Fisgard.

Resthaven Head Off To Toronto

Lloyd Bell, administrator at Resthaven Hospital in Sidney for the past five years, has been named administrator of North York Branson Hospital in Toronto.

The 56-bed hospital in Sidney and the 520-bed Branson hospital are the two acute care hospitals operated by the Seventh Day Adventists in Canada.

Bell will replace George Rogers, former Resthaven administrator, who is retiring. The new administrator at Resthaven will be Laurie Dunsfield, administrator of the hospital at McBride, east of Prince George.

The Bells will leave for Toronto in about a week.

Resthaven Hospital will eventually be replaced by an acute care wing being planned for the Saanich Peninsula Hospital on Mount Newton Crossroad.

Among proposals for Resthaven once it is no longer providing acute care is to maintain it for care of the elderly or for rehabilitation work.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Mel Couvelier announced today he has resigned as alderman to run against Saanich Mayor Ed Lum Nov. 15 on the issue of "deliberate misrepresentation or incompetence" by Lum in the police pay award.

The announcement split Saanich council, including a comment from Ald. John McDonald that it was unfair of Couvelier to launch his attack just after the mayor had left town on a two-week vacation and was not able to defend himself.

However, Mayor Ed Lum, who is on vacation in Florida, told the Times the police pay award was a non-issue because council had decided to pay the police about the same amount as had been awarded earlier to CUPE municipal workers.

"We passed a provisional budget of a 24 per cent pay increase for the police and the award (of 22.5 per cent) was within that budget," Lum said in a telephone interview.

"We had decided we would not pay them less than the CUPE workers got."

Couvelier launched his attack on Lum Monday afternoon at Saanich council meeting, saying the mayor either deliberately misled council or should have known that council had the power to veto the pay award of 22.5 per cent handed down by the Saanich police commission.

The police award received final ratification July 2 and then it was learned Sept. 23 that council has the power to overrule the police commission. On the latter date, Victoria council received a ruling from the provincial Labor Relations Board that the intent of amendments to the B.C. Police Act was that council would have the final say in wage agreements.

No Way of Knowing–Lum

Lum said Saanich council had no way of knowing before Sept. 23 that the amendments would produce that ruling by the Labor Relations Board. In previous years, any award made by the police board was binding on the council.

Regardless of this uncertainty about the effect of the amendments, however, Lum said, the key issue was whether police should have been granted a lower pay increase than that given to CUPE workers. He said aldermen agreed that the pay increase would be within the ballpark of the CUPE agreement.

The award to CUPE varied with the type of occupation but was around 24 per cent, with laborers getting a 26 per cent pay increase.

In a news conference this morning, Couvelier said his resignation as alderman was effective immediatly.

The issue in the Nov. 15 mayoralty election would be incompetent leadership on a number of problems, mainly the Saanich police pay award, he said.

He said a decision by the Labor Relations Board that Victoria council had the power to veto the award by its police board also mentioned that Victoria council had been put on the spot because Saanich had already agreed to pay more than Victoria was offering. He said the LRB report says in effect the Saanich police got a 25 per cent pay increase, not 22.5 per cent, and this was above the provisional budget of 24 per cent.

(The additional pay was the result of promotions to higher pay levels.)

Couvelier said council had the power to veto the award of its police board and should have been told so.

Ald. Roy Wooten said he and Ald. Mary Casilio voted against the police award even though they were led to believe they did not have the power to veto it.

Ald. Joe Bourque said today he voted in favor only because he was told the council had no authority to reject it.

Ald. McDonald said he favored the pay award to the police on the grounds that the police should not be given a salary increase less than was given CUPE workers. He said he fully defended Mayor Lum's position.

Couvelier denied that his attack on Mayor Lum was a behind-the-back affair. He said he wrote a letter to council dated Sept. 23, when the mayor was still in town, saying he would raise the issue of the police pay award at the Oct. 6 council meeting.

Council voted to ask staff for a full report on the background of the pay award and to see if there is grounds for an appeal to the LRB.

Dental-Care Plan 'Waste of Money'

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

The British Columbia government's plan to create a dental-care insurance program was knocked Monday by one of the world's foremost experts on preventive dentistry.

"Rather than wasting time and public money on devising a dental-care plan, the B.C. government should direct its efforts on the prevention of dental disease," said Dr. Miles Markley, a noted American dentist who has lectured on preventive dentistry in the United States, Canada, Europe and Australia.

"Attempting to treat the symptoms instead of removing the causes of dental diseases won't cure anything," Markley told the Victoria District Dental Association at a one-day conference at the Empress on Monday.

"It's like giving someone who has a headache an aspirin," said the recipient of the 1975 Outstanding Achievement Award from the American Society of Preventive Dentistry.

Markley, a clinical professor of restorative dentistry at the University of Colorado, urged the B.C. government to fluoridate the province's water supply and teach hygiene and nutrition in the elementary schools.

"Even though fluoride has been known to reduce dental diseases by 65 per cent, there are very few B.C. communities which add it to their water."

"Fluoride is not a drug or a medicine but a food which keeps one from getting dental diseases," he told more than 100 dentists and dental assistants.

Markley said that because of the high consumption of processed foods today, bacterial plaque on teeth is prevalent and must be removed each day if cavities, gum diseases and the loosening of teeth is to be prevented.

Every household, he said, should have a bottle of disclosing tablets. When chewed and swished between the teeth for about 30 seconds, the dye is these tablets stains any plaque on the teeth.

He cited an example of an 18-month-old child — "the worst case of sugar overdose I have ever seen."

"The parents told me that whenever the child cried, they gave him a soother dipped in Coca-Cola syrup . . . the child's teeth had consequently decayed clear down to the gums."

Tuition Fee Increase?

Camosun College council next month will consider a tuition fee increase which would add about $130,000 renewal to the hard-pressed school.

Proposed is a doubling of the $150 a year paid by vocational students and a $50 a year increase in tuition for academic technical students now paying $250.

Dr. Hal Knight, chairman of the council, said today the college is faced with a decision to increase the fees paid by students or "sock it to the taxpayer again next year," by increasing the mill rate.

The fee increase "lightens the load" for taxpayers, he said.

The council will meet Nov. 3.

Knight said the general impression among college councillors is that there is some justification for the increase.

Fee hikes, have been widely discussed with students and "it doesn't seem to be a concern. There seems to be a lot more money around."

Proposal prepared by college principal Dr. Grant Fisher equalizes fees paid for both academic technical and voactional students and the $300 tuition is still far below tuition ($428) at University of Victoria, said Knight.

For students in need of help there is a variety of funds available, he added.

Flames Force Fire Drill Delay

A fire drill at Belmont Fisher Secondary School held in connection with Fire Prevention Week had to be postponed Monday . . . because of a fire in the school.

Langford fire chief Al Lequesne said today he was driving to the school at about 1 p.m. to conduct the drill when he spotted black smoke rising from behind the building.

He thought nothing of it. The smoke was coming from an area near the school's incinerators.

But, as he was trying to find a parking space in front of the school, a group of students called him to come to the rear of the building.

While another fireman who had accompanied him for the drill raced back to the fire hall to get the truck and turn in the alarm, Lequesne remained.

Twelve volunteers were at the scene within minutes but not before fire had engulfed the old army hut housing the spray shop and had spread through an open fire door into a storage area. There its progress was halted.

Lequesne estimated loss of equipment and building at between $8,000 to $9,000.

He believed the fire was caused by an electrical failure possibly in the spray shop's exhaust fan motor.

The chief said the school had tried to reach the fire department by phone but kept getting a busy signal. A teacher was apparently just leaving to try to find another telephone when Lequesne arrived.

"There must have been something wrong with their phone system," he said. "We have a multi-number line to accept emergency calls and as far as I know it was working."

SANDS — COLWOOD

WRIGHT—Suddenly in Victoria on October 4, 1975, William Wright of 969 Esquimalt Rd., formerly of Ladysmith. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. C. M. Eaton of Victoria, Mrs. S. Stone of Ottawa, Ontario, and Mrs. M. Sommerville of Bamfield, B.C.; 2 brothers, John J. of 969 Esquimalt and David C. of 916 Old Esquimalt Rd; numerous nieces and nephews.

Funeral service in McCall Bros. Chapel, Johnson and Vancouver Streets, on Wed., Oct. 8, at 1:00 p.m., followed by cremation. (Flowers gratefully declined. Donations, if desired, may be made to the Heart Fund, 1008 Blanshard St.)

8 CARD OF THANKS

My wife and I wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to the nurses and staff of C.C.U. for their many kindnesses, and excellent care during my unexpected stay in Victoria General Hospital. A special thanks to Doctors Friesen and Morrison. We are deeply grateful. — Burnell Wood, Belleville, Ontario.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DEFTY — In loving memory of Ellen Defty, sadly missed by Bob and Nora, Albert, and many friends. Oct. 6, 1974.

HOULIHAN—In loving memory of my sweet sister,
Maimie Houlihan
who passed away Oct. 9, 1968.
No one knows how I miss you,
Life has never been the same.
In my heart your sweet memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true.
Resting peacefully with God in Heaven,
A beautiful angel, sweet Maimie,
I always think of you.
—Always remembered by her loving brother, Jimmie Houlihan.

WHITTAKER—In loving memory of Samuel Whittaker who passed away Oct. 7, 1972.
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said "Come"
And with farewells unspoken
He gently entered home.
—Always remembered by his living wife and family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

3 NDP MLAs Against

At least three NDP MLAs plan to vote against their own government's back-to-work legislation.

The three labor-oriented back-benchers all expressed disappointment and some surprise this morning when confronted with the government's legislation.

"It's very sudden and far-reaching and I'm trying to get my own thoughts together. It's a time for firm action but I don't think it needs to be this far-reaching," said Richmond MLA Harold Steeves.

Steeves said he had no idea the bill would be so sweeping and as far as he knew other NDP back-benchers were also not aware of the cabinet's decision.

"I'm very disappointed with the legislation and am seriously considering voting against it," said Steeves.

Colin Gabelmann (North Vancouver-Seymour), a former employee of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said the move violates a policy and principle the NDP campaigned for in the last election.

"For me it violates a principle I hold very strongly," he said, adding that while it is not compulsory arbitration it is intervention that constitutes a violation of collective bargaining.

Rosemary Brown (Vancouver-Burrard) said she will not speak in the debate but she is disappointed and will vote against the bill.

William McDonald, spokesman for the B.C. Food Council, said today the move by the government to set workers back on the job was welcome but added he would hold his applause until he has reviewed the bill in detail.

"This has taken me totally

BARRETT . . . province comes first

By LINDA HUGHES and LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The provincial government today moved to end all B.C.'s major labor disputes with a back-to-work order and a 90-day cooling-off period.

Legislation introduced at an emergency sitting of the house this morning orders an end to the forestry, food, propane and B.C. Railway disputes within 48 hours.

The order is effective for 90 days and Premier Barrett said if collective agreements are not negotiated to settle the disputes by that time, "other moves will be made."

His government still believes in the collective bargaining process but the good of the province must come before the individual desires of management and labor, Barrett said.

"It's an unusual step and I know it was unexpected," he told a news conference shortly after the legislation was tabled in the house.

The decision was made during cabinet meetings Sunday and Monday, he said, and the government had no hesitation in making the step without consulting any other party.

MLAs were called Sunday to the special session and were expecting to face legislation dealing only with the 12-week-old propane distributors strike.

But the legislation also deals with the five-month-old pulp and paper dispute, the month-old food merchandising strike and the recent rotating strikes by B.C. Railway workers.

Asked if he would be willing to fight an election over the government's decision, Barrett said, "It's not a matter of fighting an election, either we govern or we don't."

There are clauses in the bill to force compliance but the only obvious section to enforce the law says that cabinet "may make regulations," he added.

Provisions of the bill will take effect 48 hours after it comes in force.

Labor Minister Bill King indicated that the "breathing spell" could give the International Woodworkers of America a chance to conclude a collective agreement without being subject to the act.

Employers covered by the act are Forest Industrial Relations, Interior Forest Labor Relations Association, Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, Interior Loggers' Association, British Columbia Railway, Transport Labor Relations Association, and the Food Industry Labor Relations Council.

All unions which bargain with those employers are covered by the act.

The bill sets out that all employers must reinstate their operation or business "to the extent and scope that it was on the date the strike or lock-out first occurred."

No employer is allowed to restrict, limit, reduce, diminish or slow down his operation and is required either lift a lock-out or to call back to work each employee who has been on strike or laid off because of the strike.

No strikes, lock-outs or picketing are allowed during the 90-day period.

The legislation also sets out that employers and unions enter "good-faith negotiations" immediately.

While these negotiations are going on, both management and unions will be covered by whatever collective agreement was in force on Jan. 1, 1975. That collective agreement is in force either until a new one is reached or until the act expires in 90 days.

Every collective agreement concluded during the 90-day period must contain, unless the agreement specifies otherwise, provisions for retroactive pay to the expiry date of the last collective agreement.

King stressed several times in the house the hardships facing the families of union members on strike for several months. He said there were some people "almost on the starvation border and that in my view is an indictment of the responsibilities of both management and labor. We

There are about 48,000 people in B.C. on strike, locked out, or laid off.

This includes 29,000 IWA workers, 13,000 pulp and paper workers, 4,500 in the food industry, between 500 to 1,000 others laid off in other companies because of the loss of business in the food industry, about 300 Teamsters in the propane dispute, and 790 railway workers laid off because of the strikes in the woods industry.

Strikebreaking —Pulp Leader

B.C.'s three opposition parties today indicated they would vote for the government's back-to-work legislation. More varied reaction came from labor union and industry spokesmen.

"It's strikebreaking legislation," Stan Shewaga bargaining committee chairman of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada said in Nanaimo.

He couldn't promise that PPWC members would comply with terms of the bill.

A caucus meeting had been called for Wednesday "and we'll make our decisions then," he said and added he has reason to believe the PPWC will get B.C. Federation of Labor support regardless of their decision.

"How anyone in his right mind would think the cooling-off period will make anything happen, I don't know," Shewaga said.

He predicted "so damned much disatisfaction" if workers are forced back to work, "that it won't be a very productive situation."

Social Credit leader, Bill Bennett, obviously taken aback by the government move, said he will support the legislation, but it is a stop-gap measure.

He said the government is trying, through the back-to-work bill, to share its blame with the complete legislature because the government has had to do a complete turnaround in its position.

"I see a labor minister and a government that has used labor . . . come to the realization that there are no easy answers," Bennett said.

He said the government cannot be the captain of either labor or management but must take a third-party role.

Speaking for the Liberal party, new leader Gordon Gibson said it is the duty of the provincial government to show leadership and direction in contract negotiations.

He blamed the government for feeding inflation and unrest within the labor movement through its own civil service wage settlements.

The cost of living adjustment is all a labor union should be granted to keep up with inflation, he said.

The province is now recog-

Doctors Top Income Group

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Medical doctors had the highest average income of any occupational group in Canada in 1973, and the Toronto suburb of Oakville retained top place among major cities according to income.

The information is contained in the government's "green book" on tax statistics which was released Monday.

The document reported that in the 1973 taxation year, self-employed physicians and surgeons earned an average of $42,730 a year, followed by self-employed lawyers and notaries $36,598, and self-employed engineers and architects $33,751.

Average annual incomes of other groups during the year included: self-employed dentists, $31,160; self-employed accountants, $26,993; self-employed salesmen, $10,872; investors, $10,199; farmers, $9,543; business proprietors, $9,333; fishermen, $8,783 and employees, $8,568.

Teachers and professors led in income among employee groups, with annual average earnings of $10,920. They were followed by members of the armed forces $10,390, federal employees $9,744, provincial employees $9,278, municipal employees $8,973, and business employees $8,501.

Nearly last on the list were pensioners, whose incomes were $5,813 on average.

This left them well below the average income for all taxpayers of $8,665 in 1973. This was up from the 1972 over-all average of $7,784.

Highest income cities in B.C., with their position in Canada in brackets, were: Prince Rupert, $9,706 (seventh — it placed 31st in 1972); Alberni, $9,455 (tenth); Prince George, $9,451 (11th); Vancouver, $9,195 (16th); Kamloops, $9,083 (22nd); New Westminster, $8,902 (26th); Trail-Rossland, $8,894 (27th); Victoria, $8,803 (30th); Nanaimo, $8,729 (34th); Vernon, $8,511 (45th); Kelowna, $8,474 (50th); Dawson Creek, $8,233 (63rd); Penticton, $7,714 (90th).

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Officials of a multimillion-dollar Dutch manufacturing company say hope is fading for a ransom deal to save the life of kidnapped executive, Tiede Herrema.

Firemen End Strike

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Striking firemen were back at their stations early today, ending a four-day walkout marked by city officials' accusations that some of the strikers resorted to arson.

Artillery Troops Mutiny, Reds March on Lisbon

Times News Services

LISBON — Mutinous troops occupied a key artillery base in the northern city of Porto today as thousands of Communist-led workers flocked into Lisbon for an openly anti-government demonstration.

Brig. Pires Veloso, commander of the northern military district, called the commander of the artillery unit a "traitor" and ordered the arrest of all officers in the regiment.

The far-left newspaper Republica called the developments in Porto an historic event.

"For the first time after centuries of rule by the dominant class, the vast, exploited majority of soldiers have the power to decide how their arms should be used," the newspaper said.

In the capital, radical soldiers of another rebellious artillery unit rejected President Francisco da Costa Gomes's call for discipline and said they will use their guns to protect Portugal's "oppressed classes."

Soldiers of the 1st Light Artillery Regiment, stationed on the outskirts of the capital, were cheered by a Communist-led crowd of several thousand when one trooper climbed on a guardhouse rooftop Monday and shouted:

"We have voted to be always on the side of the people. We are ready to use our arms to protect the oppressed classes."

Two soldiers on the guardhouse rooftop, however, held a large red banner saying: "No to civil war."

Late Monday, the Socialist party issued a statement denouncing efforts by "certain sectors" to use the demonstration to "throw workers against workers and soldiers against soldiers."

DRIVING RAIN . . .

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japanese sporting goods maker today put on sale an umbrella with a golf club grip handle, so golf enthusiasts can practice swings with it while waiting for commuter trains.

A spokesman for Mizuno Inc. said the special umbrella will sell for $10.

RUNNING for mayor in Saanich Nov. 15 is Mel Couvelier who resigned as alderman to challenge incumbent Ed Lum. In a news conference this morning, he said the issue was "deliberate misrepresentation or incompetence" by Lum on a number of issues, mainly the police pay award. Couvelier's charges and Lum's reply are on page 9.

Youth Curfew, Fingerprinting Urged

SURREY (CP) — Juvenile offenders over 14 should be fingerprinted and photographed by police and a system of damage restitution should be initiated, a task force on juvenile crime told council Monday.

The group's final report also recommended a juvenile curfew, more family therapy and counselling groups, and increased manpower for the RCMP. The 11-member group has been studying juvenile crime problems for nearly a year.

Mayor Bill Vander Zalm said council will meet with the task force as soon as possible after studying the report.

"Holding young offenders responsible and accountable for their acts is a key to reversing the present trend, but must go hand-in-hand with community action to meet their needs in preventive, rehabilitative and corrective measures," the report said.

"It is felt by many that the existing atmosphere in dealing with juveniles has a tendency toward forbearance and leniency and that such attitudes are detrimental instead of beneficial."

The report recommends a pilot project establishing small neighborhood councils to deal with local concerns, a family service centre to provide family therapy and group counselling, and increased use of foster parent programs.

Emphasized are vocational, recreational and therapeutic facilities. A day attendance centre for juveniles and a secure holding facility also should be developed on a local basis to deal with young people who run away.

The report said data such as fingerprints and photographs of young offenders would not be sent to any national or provincial fingerprint repository and the prints would be destroyed after a probation period.

In a section dealing with law reform, the report recommends that a municipal bylaw counteract proposed provincial legislation which would allow drinking in public places.

A. L. Green Back On TSE Board

Trading in shares of A. L. Green Ltd. resumed at the opening after being halted shortly after 1 p.m. Monday pending announcement that Metropolitan Stores of Canada Ltd. will offer to buy all outstanding common shares of A. L. Green for $1.75 a share. A. L. Green gained 70 cents to $1.60, its highest price this year, on volume of 300 shares. Metropolitan Stores A, which had not traded by 2 p.m., last closed at $13.

General Motors dropped ⅞ to $54⅛, Ashland Oil Canada ½ to $8¾, Union Oil of Canada ½ to $7¾, Moore Corp. ½ to $45⅞ and Standard Broadcasting ½ to $7¼.

Imperial Oil A rose ½ to $24½, Huron and Erie Mortgage Corp. ½ to $22½, Stelco A ⅜ to $30⅛ and Pacific Pete ¼ to $26.

Among mines, Place Development fell ½ to $20, Kerr Addison A ⅛ to $11 and Sherritt Gordon A ⅛ to $6½. Teck Corp. A was up 20 cents to $3.70 and United Asbestos 10 cents to $4.80.

PanCanadian Pete gained ⅜ to $16⅛. Canadian Superior ⅜ to $38¾ and Western Decalta Pete ⅛ to $5⅜. American Eagle Pete fell five cents to 40 cents.

New York

Analysts said some profit-taking was to be expected after the recent rally, which in three days carried the Dow 35.50 points higher. But they said two factors added to the selling:

Indications that the federal reserve board has not eased off on its monetary policy as much as earlier anticipated and a New York court ruling which has temporarily restrained the state comptroller from helping out in the latest save-the-city plan.

Middle South Utilities, steady at $13⅝, and Boise Cascade, off ¾ to $21⅝, were the most-active NYSE stocks.

Other active movers included National Semiconductor, down 1¼ to $46, Xerox 1⅛ to $58⅝, IBM 1⅜ to $199⅝ and International Minerals and Chemicals 1 to $38⅜.

The most-active American Stock Exchange issue, Syntex, dropped ¾ to $32⅛.

Montreal

Prices were mixed in moderate trading at Montreal.

Weston Ltd. dropped ¼ to $17½, Canadian Pacific ⅛ to $13⅝, Alcan Aluminium ⅜ to $21⅛, Interprovincial Pipeline ¼ to $11⅝ and Dome Petroleum ⅛ to $31. IMASCO A rose ¼ to $30¼, Imperial Oil A ½ to $24½ and Pacific Petroleums ¾ to $26¼.

London

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials gained 8.2 to 329.8 at the close.

Canadian issues were fractionally higher in quiet trading.

Inflation Shredding Shopping Lists

MONTREAL (CP) — In the face of continuing inflation, consumers will be forced to eliminate some traditional items from their shopping lists, Lawrence Murphy, an Ottawa economist, predicted Monday.

When items are essential and cannot be eliminated, consumers will increasingly opt for lower-priced and lower-quality merchandise, Murphy said during a seminar at the annual meeting of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association.

Revisions to shopping lists will occur largely because the prices of food and energy will continue to increase. These two items will also continue to gobble up a larger percentage of consumers' incomes, said Murphy, an economist with the Conference Board in Canada.

Prices can be expected to increase substantially with the predicted 11-per-cent inflation rate during most of 1976.

Murphy said expenditures for non-durable items will be sluggish next year.

In the realm of expenditures for durable items, automobile sales were about the only sector which should improve significantly.

Although over-all consumer expenditures are expected to rise, the increase will play a small role in general economic recovery, as has happened following similar economic downturns, he said.

Earlier Monday, two speakers told the 150 delegates that Canada must rely more heavily on sources of energy other than oil and gas, which are non-renewable and rapidly diminishing.

Walter Ward, outgoing president of the association, suggested coal, hydro-power and uranium must be utilized increasingly as energy sources, especially for the generation of electricity.

A. J. O'Connor, general manager of New Brunswick Power, said solar energy should be further investigated for use in home heating.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading was active with the market closing strong today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures gained from one to six cents a bushel Tuesday on the Board of Trade under good, mixed support.

The demand was associated largely with reports that farmers are not ridding themselves of their newly harvested grain, preferring to hold the commodity on the farm in hopes of higher prices. Some trade letters noted that farm offerings had slowed down the last two to three days.

Prices were firm to strong on the opening and improved almost steadily through mid-session when some mild profit taking set in. Before the final bell there was another profit-taking set in. Before the final trimmed by one third.

Trade was mixed in the major pits and the pace fairly active. There was, however, a slowdown after mid-session.

Gold futures closed with a gain of about $2 an ounce after a very light traded session.

At the close, soybeans were 2½ to 6 cents a bushel higher, Nov. 5.48; wheat 3½ to 4 higher, Dec. 4.22; corn ½ to 3½ higher, Dec. 299¼ and oats ½ to 1¼ higher, Dec. 1.55½.
